ARMY WANTS GERMANY UNDER STATE DEPARTMENT

GEN. PICK HEADS HUGE SNOW DIG

Planes, Bulldozers, Helicopters, Tractors Attack Weather Hazards

TRUMAN ALLOWS ALMOST UNLIMITED USE OF FUNDS

OMAHA, Jan. 29.—(AP)—An old hand at big scale jobs today began a blizzard relief project he described as the "the biggest bulldozed operation since the Ledo Road."

Major General Lewis A. Pick, who directed wartime construction of the China-Burma road, was placed in charge of storm relief work in all of the Missouri basin area except Montana.

Planes, bulldozers, helicopters, Caterpillar tractors, weasels, jeeps and huge primitive sleds already were being used in the relief work.

Pick was given what amounted to a blank check for money as a result of President Truman's order to make available what is needed of military establishment funds for emergency work.

The Fifth army, throwing its resources into the fight against snow that for weeks has shut off humans and livestock from their sources of food and necessities, named General Pick a deputy commander.

The Missouri river division engineer promptly set up headquarters in Omaha.

Early efforts to open roads, move food and fuel and get feed to starving cattle will be concentrated in Nebraska and portions of South Dakota, Pick said.

Today's developments had the effect of throwing into the battle scores of private contractors, many of whom have been working on Missouri basin development dam building projects. They will supply the men and many of the machines. The army engineers will supply additional machines, the Fifth army will supply military personnel to help direct the farflung operations. The government will foot the bill.

General Pick placed his own engineer division on a round-the clock basis and said "every available resource at our command will be thrown into this fight to break the snow block-

LAKE PROVIDENCE GROCER IS SLAIN

Dewey McKoin Reported Shot Five Times By Homer Milstead

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—A 51-year-old Lake Providence groceryman was fatally injured when shot five times by a garage operator shortly before 10:30 last night in front of the McKoin Grocery, according to Sheriff McFarland Long.

The merchant, Dewey McKoin, died from five pistol shot wounds inflicted by Homer Milstead, Dr. Don F. Davis, West Carroll parish coroner, said, but declined to reveal the reason for the shooting.

Sheriff Long asserted that manslaughter charges were filed against Milstead Saturday morning and he was released from the parish jail on $2,000 bond.

Coroner Davis disclosed that Milstead called Sheriff Long immediately after he shot McKoin and reported that he had killed the groceryman.

The coroner's inquest was held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Serving on the coroner's jury were G. L. Levi, W. L. Hughes, C. H. Wall, M. M. Walsworth, and J. W. Harris.

The coroner's report revealed that McKoin died instantly from bullet wounds in his head, heart, throat and abdomen, inflicted by Milstead.

Milstead made a statement before

Utilities' Condition Revealed In Survey

Shortage Of Power And Water Expected Unless Necessary Improvements And Repairs Made; Engineers Recommend Eight-Year Program

(The complete summary of the Ford, Bacon and Davis survey of the city's water and power facilities is published on Page 14).

A survey of Monroe's water and power facilities has been completed and engineers have recommended that an expenditure of $6,199,000 over the next eight years will be necessary to correct the deficiencies in the two systems, city officials revealed yesterday in making public the survey. The exhaustive report was made by Ford, Bacon and Davis, Inc., one of the nation's outstanding engineering firms.

Recommendations for sweeping improvements in both the water and power plants were made. These recommendations were discussed at a meeting of business and civic leaders at the City Hall late Friday, and it was the consensus that expansion of the two systems as outlined in the report would be necessary if the facilities are to serve the city efficiently. Methods of financing the projects were discussed only briefly and another meeting will be called in the near future to thrash out this feature of the program.

Of immediate interest was the announcement at the meeting that a new boiler had been purchased and will be installed immediately. It is expected that the boiler will be in operation by June 1. Mayor George Breece announced, thus relieving to a certain extent the unusually heavy summer load on the power plant. The present capacity of the plant is 11,000 k. w. and the new boiler will provide an additional 2,000 to 2,500 k. w., Mayor Breece said.

Mayor Breece, who with Commissioners Cline and Simmons were present to discuss conditions at the municipal plant, also announced that a new 13,000 volt power line will be constructed immediately from the power plant to a downtown substation. He said the line would be built overhead from the power plant to Riverfront, down the river bank to Grammont street and thence underground to the sub-station.

The report and recommendations were discussed in detail by L. C. Peterman, who directed the survey. Associated with Ford, Bacon and Davis in the survey was the firm of Malcolm Pirnie Engineers of New York, who prepared the data applying to the water works.

"The electric utility system is lacking in capacity at the generating station to insure safe and adequate operation and the distribution system is overloaded, resulting in low voltage and poor service in many areas of the city," the report stated. "Approximately $3,340,000 should be budgeted

GANDHI'S DEATH ACHIEVES GOALS

India And Pakistan More Peaceful One Year After Slaying

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 29—(AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi, a kindly little man of peace, has attained in violent death goals he missed with his preaching of love.

He was slain one year ago tomorrow.

His India and Pakistan are learning to dwell as peaceful neighbors. The fanatical religious warring between Hindu and Moslem in the two dominions has largely subsided. And India, as he desired, is building patiently as a democratic secular state instead of the rightist religious government his assassins wanted.

A court now is pondering the fate of eight men accused of conspiring the assassination of Gandhi, whom the world honored as the Mahatma or "great-souled." They are scheduled to be sentenced next month. Narayan Vinanyak Godse, confessed trigger

RUSSIA CLAIMS NEW WAR LOOMS

Asserts U. S. And Britain Trying To Undermine United Nations

MOSCOW, Jan. 29—(AP)—Soviet Russia declared today the United States and Britain are trying to undermine the United Nations, isolate Russia and gird for a new war through the projected North Atlantic pact.

The pact was declared to violate the U. N. charter.

The western European union likewise came under fire of the Soviet foreign ministry in a 34-page white paper, dated Jan. 28, made public here this morning.

A few hours earlier the western European union, made up of Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, announced in London a decision to form a council of Europe, in which other nations will be invited to take part.

The North Atlantic pact was proposed to link the United States and Canada with the western European union in defense. President Truman has announced he hopes to submit the pact to congress soon.

"The U. S. S. R. must take into consideration the fact that ruling circles of the United States and Britain have entered upon an openly aggressive course of policy, the final purpose of which is establishment by force of Anglo-American world domination," the white paper said.

"It is apparent to everyone that a plot is being carried out presently against the United Nations, inasmuch as it — even though in only a small measure — hinders and holds back aggressors and their policy of aggression and unleashing a new war.

"In view of this situation, the Soviet Union must more firmly and more insistently fight against the undermining and wrecking of the United Nations by aggressive elements and their followers."

The settlement said Russia must see to it that the U. N. is not by-passed, "as so often happens."

The United Nations, it said, should value its authority more dearly when the question arises as to who is "conducting an aggressive policy and unleashing a new war."

(The United States, Britain and France charged before the U. N. security council in Paris last fall that Russia's blockade of Berlin menaced peace. Debate failed to get action. The Big Four finally agreed to neutrals' proposals that a neutral economic committee study Berlin's dual currency system, which Russia said was to blame for the blockade.)

Democrats Demand Faster Pace On Truman Measures

By Edwin B. Haakinson

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Democratic leadership moved today for a faster pace in congress toward President Truman's objectives.

Senate Democratic leaders Lucas (Ill.) summoned all senate committee chairmen into a week-end huddle to lay out a schedule of action.

The first two sections of the president's economic program—relatively small but still significant—may get to a vote in the next few days.

It takes considerable time to organize any new session of congress, but the Democrats nevertheless are having to put up with some painful goose-nibbling by the Republicans.

In a speech at Charleston, S. C., last night, House Republican Leader Martin remarked that the 81st congress has been in session four weeks "and all that has happened so far is a pay increase for the president."

Martin didn't mention two other small measures which became law. One of them gave Washington government workers a four-day weekend for the Truman inauguration; the other handed the president $500,000 for relief in the blizzard-swept west.

Lucas told reporters that the aim of his caucus with the committee chairmen was to assure teamwork.

"And I am sure that is what we're going to have," he added.

One of the hottest fights—repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor act and adoption of the administration's substitute—will break out in public when the senate labor committee opens delayed hearings Monday. Secretary of Labor Tobin will lead off amid Republican protests that the Democrats are indulging in high-handed tactics and choking off testimony.

In the senate chamber, Democratic leaders called for a preliminary step

Labor Injunction Set For Discard

Truman Administration Plans To Eliminate It From Law

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Truman administration urged congress today to throw away the weapon of court injunctions for blocking national emergency strikes. It called instead for a voluntary cooling off procedure.

Formally submitting legislation for revising basic labor laws, the administration demanded repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and a restored Wagner Act bearing "improvements" President Truman wants.

Erasing the Taft-Hartley law also would junk these familiar union restrictions:

The requirement that union officials must swear they are not Communists if they wish to deal with the national labor relations board.

The prohibition against political spending by unions.

The ban on the closed shop, which requires employers to take on only union members.

Jes' Ramblin'

We can't help admiring the persistency of the weather bureau prognosticators. Day after day they were faithful in their task of warning against a cold snap. Of course it never came, but the proponents of frigid weather never faltered. The next day it was sure to be nipping cold they assured. But they got a break on Saturday morning when the lowest temperature of the winter was encountered with 25.7 as minimum temperature for the Twin Cities, and so is proved the truth of the old adage: "Everything comes to him who waits!"

Deepest appreciation and grandmother love is contained in the following letter which came from Rayville and is self-explanatory:

"Dear Jes 'Ramblin': Today when I reached inside my mail box for the Morning World, my little grandson's picture was all I could see. 'Bless

RUSTON SERVICE STATION ROBBED

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29—(Special)—Police Chief Perry Kinard reported that two armed robbers held a gun on a 55-year-old service station attendent and netted $310.84 from the cash register of the Rose Oil Service Station on South Vienna street, shortly before 4:30 this morning.

In addition to the cash, Chief Kinard, said the robbers took two tires and ransacked the station.

Ed Cook, an employee of the Rose Oil company, told Chief Kenard, the two men drove up to the station in an old car, came inside and with a gun forced him to get behind a stack of tires.

After robbing the cash register and loading up the tires, Cook said, the unidentified men pulled away from the station at a high rate of speed.

Chief Kinard said Cook was unable to give a full discription of both men or the car in which they were traveling.

Reds Insist Upon Arrest Of Chiang

Assert He And Others Must Be Held Before Peace Talks

By James D. White

NANKING, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Chinese Communists insisted today that arrest of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and other government figures on the Red list of "war criminals" must precede any peace talks.

Since Chiang and almost all others on the list long since have gone south, it is impossible for acting President Li Tsung-Jen to comply, even should he wish.

The Communists demanded a prompt reply, but there was no official public reaction. Acting President Li, inside his strongly-guarded home, was the only responsible official left in the capital. Not a single cabinet member could be located.

GREECE PLEDGES WAR ON REBELS

Says Attack Won't End Until Communist-Led Groups Surrender

GUERRILLAS DEMAND END TO AMERICAN ASSISTANCE

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Greek government today pledged relentless war on Communist-led rebels until they lay down their arms.

This was the reply of Press Minister Michael Alianos at a news conference to reports published abroad that the Greek government had accepted a cease-fire proposal from the rebels.

"There is only one act which can put an end to the war," said Alianos. "Let the bandits law down their arms. This is not a condition nor a proposal, but must come from the bandits alone."

(The government always calls the insurgents "bandits.")

Alianos said the government "never thought of and is not now considering any counter proposals" to the rebels' broadcast peace terms. He termed the broadcast "obviously a propaganda move."

Only when and if the rebels have been crushed or surrender unconditionally will Greece hold normal democratic elections, the cabinet spokesman said.

The guerrillas demanded an end to American aid to this country and creation of a new government satisfactory to the Communist leaders, as conditions for peace.

Other official government sources said the proposals were "completely unacceptable" and evidently "designed to isolate Greece from the western bloc." These sources said the proposals had "no substance" and any reports

KHAN WILL FILE DIVORCE REQUEST

Proceedings Expected To Enter Climactic Stage Monday

PARIS Jan. 29.—(AP)—Court officials here said today divorce proceedings between Prince Aly Khan and his British wife are expected to enter a climactic stage Monday.

A divorce request will be formally deposited in civil court here, the officials said. Aly Khan said Jan. 17 at Cannes that appropriate proceedings for the divorce actually have been in progress for nearly a year.

The Moslem prince has said he will marry American Movie Star Rita Hayworth as soon as he is divorced. Their traveling romance has attracted world-wide attention.

A divorce request on behalf of the princess, the former Joan Yarde-Buller is expected to be filed first. Some time later a similar request will be filed on behalf of the prince.

On Thursday the princess is expected to come here from England to pay a personal visit to the president of the court, Marcel Rousselet. Lawyers will be excluded from the interview.

Approximately 12 days later a reconciliation meeting will be scheduled, the informants said. In theory both principals are expected to attend that meeting, but if one fails to show up it is assumed that reconciliation is impossible.

The court officials said it had been decided that Prince Aly would be accepted as a British subject. This was expected to hasten the proceedings. There had been some question as to whether he might be considered a citizen of India. That would have required him to send to India for certain papers.

There has been speculation the divorce will be sought on grounds of "serious insults"—a charge which would include incompatibility and desertion.

Petition Made To President Truman

Neither White House Nor State Department Desires To Rush Through Any Quick Change In American Setup In Germany

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The army, appealing to President Truman, wants the administration of the U. S. zone of Germany turned over to the state department as soon as possible, it was learned tonight.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall urged the switch in a formal recommendation to the White House.

Neither the White House nor state department, however, wants to rush through any quick change in the American setup in Germany, a political and economic battleground in the cold war.

General Lucius D. Clay reportedly is again pressing officials here to be allowed to retire as military governor, but President Truman is represented as anxious to keep him on the job a while longer.

Responsible officials said disposition of Royall's proposal will turn largely on the advice to be given President Truman by Secretary of State Acheson.

Acheson, in office little more than a week, has been swamped with other matters.

Moreover insiders regard it likely that he would want an exhaustive review made of the whole German problem, including the specific issue of administration.

Royall's recommendation to Mr. Truman, with copies to the secretary of state and other interested officials is reported to have been made in mid-January. He returned from a tour of Germany January 3. Yesterday he left Washington for a visit to Japan.

The recommendation does not constitute any new army policy. The military have made repeated attempts in the past to shift the occupation task to the state department. It was decided long ago that the start should be made in Germany with the change-over in Japan to come along later.

Some informants said that what lends a quality of urgency to the present situation is that General Clay has become more emphatic in expressing to Royall and others his desire to retire. This, in Royall's reported opinion, apparently made it timely to raise the whole problem of civilian versus military control again.

Any move to replace him, however, will be complicated by Russian propaganda, which in the past has dealt with rumors and reports of his possible retirement as evidence of a change in American policies in Germany.

Developments in the conflict with Russia, in fact, blocked the last previous plan for a change from military to civilian control. That was in March last year.

The question of getting the state department to take over had come up several times during the state department administration of Secretary James F. Byrnes. It never got anywhere because the prevailing theory then was that state should stick to policy making.

After General George C. Marshall replaced Byrnes as secretary of state department became more receptive to the army plan and finally a year ago this week, on January 27, the army announced that an agreement had been reached with the state department to take over about July 1.

The scheme was washed out March 23 when the announcement was made that "following a review of the present situation" any change had been deemed "inadvisable."

Meanwhile, however, the state department had sent a special mission to Germany to plan the occupation administration and the organization then laid out is most likely the one that will be followed if and when the state department does move in.

This provides for a relatively small civilian staff to manage occupation

Nearly 60 Per Cent Of Admissions From Southeast Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Southeast Louisiana State hospital, now being blueprinted, could "almost completely" relieve overcrowding at the state mental hospital in Jackson, Acting State Hospital Director Jesse H. Bankston said today.

Bankston's statement was in a report to the board of directors of the proposed new mental hospital, to be located near Mandeville in St. Tammany parish. He is assigned to the project in an advisory capacity.

Bankston noted that during the 1947-48 fiscal year, nearly 60 per cent of admissions to East Louisiana Hospital at Jackson were from the area to be served by the proposed new institution, adding:

"It is estimated that the overcrowded conditions at East Louisiana Hospital could be almost completely removed by construction of the southeast Louisiana hospital."

Parishes to be served by the new hospital include St. Tammany, Washington, Tangipahoa, St. James, St. Charles, LaFourche, Terrebonne, Jefferson, Plaquemines, St. Bernard and Orleans.

It is to be located on Highway 190, about three miles east of Mandeville, on a 2,080-acre tract acquired from other state agencies.

Plans for the first units, estimated to cost about $3,000,000 were approved by the board this week. Working drawings are to be completed by July 1. Bankston said these units will house 400 patients and will eventually serve as the receiving section of the finished hospital.

Bankston foresaw a close working new facility as an "ideal training center for students of medicine, nursing, social work and psychology."

Bankston Foresaw a close working arrangement between the new hospital and charity hospital at New Orleans, with charity concentrating on short-term and out-patient treatment. Long-term patients could be screened, he said, and sent to the Mandeville hospital for treatment.

Chairman of the hospital's board is William J. Kross, of New Orleans. Other members are Dr. H. A. Stafford, of Franklinton; Oliver E. Brock, of Bogalusa; Dr. Henry Gautreau, of Covington, and State Rep. Thomas L. Garvey, of New Orleans.

HOSPITAL PLANS TO TIGHTEN REGULATIONS

JACKSON, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Officials of East Louisiana State Hospital here today announced a program to tighten regulations and improve administration of the state facilities for mental patients.

The announcement came from Dr. Glenn J. Smith, superintendent, and Lacy Richardson, business manager. They said the new program is designed to:

Screen out all employes, especially attendants, who fail to meet certain minimun standards.

BERNICE MAN HELD FOR THEFT OF BUS

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29—(Special)—Twenty-six-year-old Stinson Heard, of Bernice, remained in the city jail here today on charges of theft of a Trailway bus, after he pleaded guilty to drunk driving charges and was fined $160 or 60 days in jail by Judge C. A. Barnett, according to Police Chief Perry Kinard.

State police and Ruston authorities said Heard was apprehended about 2:30 a. m. today while driving the bus through Lincoln parish and had one unidentified passenger aboard.

Heard, a former Trailway bus driver, stole the parked bus from the Union Bus terminal, on Grammont street in Monroe shortly after 1 a. m. today, state police said.

Ruston authorities charged him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor to which he pleaded guilty.

A spokesman at the Trailway bus station in Monroe said Heard quit working for the company last October shortly after he was involved in an accident.

Chief Kinard said the bus was not damaged and that Heard would be turned over to Ouachita parish authorities who hold warrants charging him with theft of a Trailway bus.

Housewives And Farmers May Collect Taxes Soon

By Sterling F. Green

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Housewives and farmers: Be prepared to become tax collectors—as well as taxpayers—under President Truman's proposed expansion of the social security program.

Servants and farm workers, even the once-a-week cleaning woman and the seasonal apple picker, will be among the 20,000,000 earners added to the social security rolls if Mr. Truman's program becomes law.

A stamp book plan has been devised to garner the "payroll" tax from domestic help and their employers.

Self-employed persons—whether author, cobbler or operator of a popcorn stand—would make their contributions along with income tax returns.

J. Donald Kingsley, assistant federal security administrator, told a reporter today that F. S. A. has developed what it considers "simple and workable" plans to collect the tax from those it is proposed to add to the old age pension coverage.

Unless congress decides otherwise, Kingsley said, F. S. A. is ready to put this plan into effect in homes and on farms:

The housewife buys social security stamps at the postoffice. They show wage denominations from $1 to $100. They also show the cost of the stamp—two cents for a $1 stamp at present tax rates; or 1 per cent each for employer and employe.

Each maid or cook carries a stamp book. When she is paid, the housewife pastes the corresponding amount of stamps into the book. If a gardner earns $6 for a day's work, the householder pastes in a $5 stamp and a $1 stamp. Together they cost 12 cents.

The housewife, in paying the wage,

LAKE PROVIDENCE GROCER IS SLAIN

Dewey McKoin Reported Shot Five Times By Homer Milstead

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—A 51-year-old Lake Providence groceryman was fatally injured when shot five times by a garage operator shortly before 10:30 last night in front of the McKoin Grocery, according to Sheriff McFarland Long.

The merchant, Dewey McKoin, died from five pistol shot wounds inflicted by Homer Milstead, Dr. Don F. Davis, West Carroll parish coroner, said, but declined to reveal the reason for the shooting.

Sheriff Long asserted that manslaughter charges were filed against Milstead Saturday morning and he was released from the parish jail on $2,000 bond.

Coroner Davis disclosed that Milstead called Sheriff Long immediately after he shot McKoin and reported that he had killed the groceryman.

The coroner's inquest was held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Serving on the coroner's jury were G. L. Levi, W. L. Hughes, C. H. Wall, M. M. Walsworth, and J. W. Harris.

The coroner's report revealed that McKoin died instantly from bullet wounds in his head, heart, throat and abdomen, inflicted by Milstead.

Utilities' Condition Revealed In Survey

Shortage Of Power And Water Expected Unless Necessary Improvements And Repairs Made; Engineers Recommend Eight-Year Program

(The complete summary of the Ford, Bacon and Davis survey of the city's water and power facilities is published on Page 14).

A survey of Monroe's water and power facilities has been completed and engineers have recommended that an expenditure of $6,199,000 over the next eight years will be necessary to correct the deficiencies in the two systems, city officials revealed yesterday in making public the survey. The exhaustive report was made by Ford, Bacon and Davis, Inc., one of the nation's outstanding engineering firms.

Recommendations for sweeping improvements in both the water and power plants were made. These recommendations were discussed at a meeting of business and civic leaders at the City Hall late Friday, and it was the consensus that expansion of the two systems as outlined in the report would be necessary if the facilities are to serve the city efficiently. Methods of financing the projects were discussed only briefly and another meeting will be called in the near future to thrash out this feature of the program.

Of immediate interest was the announcement at the meeting that a new boiler had been purchased and will be installed immediately. It is expected that the boiler will be in operation by June 1. Mayor George Breece announced, thus relieving to a certain extent the unusually heavy summer load on the power plant. The present capacity of the plant is 11,000 k. w. and the new boiler will provide an additional 2,000 to 2,500 k. w., Mayor Breece said.

Mayor Breece, who with Commissioners Cline and Simmons were present to discuss conditions at the municipal plant, also announced that a new 13,000 volt power line will be constructed immediately from the power plant to a downtown substation. He said the line would be built overhead from the power plant to Riverfront, down the river bank to Grammont street and thence underground to the sub-station.

The report and recommendations were discussed in detail by L. C. Peterman, who directed the survey. Associated with Ford, Bacon and Davis in the survey was the firm of Malcolm Pirnie Engineers of New York, who prepared the data applying to the water works.

"The electric utility system is lacking in capacity at the generating station to insure safe and adequate operation and the distribution system is overloaded, resulting in low voltage and poor service in many areas of the city," the report stated. "Approximately $3,340,000 should be budgeted

India And Pakistan More Peaceful One Year After Slaying

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 29—(AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi, a kindly little man of peace, has attained in violent death goals he missed with his preaching of love.

He was slain one year ago tomorrow.

His India and Pakistan are learning to dwell as peaceful neighbors. The fanatical religious warring between Hindu and Moslem in the two dominions has largely subsided. And India, as he desired, is building patiently as a democratic secular state instead of the rightist religious government his assassins wanted.

A court now is pondering the fate of eight men accused of conspiring the assassination of Gandhi, whom the world honored as the Mahatma or "great-souled." They are scheduled to be sentenced next month. Narayan Vinanyak Godse, confessed trigger

Asserts U. S. And Britain Trying To Undermine United Nations

MOSCOW, Jan. 29—(AP)—Soviet Russia declared today the United States and Britain are trying to undermine the United Nations, isolate Russia and gird for a new war through the projected North Atlantic pact.

The pact was declared to violate the U. N. charter.

The western European union likewise came under fire of the Soviet foreign ministry in a 34-page white paper, dated Jan. 28, made public here this morning.

A few hours earlier the western European union, made up of Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, announced in London a decision to form a council of Europe, in which other nations will be invited to take part.

The North Atlantic pact was proposed to link the United States and Canada with the western European union in defense. President Truman has announced he hopes to submit the pact to congress soon.

"The U. S. S. R. must take into consideration the fact that ruling circles of the United States and Britain have entered upon an openly aggressive course of policy, the final purpose of which is establishment by force of Anglo-American world domination," the white paper said.

"It is apparent to everyone that a plot is being carried out presently against the United Nations, inasmuch as it — even though in only a small measure — hinders and holds back aggressors and their policy of aggression and unleashing a new war.

"In view of this situation, the Soviet Union must more firmly and more insistently fight against the undermining and wrecking of the United Nations by aggressive elements and their followers."

The settlement said Russia must see to it that the U. N. is not by-passed, "as so often happens."

The United Nations, it said, should value its authority more dearly when the question arises as to who is "conducting an aggressive policy and unleashing a new war."

(The United States, Britain and France charged before the U. N. security council in Paris last fall that Russia's blockade of Berlin menaced peace. Debate failed to get action. The Big Four finally agreed to neutrals' proposals that a neutral economic committee study Berlin's dual currency system, which Russia said was to blame for the blockade.)

Democrats Demand Faster Pace On Truman Measures

By Edwin B. Haakinson

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Democratic leadership moved today for a faster pace in congress toward President Truman's objectives.

Senate Democratic leaders Lucas (Ill.) summoned all senate committee chairmen into a week-end huddle to lay out a schedule of action.

The first two sections of the president's economic program—relatively small but still significant—may get to a vote in the next few days.

It takes considerable time to organize any new session of congress, but the Democrats nevertheless are having to put up with some painful goose-nibbling by the Republicans.

In a speech at Charleston, S. C., last night, House Republican Leader Martin remarked that the 81st congress has been in session four weeks "and all that has happened so far is a pay increase for the president."

Martin didn't mention two other small measures which became law. One of them gave Washington government workers a four-day weekend for the Truman inauguration; the other handed the president $500,000 for relief in the blizzard-swept west.

Lucas told reporters that the aim of his caucus with the committee chairmen was to assure teamwork.

"And I am sure that is what we're going to have," he added.

One of the hottest fights—repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor act and adoption of the administration's substitute—will break out in public when the senate labor committee opens delayed hearings Monday. Secretary of Labor Tobin will lead off amid Republican protests that the Democrats are indulging in high-handed tactics and choking off testimony.

In the senate chamber, Democratic leaders called for a preliminary step

Labor Injunction Set For Discard

Truman Administration Plans To Eliminate It From Law

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Truman administration urged congress today to throw away the weapon of court injunctions for blocking national emergency strikes. It called instead for a voluntary cooling off procedure.

Formally submitting legislation for revising basic labor laws, the administration demanded repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and a restored Wagner Act bearing "improvements" President Truman wants.

Erasing the Taft-Hartley law also would junk these familiar union restrictions:

The requirement that union officials must swear they are not Communists if they wish to deal with the national labor relations board.

The prohibition against political spending by unions.

The ban on the closed shop, which requires employers to take on only union members.

Jes' Ramblin'

We can't help admiring the persistency of the weather bureau prognosticators. Day after day they were faithful in their task of warning against a cold snap. Of course it never came but the proponents of frigid weather never faltered. The next day it was sure to be nipping cold they assured. But they got a break on Saturday morning when the lowest temperature of the winter was encountered with 25.7 as minimum temperature for the Twin Cities, and so is proved the truth of the old adage: "Exerything comes to him who waits!"

Deepest appreciation and grandmother love is contained in the following letter which came from Rayville and is self-explanatory:

"Dear Jes 'Ramblin': Today when I reached inside my mail box for the Morning World, my little grandson's picture was all I could see. 'Bless

Reds Insist Upon Arrest Of Chiang

Assert He And Others Must Be Held Before Peace Talks

By James D. White

NANKING, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Chinese Communists insisted today that arrest of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and other government figures on the Red list of "war criminals" must precede any peace talks.

Since Chiang and almost all others on the list long since have gone south, it is impossible for acting President Li Tsung-Jen to comply, even should he wish.

The Communists demanded a prompt reply, but there was no official public reaction. Acting President Li, inside his strongly-guarded home, was the only responsible official left in the capital. Not a single cabinet member could be located.

RUSTON SERVICE STATION ROBBED

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29—(Special)—Police Chief Perry Kinard reported that two armed robbers held a gun on a 55-year-old service station attendent and netted $310.84 from the cash register of the Rose Oil Service Station on South Vienna street, shortly before 4:30 this morning.

In addition to the cash, Chief Kinard, said the robbers took two tires and ranshacked the station.

Ed Cook, an employee of the Rose Oil company, told Chief Kenard, the two men drove up to the station in an old car, came inside and with a gun forced him to get behind a stack of tires.

After robbing the cash register and loading up the tires, Cook said, the unidentified men pulled away from the station at a high rate of speed.

Chief Kinard said Cook was unable to give a full discription of both men or the car in which they were traveling.

GREECE PLEDGES WAR ON REBELS

Says Attack Won't End Until Communist-Led Groups Surrender

GUERRILLAS DEMAND END TO AMERICAN ASSISTANCE

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Greek government today pledged relentless war on Communist-led rebels until they lay down their arms.

This was the reply of Press Minister Michael Alianos at a news conference to reports published abroad that the Greek government had accepted a cease-fire proposal from the rebels.

"There is only one act which can put an end to the war," said Alianos. "Let the bandits law down their arms. This is not a condition nor a proposal, but must come from the bandits alone."

(The government always calls the insurgents "bandits.")

Alianos said the government "never thought of and is not now considering any counter proposals" to the rebels' broadcast peace terms. He termed the broadcast "obviously a propaganda move."

Only when and if the rebels have been crushed or surrender unconditionally will Greece hold normal democratic elections, the cabinet spokesman said.

The guerrillas demanded an end to American aid to this country and creation of a new government satisfactory to the Communist leaders, as conditions for peace.

Other official government sources said the proposals were "completely unacceptable" and evidently "designed to isolate Greece from the western bloc." These sources said the proposals had "no substance" and any reports

KHAN WILL FILE DIVORCE REQUEST

Proceedings Expected To Enter Climactic Stage Monday

PARIS Jan. 29.—(AP)—Court officials here said today divorce proceedings between Prince Aly Khan and his British wife are expected to enter a climactic stage Monday.

A divorce request will be formally deposited in civil court here, the officials said. Aly Khan said Jan. 17 at Cannes that appropriate proceedings for the divorce actually have been in progress for nearly a year.

The Moslem prince has said he will marry American Movie Star Rita Hayworth as soon as he is divorced. Their traveling romance has attracted world-wide attention.

A divorce request on behalf of the princess, the former Joan Yarde-Buller is expected to be filed first. Some time later a similar request will be filed on behalf of the prince.

On Thursday the princess is expected to come here from England to pay a personal visit to the president of the court, Marcel Rousselet. Lawyers will be excluded from the interview.

Approximately 12 days later a reconciliation meeting will be scheduled, the informants said. In theory both principals are expected to attend that meeting, but if one fails to show up it is assumed that reconciliation is impossible.

The court officials said it had been decided that Prince Aly would be accepted as a British subject. This was expected to hasten the proceedings. There had been some question as to whether he might be considered a citizen of India. That would have required him to send to India for certain papers.

There has been speculation the divorce will be sought on grounds of "serious insults"—a charge which would include incompatibility and desertion.

Housewives And Farmers May Collect Taxes Soon

By Sterling F. Green

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Housewives and farmers: Be prepared to become tax collectors—as well as taxpayers—under President Truman's proposed expansion of the social security program.

Servants and farm workers, even the once-a-week cleaning woman and the seasonal apple picker, will be among the 20,000,000 earners added to the social security rolls if Mr. Truman's program becomes law.

A stamp book plan has been devised to garner the "payroll" tax from domestic help and their employers.

Self-employed persons—whether author, cobbler or operator of a popcorn stand—would make their contributions along with income tax returns.

J. Donald Kingsley, assistant federal security administrator, told a reporter today that F. S. A. has developed what it considers "simple and workable" plans to collect the tax from those it is proposed to add to the old age pension coverage.

Unless congress decides otherwise, Kingsley said, F. S. A. is ready to put this plan into effect in homes and on farms:

The housewife buys social security stamps at the postoffice. They show wage denominations from $1 to $100. They also show the cost of the stamp—two cents for a $1 stamp at present tax rates; or 1 per cent each for employer and employe.

Each maid or cook carries a stamp book. When she is paid, the housewife pastes the corresponding amount of stamps into the book. If a gardner earns $6 for a day's work, the householder pastes in a $5 stamp and a $1 stamp. Together they cost 12 cents.

The housewife, in paying the wage,

Petition Made To President Truman

Neither White House Nor State Department Desires To Rush Through Any Quick Change In American Setup In Germany

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The army, appealing to President Truman, wants the administration of the U. S. zone of Germany turned over to the state department as soon as possible, it was learned tonight.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall urged the switch in a formal recommendation to the White House.

Neither the White House nor state department, however, wants to rush through any quick change in the American setup in Germany, a political and economic battleground in the cold war.

General Lucius D. Clay reportedly is again pressing officials here to be allowed to retire as military governor, but President Truman is represented as anxious to keep him on the job a while longer.

Responsible officials said disposition of Royall's proposal will turn largely on the advice to be given President Truman by Secretary of State Acheson.

Acheson, in office little more than a week, has been swamped with other matters.

Moreover insiders regard it likely that he would want an exhaustive review made of the whole German problem, including the specific issue of administration.

Royall's recommendation to Mr. Truman, with copies to the secretary of state and other interested officials is reported to have been made in mid-January. He returned from a tour of Germany January 3. Yesterday he left Washington for a visit to Japan.

The recommendation does not constitute any new army policy. The military have made repeated attempts in the past to shift the occupation task to the state department. It was decided long ago that the start should be made in Germany with the changeover in Japan to come along later.

Some informants said that what lends a quality of urgency to the present situation is that General Clay has become more emphatic in expressing to Royall and others his desire to retire. This, in Royall's reported opinion, apparently made it timely to raise the whole problem of civilian versus military control again.

Any move to replace him, however, will be complicated by Russian propaganda, which in the past has dealt with rumors and reports of his possible retirement as evidence of a change in American policies in Germany.

Developments in the conflict with Russia, in fact, blocked the last previous plan for a change from military to civilian control. That was in March last year.

The question of getting the state department to take over had come up several times during the state department administration of Secretary James F. Byrnes. It never got anywhere because the prevailing theory then was that state should stick to policy making.

After General George C. Marshall replaced Byrnes as secretary of state department became more receptive to the army plan and finally a year ago this week, on January 27, the army announced that an agreement had been reached with the state department to take over about July 1.

The scheme was washed out March 23 when the announcement was made that "following a review of the present situation" any change had been deemed "inadvisable."

Meanwhile, however, the state department had sent a special mission to Germany to plan the occupation administration and the organization then laid out is most likely the one that will be followed if and when the state department does move in.

This provides for a relatively small civilian staff to manage occupation

Nearly 60 Per Cent Of Admissions From Southeast Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Southeast Louisiana State hospital, now being blueprinted, could "almost completely" relieve overcrowding at the state mental hospital in Jackson, Acting State Hospital Director Jesse H. Bankston said today.

Bankston's statement was in a report to the board of directors of the proposed new mental hospital, to be located near Mandeville in St. Tammany parish. He is assigned to the project in an advisory capacity.

Bankston noted that during the 1947-48 fiscal year, nearly 60 per cent of admissions to East Louisiana Hospital at Jackson were from the area to be served by the proposed new institution, adding:

"It is estimated that the overcrowded conditions at East Louisiana Hospital could be almost completely removed by construction of the southeast Louisiana hospital."

Parishes to be served by the new hospital include St. Tammany, Washington, Tangipahoa, St. James, St. Charles, LaFourche, Terrebonne, Jefferson, Plaquemines, St. Bernard and Orleans.

It is to be located on Highway 190, about three miles east of Mandeville, on a 2,080-acre tract acquired from other state agencies.

Plans for the first units, estimated to cost about $3,000,000 were approved by the board this week. Working drawings are to be completed by July 1. Bankston said these units will house 400 patients and will eventually serve as the receiving section of the finished hospital.

Bankston foresaw a close working new facility as an "ideal training center for students of medicine, nursing, social work and psychology."

Bankston Foresaw a close working arrangement between the new hospital and charity hospital at New Orleans, with charity concentrating on short-term and out-patient treatment. Long-term patients could be screened, he said, and sent to the Mandeville hospital for treatment.

Chairman of the hospital's board is William J. Kross, of New Orleans. Other members are Dr. H. A. Stafford, of Franklinton; Oliver E. Brock, of Bogalusa; Dr. Henry Gautreau, of Covington, and State Rep. Thomas L. Garvey, of New Orleans.

HOSPITAL PLANS TO TIGHTEN REGULATIONS

JACKSON, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Officials of East Louisiana State Hospital here today announced a program to tighten regulations and improve administration of the state facilities for mental patients.

The announcement came from Dr. Glenn J. Smith, superintendent, and Lacy Richardson, business manager. They said the new program is designed to:

Screen out all employes, especially attendants, who fail to meet certain minimun standards.

BERNICE MAN HELD FOR THEFT OF BUS

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29—(Special)—Twenty-six-year-old Stinson Heard, of Bernice, remained in the city jail here today on charges of theft of a Trailway bus, after he pleaded guilty to drunk driving charges and was fined $160 or 60 days in jail by Judge C. A. Barnett, according to Police Chief Perry Kinard.

State police and Ruston authorities said Heard was apprehended about 2:30 a. m. today while driving the bus through Lincoln parish and had one unidentified passenger aboard.

Heard, a former Trailway bus driver, stole the parked bus from the Union Bus terminal, on Grammont street in Monroe shortly after 1 a. m. today, state police said.

Ruston authorities charged him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor to which he pleaded guilty.

A spokesman at the Trailway bus station in Monroe said Heard quit working for the company last October shortly after he was involved in an accident.

Chief Kinard said the bus was not damaged and that Heard would be turned over to Ouachita parish authorities who hold warrants charging him with theft of a Trailway bus.

He has traveled extensively and has studied music at the Peabody Conservatory of Music and with John Thompson, Sr.

Prior to the war, he assisted Dr Thompson in the lecture field. Following Pearl Harbor he enlisted in the coast guard and while in Alaska composed the "Coast Guard Victory Song" and "The Sailor's Prayer."

He is composer of a growing number of teaching pieces—all listed in the student series. His "Tuneful Duet Album for the First Year" enjoys wide popularity with teachers and pupils alike.

John Thompson, Jr., early displayed an interest in the theory and pedagogical aspects of his father's work and literally grew up with the modern course for the piano. He is therefore thoroughly familiar with the material and his father's pedagogical objectives in writing it. He is popular with teacher-audiences and well qualified to deal with the subject.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

The cast of "Blithe Spirit" are doing over time these days and its little wonder with curtain call only two weeks away. The opening date has been set for February 15 at Brown Auditorium Northeast Junior College. The cast of five women and two men have the gigantic job of learning and interpreting eighty-three pages of fast moving and sophisticated dialogue. Take Jimmy Guerriero who fits the role of Charles Condomine so perfectly, he is on stage in almost the entire three acts and Joy Pierce playing the part of Ruth just about shares honors with him in the number of lines to be learned.

Everett Lawson, past president of Little Theatre, visited rehearsal Friday night and offered Director Helen Allen any assistance she might need in making "Blithe Spirit" a success. Helen tells us that they are now looking for Tuxedos' for the two men Charles Condomine and Dr. Bradman or else dinner jackets. With his special knack for ingenious thoughts, Dr. Albert K. Ringo has come up with some special high gloss silver powder for the lady ghosts coiffeurs.

IDLE CHATTER — A new addition to KMLB copy writer staff and as cute as everything, is Annie Laurie Laymon. She is originally from Georgia and they say the young lady holds an M. A. degree from the Bob Jones Radio College somewhere in Tennessee — Ulmer McDonald, former N. J. C. student and active member of Little Theatre, who is especially remembered for his excellent portrayal of the prosecuting attorney in "The Trial of Mary Dugan", will be the manager of the French National Airlines, when they invade Texas and open up their new offices on February 1 — Mrs. Conrad McDuffie and two car loads of friends will be in attendance at the Ouachita Parish Cancer Society Style show and luncheon on February 14 — Had a long letter from Gil Findlay and he is all settled on his new project with Kellogg up in New Jersey but missing his Monroe friends something awful. He says the Joe Findlays have arrived in England and his favorite cousin is on his way to Denmark and with Alice in California for the moment, might think of the Findlays as an international family. — A scene stopper the other day was when we discovered the picture (11 by 14) of Alice in Griffins window. Looks just like her and seemed like she ought to speak up and give us the latest news of the day.

STORY OF THE WEEK. . .We overheard this story the other day at a meeting of the Cancer Society and it was too interesting to keep to ourselves. . .Mrs. C. K. Crandell, former board member of Little Theatre and Frances Flanders of the Ouachita Parish Library were discussing a new project that has been two years in the making. On February 6th, the library is sponsoring the opening of a colored library and they will have on hand more than 1500 fiction, non-fiction, reference, adult and childrens books. This is another first in the progresive spirit of Monroe citizens and as usual the Junior Chamber of Commerce is not to be found lacking. They have as one of their major projects of the year to raise funds to build a library building to house the books. . .Which reminds us we are going to have to have a talk with some of these Jaycees like Carl Slakter and Bill Crossfield and ask them how they do it. . . We want, we need a Little Theatre building and community center.

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH

GEORGE O. BREECE, Jr. . .Whose youthful appearance belies his thirty-five years is probably the youngest mayor in Monroe's history. He was born in Charleston, West Virginia, and moved to Monroe in 1925 where he received the majority of his education in the city schools.

Monroe, to him, by choice is the ideal place to live and although he considered returning to West Virginia once it took only one trip to convince him that his heart and interests were in Monroe and its citizens. His father was the prominently known manager of the Breece Lumber Company, a concern which now consists chiefly of large land and timber holdings. The chief owner of the Breece Lumber Co. was his grandfather George E. Breece, better known as Colonel Breece, who lived in Albuquerque, New Mexico. After his father's death in 1933, Mr. Breece was employed by the company and is now a director and vice-president in the organization.

With a winning smile and genial nature, our esteemed mayor seems to be following in his father's and grandfather's footsteps. His father was elected to the Ouachita parish police jury and just prior to the first World War his grandfather served as mayor of Charleston, West Va. For the past eight years Mr. Breece served on the police jury and resigned this post at the beginning of his third term to become mayor of the Twin Cities.

He has been a member and staunch supporter of Little Theatre for the past fifteen years. We also find him on the board of directors of the local Red Cross, The Chamber of Commerce and the Society for Crippled Children. His hobby is farming and he is now operating a 100 acre farm in Grayling Bend. During the life time of his father their love and appreciation for fine horses was evidenced in their thoroughbred farm where they raised and bred trotters of the blue ribbon variety.

M. O. P. 'DOODLEBUG' DECISION IS SLATED

The hearing was brought about by the Winnsboro Lions Club in protest to a M. P. attempt to discontinue the rail service to persons between Bastrop and Vidalia.

SHERIFF SAVES BOY, LOOKING FOR FEET

ELKINS, W. Va., Jan. 29—(AP)—A West Virginia sheriff is looking today for artifical feet for a boy he helped save from freezing to death.

Sheriff D. E. Croston directed searching parties which found John Helmick in a woods. Helmick and two young companions got lost in a snowstorm. The other two boys died from the cold.

It wasn't until Thursday—his 17th birthday—that Helmick was told his feet would have to be amputated. Just before that he had told the sheriff about new shoes he would have when he left the hospital.

A strong bond of friendship developed between the sheriff and Helmick. When the youth learned amputation was necessary his only comment was "I would like to have Sheriff Croston here when they do it."

The sheriff walked beside his friend to the operating room. He waited four hours while Helmick underwent amputation of both feet and part of his legs.

Then after the doctors reported Helmick's condition "satisfactory." Sheriff Croston announced he was going out to see about getting artificial feet.

MUSIC TEACHERS TO HEAR TALK

John Thompson Will Be Speaker On Night Of February 15

Mrs. B. D. Allbritton, of the Northeast Junior College music faculty, chairman of the program committee of Music Teachers' Association of the Twin Cities invites the interested public to attend a lecture to be given by John Thompson at 8 p. m. on February 15 at 216 Grammont street. All teachers, not only in Monroe, but also in the surrounding area are cordially invited.

John Thompson, Jr., received his B. A. degree at the University of Kansas City where he majored in English.

He has traveled extensively and has studied music at the Peabody Conservatory of Music and with John Thompson, Sr.

Prior to the war, he assisted Dr Thompson in the lecture field. Following Pearl Harbor he enlisted in the coast guard and while in Alaska composed the "Coast Guard Victory Song" and "The Sailor's Prayer."

He is composer of a growing number of teaching pieces—all listed in the student series. His "Tuneful Duet Album for the First Year" enjoys wide popularity with teachers and pupils alike.

John Thompson, Jr., early displayed an interest in the theory and pedagogical aspects of his father's work and literally grew up with the modern course for the piano. He is therefore thoroughly familiar with the material and his father's pedagogical objectives in writing it. He is popular with teacher-audiences and well qualified to deal with the subject.

TENSAS PARISH AIDING HUNGRY

Final Crop Drive Report Rendered; War Victims Assisted

FERRIDAY, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—The final report of the CROP drive to aid the sick and starving people of Europe shows that the residents of St. Joseph in Tensas parish forcefully answered the pitiful pleas of the needy people of several European countries by their generous contributions.

Father John P. Quinn, S. S. J., pastor of the St. Joseph Catholic Church, co-chairman for St. Joseph in the CROP drive to raise funds for the sufferers of European nations said he wished to thank those who had made it possible for Tensas parish to go over the top in their efforts to aid.

He said he was especially grateful to the contributors and solicitors alike, the youth committee, composed of Rev. J. L. Davis and Walter Enete; financial committee, Rev. William Bumsted, Rev. Clyde Frazier and Chris James; farmers committee, C. B. Haddon and his loyal district workers and to the long list of donors.

A total of $698.84 was raised and the following pledges given: Mrs. Ann A. Harris, two mules; Mrs. George W. Dubuisson, one mule; S. J. Castle, one mule; Mrs. J. R. Lewis, one bale of cotton, two sacks pecans; Osceola plantation, one mule, one horse; G. R. Bagley, one mule and L. H. Cook, one horse.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

The cast of "Blithe Spirit" are doing over time these days and its little wonder with curtain call only two weeks away. The opening date has been set for February 15 at Brown Auditorium Northeast Junior College. The cast of five women and two men have the gigantic job of learning and interpreting eighty-three pages of fast moving and sophisticated dialogue. Take Jimmy Guerriero who fits the role of Charles Condomine so perfectly, he is on stage in almost the entire three acts and Joy Pierce playing the part of Ruth just about shares honors with him in the number of lines to be learned.

Everett Lawson, past president of Little Theatre, visited rehearsal Friday night and offered Director Helen Allen any assistance she might need in making "Blithe Spirit" a success. Helen tells us that they are now looking for Tuxedos' for the two men Charles Condomine and Dr. Bradman or else dinner jackets. With his special knack for ingenious thoughts, Dr. Albert K. Ringo has come up with some special high gloss silver powder for the lady ghosts coiffeurs.

IDLE CHATTER — A new addition to KMLB copy writer staff and as cute as everything, is Annie Laurie Laymon. She is originally from Georgia and they say the young lady holds an M. A. degree from the Bob Jones Radio College somewhere in Tennessee — Ulmer McDonald, former N. J. C. student and active member of Little Theatre, who is especially remembered for his excellent portrayal of the prosecuting attorney in "The Trial of Mary Dugan", will be the manager of the French National Airlines, when they invade Texas and open up their new offices on February 1 — Mrs. Conrad McDuffie and two car loads of friends will be in attendance at the Ouachita Parish Cancer Society Style show and luncheon on February 14 — Had a long letter from Gil Findlay and he is all settled on his new project with Kellogg up in New Jersey but missing his Monroe friends something awful. He says the Joe Findlays have arrived in England and his favorite cousin is on his way to Denmark and with Alice in California for the moment, might think of the Findlays as an international family. — A scene stopper the other day was when we discovered the picture (11 by 14) of Alice in Griffins window. Looks just like her and seemed like she ought to speak up and give us the latest news of the day.

STORY OF THE WEEK. . .We overheard this story the other day at a meeting of the Cancer Society and it was too interesting to keep to ourselves. . .Mrs. C. K. Crandell, former board member of Little Theatre and Frances Flanders of the Ouachita Parish Library were discussing a new project that has been two years in the making. On February 6th, the library is sponsoring the opening of a colored library and they will have on hand more than 1500 fiction, non-fiction, reference, adult and childrens books. This is another first in the progresive spirit of Monroe citizens and as usual the Junior Chamber of Commerce is not to be found lacking. They have as one of their major projects of the year to raise funds to build a library building to house the books. . .Which reminds us we are going to have to have a talk with some of these Jaycees like Carl Slakter and Bill Crossfield and ask them how they do it. . . We want, we need a Little Theatre building and community center.

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH GEORGE O. BREECE, Jr. . .Whose youthful appearance belies his thirty-five years is probably the youngest mayor in Monroe's history. He was born in Charleston, West Virginia, and moved to Monroe in 1925 where he received the majority of his education in the city schools.

Monroe, to him, by choice is the ideal place to live and although he considered returning to West Virginia once it took only one trip to convince him that his heart and interests were in Monroe and its citizens. His father was the prominently known manager of the Breece Lumber Company, a concern which now consists chiefly of large land and timber holdings. The chief owner of the Breece Lumber Co. was his grandfather George E. Breece, better known as Colonel Breece, who lived in Albuquerque, New Mexico. After his father's death in 1933, Mr. Breece was employed by the company and is now a director and vice-president in the organization.

With a winning smile and geniel nature, our esteemed mayor seems to be following in his father's and grandfather's footsteps. His father was elected to the Ouachita parish police jury and just prior to the first World War his grandfather served as mayor of Charleston, West Va. For the past eight years Mr. Breece served on the police jury and resigned this post at the beginning of his third term to become mayor of the Twin Cities.

He has been a member and staunch supporter of Little Theatre for the past fifteen years. We also find him on the board of directors of the local Red Cross, The Chamber of Commerce and the Society for Crippled Children. His hobby is farming and he is now operating a 100 acre farm in Grayling Bend. During the life time of his father their love and appreciation for fine horses was evidenced in their thoroughbred farm where they raised and bred trotters of the blue ribbon variety.

MURRAY HUDSON PLANT GROWER

Specializes In Camellias And Tells Garden Club How He Does It

Murray Hudson, prominent local attorney, and outstanding amateur gardener, spoke on the subject "Camellias" at a recent meeting of the Monroe Garden Club. An authority on the growing of these exotic flowers, Mr. Hudson gave detailed instruction on their care and culture.

Prefacing his talk with a cursory review of the botany of the plant, its component parts (roots, trunk, leaves) and their functions, Mr. Hudson said, "With this very cusory treatment of the various functions of the Camellia plant, as well as all other plants, let's think for a moment about a few of our common practices in handling these plants. I am sure most of us spray once, sometimes twice a year. We take an oil, combined with some poisonous mineral—copper, arsenic, etc., and whether the mouths of our little leaves are open or shut, we give them a good dose of it. We all know that if our spray is too strong it will kill the plant. I wonder if by diluting the spray, if we do not do damage to the plant only in a lesser degree.

"I know the question is in your mind, 'Well, what are we going to do when we see our plants being consumed by aphis, scale or the numerous other diseases?' They are going to die anyway so let's take the easy way out and try and erradicate the greater damage being done by the insect and substitute the lesser damage being done by the spray. It was at this point that I began to search for an answer, and to be perfectly frank, my experiment has not gone far enough to give you any definite and positive results. But, it has been my practice with my hobby of growing camellias to try and stick as close to nature as possible.

"I notice that the woods in any state never die of disease or are blotted out by scale, nor are they sprayed with any chemical poison. There must be some reason for this and I turned to the soil. Our woodlands are never fertilized with chemical fertilizers, they rely solely upon the leaves and other debris from the trees in the woods to keep them producing. So, with this thought, about a year ago, I turned my back upon chemical fertilizers and adopted organic fertilizers as an experiment. I have not abandoned the complete use of the spray, but use it only on plants that show some scale or infestation. In other words, as sparingly as possible. This for the reason that it will take at least three or four years for me to get my soil free of the chemical fertilizer and to get my plants feeding only on organic fertilizer.

"What is organic fertilizer? In simple terms, it is fertilizer made from vegetable and animal matter. • • • For the average small garden, a very convenient way to make this compost (organic fertilizer) is to make two boxes, 4 to 3 feet. The boxes have no bottom and have about a one-half inch gap between the boards on either side for ventilation. The front of the box is made up of loose boards that slip in behind the uprights.

"Having made the two boxes, throw your mixed vegetable materials into one of them as it comes to hand, together with one-third the volume of manure and a small amount of earth, mixing them as the box is filled. The proportion by volume of mixed vegetables to manure should be four to one. All garden or unused kitchen waste may be used. The material, as it is placed in the box, should be moistened with a spray from a hose or water can. It is always preferable to let rain keep the contents of the box moist rather than city water.

"When he box is one-half full, make and maintain one vertical ventilation hole in the middle by thrusting a light crowbar or hoe handle into the heap and working it from side to side. This hole should go to the ground level. The box should be protected from excessive rain or sun by means of two pieces of corrugated sheeting or other similar protection. If there is any unpleasant ordor to the box, or flies, you have erred in filling it, or are keeping it too wet. If this occurs, the box should be emptied at once and refilled.

"After four weeks, the contents should be moved into the second box, kept reasonably moist and allowed to ripen for a month or six weeks. As soon as it ripens, it should be applied to the garden. If it must be stored, it should be dried in the sun and kept in an open shed. • • • It is my hope that by adopting this methods of fertilization and abandoning the strong chemical fertilizers that I can build my plants up in strength to a point where they will be disease resistant. • • •

"For your camellia garden, let me suggest to you that better than any chemical set that man has ever devised, you can use the earthworms as your guide for a proper soil. If, in the fall of the year, you can go in your garden and with each spadeful of dirt, dig up one glistening, red, active worm, about the size of a small lead pencil, you have no need for any plant fertilizer of any kind, and I am hopeful that you will have no need to be anxious about any plant pests. But, if you find no worms or a few that are coiled up in balls, or are pale in color or sluggish in their movements, then you soil is not proper.

"These things, my friends, are my experiment, and should any of you enter my gate and see my plants slowly dying, you may know wherein lies the trouble. If my efforts are successful, I shall phone you and ask for an opportunity to report to you. If unsuccessful, I shall reserve my thoughts about Sir Albert Howard, great English organic soil expert, who claims to have proven this theory both in England and in India, and to whom I am indebted for this idea."

When the British invaded Washington in the War of 1812, and set fire to buildings, Dolly Madison, the president's wife, carried some of the great White House treasures, including Washington's picture and the original draft of the Declaration of Independence, to safety.

"After four weeks, the contents should be moved into the second box, kept reasonably moist and allowed to ripen for a month or six weeks. As soon as it ripens, it should be applied to the garden. If it must be stored, it should be dried in the sun and kept in an open shed. * * * It is my hope that by adopting this methods of fertilization and abandoning the strong chemical fertilizers that I can build my plants up in strength to a point where they will be disease resistant. * * *

"For your camellia garden, let me suggest to you that better than any chemical set that man has ever devised, you can use the earthworms as your guide for a proper soil. If, in the fall of the year, you can go in your garden and with each spadeful of dirt, dig up one glistening, red, active worm, about the size of a small lead pencil, you have no need for any plant fertilizer of any kind, and I am hopeful that you will have no need to be anxious about any plant pests But, if you find no worms or a few that are coiled up in balls, or are pale in color or sluggish in their movements, then you soil is not proper.

"These things, my friends, are my experiment, and should any of you enter my gate and see my plants slowly dying, you may know wherein lies the trouble. If my efforts are successful, I shall phone you and ask for an opportunity to report to you. If unsuccessful, I shall reserve my thoughts about Sir Albert Howard, great English organic soil expert, who claims to have proven this theory both in England and in India, and to whom I am indebted for this idea."

When the British invaded Washington in the War of 1812, and set fire to buildings, Dolly Madison, the president's wife, carried some of the great White House treasures, including Washington's picture and the original draft of the Declaration of Independence, to safety.

Help Wanted—Now!

The past several years baseball fans of the Twin Cities —and many others who perhaps never saw a baseball game but who realize the civic value of such a facility—have been clamoring for a baseball park. Over this period of years the project has been the subject of discussion at meetings, the topic of conversation on street corners and it even has been made an issue in political campaigns. Everybody, it has seemed, agreed that Monroe, to keep pace with progress, MUST have a baseball park.

After several committees had failed to get beyond the organizational stage, the American Legion took the bull by the horns and formed a non-profit corporation to raise funds for construction of a baseball plant here, with some $75,000 as the ultimate goal. This movement has the public support of other veterans' organizations as well as numerous civic clubs, the city administration and the parish police jury.

Yet, despite the activity of the various Legion committees and the vocal demand for a baseball park here on the part of local citizens, the campaign has reached only about one-third of its quota after more than a month of effort by those who have been working on the project. This $25,000 will enable the post to let a contract for the building of a grandstand—a contract which will be let Monday night—but it isn't near enough to complete the park.

The Legion will redouble its efforts to reach its goal during the next week. J. H. Trousdale, commander of the L. B. Faulk post, said yesterday that contributions have been made by relatively few people and that the support of the general public is necessary if the drive is to succeed.

"We want everybody to have a part in this civic project," Mr. Trousdale said. "Contributions of $1, $5, and other small amounts are earnestly solicited and we urge the concerted support of the entire community."

In connection with the campaign, it might be well to point out again that the Legion group is a non-profit organization which expects to make no financial gain through the operation of the park. This corporation will not operate the baseball club if and when Monroe obtains a professional franchise or a semi-pro team is fielded. The park also will be available for use of local amatuer teams when there is no conflict with pro or semi-pro schedules.

Monroe certainly should be able to match strides with towns much smaller than ours. Only ten days or so ago New Iberia completed its baseball campaign by oversubscribing its quota of $50,000 by more than $20,000. Other smaller communities have had no difficulty in obtaining funds for this most important recreational facility.

The Legion committees have devoted much time and effort to this worthy cause. They deserve the wholehearted cooperation and support of the entire community.

The Role Of Heroes

When sportswriters recall the world series scandal of 1919 they often tell the story of the little boy and Joe Jackson, one of the Black Sox of the Chicago White Sox. The youthful fan is supposed to have approached Shoeless Joe with this tearful plea: "Say it ain't so, Joe."

This story is usually told to illustrate the responsibility that is supposed to be part of the sports hero's price of fame. Nor is it an isolated case. Leo Durocher, in his various excursions in and out of trouble, has more than once been reminded that he should set an example of upright living for our small fry. Other athletes have received the same admonition.

The inference is that the country's professional athletes receive a sort of honorary commission as scoutmaster when they make the headlines and the big money. This inference has taken on the solemn trappings of a national tradition with the passage of time.

But Bill Veeck, the president of the world champion Cleveland Indians, filed a minority report in a banquet speech the other night. He said he was tired of hearing talk about how sports and athletes build character.

"I wouldn't be here tonight just as a character builder," said Mr. Veeck. "You have to win to be invited to banquets."

We are inclined to agree with the Indians' head man. We feel safe in saying that few if any lives have been blighted by youthful disillusionment caused by the extracurricular behavior of professional athletes.

The late Babe Ruth was one of the greatest idols that sport has produced. He was a remarkable compound of strength, co-ordination, instinctive baseball sense and colorful personality.

But throughout his playing career, the Babe had a reputation of being a bad boy off the field—not evil or criminal, but irresponsible to a degree far beyond the limits of Sunday school standards. So far as we know, this did not diminish his stature as a public hero.

All this may not be too important, but it is a little unfair to the athletes. It's enough of a strain on the average pro's mentality to keep well enough in shape to play his best, please the boss and the fans, and justify his handsome salary. He shouldn't be saddled with the added job of crusading against juvenile delinquency—an assignment which understandably he might not even comprehend.

So far as we can learn, most delinquency arises from a child's home environment and treatment, not from his reaction to the off-limits escapades of ball players. The real defenses against delinquency are the home, the social and economic environment, the church and the school—perhaps roughly in that order. It might be well if we stopped shifting responsibility to young men who may be stronger in muscle than in brain, and who are simply earning a living in the best way they know how.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—Gloria Jean has settled (for less than half price) that $5000 lawsuit filed against her by New York agent William Lustig . . Time out for Veronica Lake, bedded by a virus infection . . , Anne Jeffreys is talking long-term contract with Warner Brothers; if she's signed, they'll hand her several assignments originally intended for Ann Sheridan . . . Wotzis about another mid-Western exhibitors' organization—the independent theatre operators of Michigan, this time—agreeing to boycott all future picture starring players involved in scandals?

MGM set workers report Judy Garland on a temperamental rampage again, with Director Robert Z. Leonard as the new target for her ire . . . Kristine Miller and William Scuyler have called off their altar date . . . Blue-pencil reports that Hillary Brooke and her recently divorced spouse, Jack Voglin, are reconciling; HE is all right but the current object of his attentions is his first wife. Miss Brooke was his second . . . Mrs. John Wayne, seriously ill last year, has been bedded since the holidays by a new malady.

Adolphe Menjou says he's been booked for a lecture tour this year, and pals are predicting that he'll fire both barrels at the Hollywood Commies . . Altar-bound: NBC's airways comic, Lennie Sherman, and cover-girl Susan George . . . Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are definitely set for a screen reunion in MGM's "Embassy For Brazil" . . . Romancing: Sylvia (Doug's widow) Fairbanks and Woolworth Donahue.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: Paramount's "Alias Nick Beal" (Ray Milland-Audrey Totter-Thomas Mitchell). Faustian drama, rich in entertainment value and high in moral tone . . . GOOD: United Artists' "The Lucky Stiff" (Dorothy Lamour-Brian Donlevy-Claire Trevor-Irene Hervey). Jack Benny's initial effort as a movie producer—and it's entertaining enough to win praise from Fred Allen . . Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" (Lloyd Nolan-Jane Wyatt-Audie Murphy). Juvenile delinquency is the subject, and the picture is one most audiences will applaud . . . Film Classics' "Alaska Patrol" (Richard Travis-Helen Westcott). A low budgeted "B," but it packs a lot of entertainment honey . . SO-SO: Monogram's "The Feathered Serpent" (Roland Winters-Keye Luke-Victor Sen Young). A slow spot in the Charlie Chan series . . . Warner Brothers' "Flaxy Martin" (Virginia Mayo-Zachary Scott-Dorothy Malone). Routine gangster stuff, boresome rather than exciting. . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Ray Milland in "Alias Nick Beal."

Amusing is the word for the verbal feuding between George Raft and Rudy Vallee—and not the least laughable of the remarks exchanged was George's retort, after Rudy had cast aspersions on his acting ability." Said the indignant Mr. Raft. "Rudy's criticisms are crude—and I don't like crude people." Anyway you look at it, that's an unfortunate statement when it comes from a guy who was the bosom pal of the late, notorious gangster, Bugsy Siegal.

I wonder what that mythical "visitor from Mars" might have thought of our American ways had he been present on a certain Hollywood street corner the other night and watched a "stunt" devised by radio's Art Linkletter to harvest contributions for the March of Dimes. Linkletter had Alan Young, who was in the dark about the whole thing, reported to that corner and solicited twenty-five cent donations. Each time $25 was rung up, the person making the final contribution got to sock Young with a custard pie. Young was a good sport and took the pies—fourteen of them during the course of the evening—with a happy smile. But still I'm wondering. The March of Dimes is one of the most worthwhile of all charities; probably the one that is closest to America's heart. Do we need pie-throwing to finance our battle against polio?

Ouch! What a berating I received, via yesterday's mail, from an Ingrid Bergman fan, who has jumped to the conclusion that I am a traitor who has become hostile to her idol. No charge could be more unfair. I still regard the beauteous Swede as the ne plus ultra of screen acting. I have maintained that Miss Bergman has been getting some bad advice—that her career is suffering because her salary demands are now too high for the purse of the average producer, and that her popularity will suffer in the future if she persists in flouting the fans who made her a favorite star. In short, while admiring her ability, I still consider her human enough to make an occasional mistake.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S COUSINS—Levi Lincoln (1782-1868) who was governor of Massachusetts from 1825 to 1834, and his brother Enoch (1788-1829) who was governor of Maine from 1827 to 1829, were the sons of Levi Lincoln, Sr. (1749-1820), who was governor of Massachusetts from 1808 to 1811. For three years the two brothers were governors of two different states at the same time. They were 4th cousins of President Lincoln, being, like him, descended from Samuel Lincoln of Norwich, England, who emigrated to the New World and settled in Hingham, Mass.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

A LITTLE TACT

A little tact eases a lot of woe in the household. It acts as oil on the machinery, preventing friction. It is needed by every member of the family, so each should learn to practice it.

Father returns in the evening after a mean day in the shop, a tiresome trip in the car or the train. His nerves are twitching and his stomach is grumbling. He longs for a moment's quiet and peace and his dinner.

The children are full of the day's happenings. The puppy fell into Mr. Jones' well and the teacher gave Tommy a slap. Did Daddy bring home the notebook Mary Ellen wanted? All in one loud attack as Father steps into the house.

Maybe Mother's day has been less than smooth. The children have been almost unmanageable, the electric power went off in the middle of the washing, the Ladies' Committee called unannounced and caught her in full battle array—wet apron, stringy hair and upset temper. Now what? A little tact.

Mother is head of the home. It is she upon whom falls the task of creating calm out of potential storm, so she begins early by quieting the children. She accomplishes that by giving each something to do that will make home more comfortable for Father's homecoming and the family's peace of mind.

Lay the table, tidy the living room, place Father's chair where he likes to have it. Place his belongings carefully on the table by his chair. Warn the children not to spring at Father and to hold their reports until after dinner. Warn them and require them to prepare for this family dinner time, so that it will be a time of peace no matter what has happened during the day.

Father, knowing well the conditions that are likely to meet him, must do his share of the job by being tactful, too. He ignores anything that is out of order and makes himself as agreeable, as appreciative as possible in his hungry, weary and irritable state.

If this looks like pampering Father, it is. Father needs pampering—loving and tactful care. How much is his presence in the family worth? A glance at the health statistics will show the alarming fact that fathers die before they should. Too many of them die of heart failure, or overstrain and worry. A little tact, a little training of the children in thoughtfulness, all the love and helpful service possible might hold Father in this world a bit longer. It's worth trying anyway.

Of all the qualities you would like your child to develop, obedience is perhaps the most desirable. Dr. Patri has written a very wise booklet on the subject which is No. 301, "Obedience."

Thurman Sensing,

Director of Research, Southern States Industrial Council:

DOWN SOUTH

MOTOR VEHICLES IN SOUTH

Perhaps more typical of the accomplishments possible under the American free enterprise system than any other is that illustrated by the automobile industry. During 1948, just 55 years after the first successful gasoline-engine automobile had been completed in the United States, the 100 millionth vehicle rolled off the assembly lines. During those years a total of 24 million vehicles had been built in all of the rest of the world combined. In the United States there is one automobile for every five persons, compared with one automobile for every 231 persons in the rest of the world. The United States, with 6 per cent of the world's population, owns 72 per cent of the world's motor vehicles.

This could only have happened under the system of economic freedom which is the basis of our system of government. In other lands, cartels and government controls have prevented competition in business, have suppressed individual initiative, and have limited production to class markets instead of mass markets. In our land, under the competitive profit system, there has been an incentive to make better automobiles and make them cheaper. The results under the two systems are obvious.

The highest production year in our history was 1929, when 5,358,000 vehicles were produced. However, the year 1948 came within 76,000 of this number, with a production of 5,282,000 vehicles, and with adequate supplies of steel would have surpassed the 1929 production. The number of motor vehicles in use at the end of 1948 in the United States was approximately 41,000,000, composed of 33,300,000 passenger cars and 7,700,000 trucks and buses.

Complete registration figures for 1948 are not available, but the registrations for 1947 showed that passenger car registrations for that year, south, and that the southern states showed the largest percentage increases in truck use. The actual 1947 registrations for the southern states are shown in the following table:

	Passenger Cars	Buses	Motor Trucks	Total
Alabama	367,958	5,165	125,956	492,079

It, of course, takes immense amounts of raw materials to produce five million motor vehicles. Of particular interest to the south, a predominantly agricultural region, is the fact that such production in a year uses up agricultural products grown on 2 1/2 million acres, to make paints, lubricants, seat coverings and other preparations. It takes 345 million pounds of cotton, 2 1/2 million bushels of corn, 12 million gallons of molasses, 160 million pounds of wool, 10 million pounds of turpentine, and sizeable amounts of beeswax, flaxseed, paper and lumber.

The importance of this industry in our economy is additionally emphasized by the fact that it uses half the malleable iron produced in the United States, 75 per cent of all plate glass, 80 per cent of the crude rubber, 90 per cent of the gasoline, 68 per cent of all upholstery leather, 37 per cent of the mohair, 23 per cent of the nickel. It is the world's largest user of steel, and consumes huge amounts of materials like aluminum, copper, lead and plastics.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE COMMUNIST TRIAL

The Communists now being tried in New York have raised an issue which needs the widest discussion.

The 12 Communists being tried constitute the national committee of the Communist party of America. One of them, William Z. Foster, the chairman, is ill and has been severed for a separate trial. The indictment does not of course, make them guilty; it only stipulates offenses. The indictment was drawn by a grand jury after devoting 18 months to sifting a mass of material concerning a Communist conspiracy to overthrow the government of the United States. This is the same grand jury that indicted Alger Hiss for perjury.

The 12 indicted Communists are to be tried before a trial jury still to be sworn in. The Communists have raised this issue: both the grand jury and the trial jury are illegal because improperly drawn, as Negroes, Jews, laborers and poor people are not on them.

The law only provides that they should be American citizen.

The fundamental question raised by the Communists is, what kind of people are we? Are we Americans or are we Jews, Catholics, Protestants, Negroes, whites, nisei, Italo-Americans, workers, capitalists, management, labor leaders? Are we already broken up into little segments? Surely no nation so divided can long endure.

The fifth amendment to the Constitution provides:

"No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger. . . ."

The courts have held that ". . . a change in the indictment deprives the court of the power of proceeding to try the accused."

But what happens if the grand jury is found to be illegal? Then of course, the indictment would be quashed. Otherwise, a new indictment has to be obtained. If the trial jury should be found illegal, then that jury is dismissed and another must be found.

". . . The rule as now stated is is found to be illegal? Then, of course, that a person has been in jeopardy when he is regularly charged with a crime before a tribunal properly organized and competent to try him—certainly so when acquitted. . . ." These men are now charged before a properly constituted court, but they contend that it was done by an illegal grand jury. They contend that no grand or petit jury in New York can be legal because of the current procedure. What they are actually fighting for is the death of the indictment. And should they succeed, thousands of criminal cases in United States courts may have to be reopened.

Grand juries and trial juries, in this area, are "hand-picked." The reason ought to be obvious: In a large city, where neighbor does not know neighbor, it is possible to have juries of bums, loafers, crooks, scoundrels, and bribe-takers. Also, while it is true that a man is to be tried by his peers —a word that means "equals"—it is also true that in a city of 8,000,000 population, it is next to impossible to get intelligent "equals" by a hit-or-miss method.

How to pick jurors is a pretty tough problem. Some do it out of the telephone book, from voting lists, from local tax lists. Judge John C. Knox, presiding justice of the federal court in the southern district of New York, instituted a method that is both representative and equitable, preference being given to responsibility, education, intelligence. No questions of political, racial or religious affiliation arise.

Someone has to decide what constitutes the "best." Is it "best" that members of Marcantonio's clubs should fill the panels? Somebody has to decide on a formula. The officers of the court make the decisions.

Some lawyers cannot be blamed for objecting to intelligence on the juries when it would serve their clients to leave dopes, bums and bribe-takers on the juries. But the Communists have raised altogether a different issue, namely, that we are not a nation but a congeries of groups. That idea ought not to be tolerated. It is destructive.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus began His ministry at home, which was the proper and natural place to begin, but also the most difficult.

His sayings, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country," and "A man's foes shall be those of his own household," expresses a truth widely exemplified in human experience. How many men of genius have had to win their way and fame against the strong opposition of parents, who designed them for something else! How many men of achievement and fame won in the outside world have received belated honor from communities that regarded them with suspicion in their youth!

Jesus, of course, did not have the embarrassment of the average youth, who rises to preach in his own home town. He had lived an exemplary life. As Luke tells us, He had increased in favor with man, as well as with God. There were no unsavory escapades, or unworthy incidents, such as might become all too vividly remembered by a youth speaking even in deep sincerity to those who had known him well.

But to preach in Nazareth, nevertheless, was not easy for the Master. His own brothers, as we know from John 7:1-5, did not believe in Him, or His professed mission, although at least two of them later became earnest Christians and leaders in the church.

The favor with which His fellow townsmen had viewed Him soon disappeared as Jesus announced that mission and ministry; and with the blindness and prejudiced zeal that have been the curse of the otherwise religiously earnest all through the history of religion, they not only rejected Him, but they sought to throw Him from the brow of a nearby hill and kill Him.

Jesus must have sensed these dangers, for "He knew what was in man." But He dared to face them, and to declare in the place where He was brought up, the consciousness of the mission and ministry to which He had been called, to fulfill the prophecy of Isaiah. "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

Why should such words, or such a claim, have moved anybody to anger? If He who announced such a ministry could not perform it, where was anyone the worse? Gamaliel had much better sense and wisdom, "If the work be of man it shall come to naught; if it be of God ye cannot prevail against it."

The Gospels tell the story of how those words spoken in Nazareth, and the ministry begun there, were vindicated in all that the Master said and did. In teaching, preaching and healing He fulfilled all that a great prophet had declared of God's plan and purpose.

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

REACTION TO RUSSIA

Editors agree that the timing of the Russian "peace offensive" proves it a tactic to prevent or soften specific western moves. And most editors agree that we should simply await proof of Russia's sincerity by action. However, a few note that Russia might be facing internal and satellite difficulties which we should explore for any possibilities of peace—without appeasement and with Russian proof of sincerity through action.

New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "U. S. statesmen have been expecting the Kremlin to try to allay American and western suspicions just at this time . . . Congress is preparing now to take up plans for military defense, the Marshall plan, and a new lend-lease to implement the projected Atlantic security pact. The Soviets tried a similar peace offensive last year when congress was debating the ECA appropriation . . . If Moscow really wants to assure us of communism's desire for peace, there is an immediate . . . test: Call off the Berlin blockade."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer (Ind.-Rep.): "Since Communist leaders in Italy and France suddenly launched a new 'peace offensive' . . . there have been indications that this switch in the Communist line is a regional one, for use mainly in western Europe . . . There have been no similar signs of conciliation in Russia itself or its immediate satellites. Moscow goes right on consolidating its power and Pravda and Izvestia go right on denouncing the Marshall plan and American 'imperialism.'"

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "Stalin is having trouble . . . Yugoslavia is defying his dictatorship and flirting with the west. Czechoslovakian prosperity slumps. Poland is restive. But it is vastly important that Stalin is succeeding in the . . . mideast and Asia . . . Stalin will be sitting pretty if his 'peace' ruse lulls the democracies into appeasement while he advances in Asia and reorganizes in Europe . . . The trick will not work unless the western governments have forgotten Soviet treachery in similiar moves in the past."

Boston (Mass.) Herald (Ind.): "The new 'peace' line is most probably directed at undermining the proposed north Atlantic pact . . . Also . . . having failed to stop the (Marshall) plan, Communists may now be hoping to get some of its benefits. Or just possibility, the Communists may feel that they have already lost the fight for western Europe and want to reopen negotiations on the treaties . . . Whatever the purpose of the new line, the western government will be sure not to take it at face value."

New York Star (Ind.): "The recent gestures from the Russian-dominated world have been friendly, peaceful. How sincere they were, we do not know; maybe they were phonies. But it would have cost us nothing in prestige, nor wealth, nor security to have tried to find out. It is possible that by timing those gestures before Mr. Truman's inauguration, the Russians, too, were seeking a way off the hook."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "The troubles the Soviet government is facing at home and abroad are formidable. The west is making encouraging progress in recovery . . . Firmness and increasing strength in the west may have made for a shifting of Russian tactics. But if that turns out to be the case, any opportunities thus offered for improvement in the world situation should be dealt with in the realization that the Russian leaders are still dominated by their own interests and purposes."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind. Rep.): "It is . . . just a stupid wickedness in the politburo . . . or are not the members of that body themselves the products of a system—of ideas, pressures, backgrounds—which make it as humanly inevitable that they should act as they do as it is that democratic-capitalist statesmen should act in their way? This is a very serious question . . . It is not a question of 'willingness' to live in peace, but a question of trying in some very much more positive way to discover just how antipathetic systems can live in peace."

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.): Boston, Mass.: "The west today is in the position of Nehemiah, who could not leave off building his wall for doubtful discussion with men of undisclosed intention . . . The possibility that western progress toward its goals is winning, if not Soviet good will, at least Soviet respect is all to the good. Much remains to be done for western stability that need not be done against Russia or anyone else. It is on this task and opportunity that attention should be fixed."

Hal Boyle's

NOTEBOOK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Ole Massa with the mint julep in his hand don't live here any more.

Yes, suh, there was an old south—there really was. But now, yes, suh, there's a new south—there really is.

And the new south is right here, springing up like danderlions, getting purty as a speckled pup on a red wagon. Of course, those hammerheads up nawth don't know the new south is arriving.

But, you know, it's funnty thing—a visitor gets the odd feeling the people down this way don't realize how far they're gone in the direction they're going.

They have a luncheon or banquet, yes suh, they generally or certainly do. And they generally and almost certainly also will have at least one speaker who will discuss "The New South." Well, it's funny thing about that speech. It is pretty likely to bring up the roses and raptures of the old south. And everybody gets chunky-in-the-throat and misty-eyed over the glamorous past.

And then the speaker, in a brief and defiant finale, comes out flatly with a prediction the "new south everybody's been waiting for is on the way, sure as justice."

As a Missouri-born stranger whose folks got here from Ireland too late to get mixed up in the America's famous family quarrel, I claim I am as unprejudiced as a man can be who believes Robert E. Lee got directed to the wrong court house at Appomattox.

My immigrant grandfather, who came from southern Ireland, stayed out of this foreign American fuss until he learned that the south had "lost." From then on he reared his 17 children in the faith that the south must have been right. But he didn't blame Abraham Lincoln or General Grant. He blamed the British. He knew they were responsible for southern Ireland's plight, and he was sure they had a topic allergy here, too.

All that was long ago if not faraway, of course, and that is what I think of when I hear these grandsons of one of the worst military occupations in history talk about the "new south."

I have seen two recent American overseas military occupations—in Germany and Japan—and I am sure they were softer than the occupation the pore south suffered. After all, if your mother-in-law moves in, doesn't she muscle there longer than anybody?

But that brings me back to the real point—which is, what happens after mammy-in-law, moves out? Well, it is hard to realize. And I think it is hard for the south to realize that it is freer than it knows—and maybe going farther than it understands.

Henry Grady, the beloved southern editor, once wrote: "The south will come into its own when the fields are green in winter."

But that he meant the south would have gotten away from the multiple slavery of one crop-cotton. Well, today the fields of Alabama, a key state of the old south, are green. The cattle fatten where they never grazed before.

There aren't so many leaning tar and tin covered wood shanties wearying a hillside. Brick buildings are going up, factories are opening. People, black and white, are coming home with more take-home money. School buildings for the poor white, the poor black, are rising in every area. They are wiping out the long dark shadow on the slow soft land.

A man says, "some day my boy is going to grow up and take over from me," but he never really knows just when it happens.

And that—I think—is the way it is about the old south and the new south. The new south is here, happening every day to the people still scanning the horizon for it to come.

Help Wanted—Now!

The past several years baseball fans of the Twin Cities —and many others who perhaps never saw a baseball game but who realize the civic value of such a facility—have been clamoring for a baseball park. Over this period of years the project has been the subject of discussion at meetings, the topic of conversation on street corners and it even has been made an issue in political campaigns. Everybody, it has seemed, agreed that Monroe, to keep pace with progress, MUST have a baseball park.

After several committees had failed to get beyond the organizational stage, the American Legion took the bull by the horns and formed a non-profit corporation to raise funds for construction of a baseball plant here, with some $75,000 as the ultimate goal. This movement has the public support of other veterans' organizations as well as numerous civic clubs, the city administration and the parish police jury.

Yet, despite the activity of the various Legion committes and the vocal demand for a baseball park here on the part of local citizens, the campaign has reached only about one-third of its quota after more than a month of effort by those who have been working on the project. This $25,000 will enable the post to let a contract for the building of a grandstand—a contract which will be let Monday night—but it isn't near enough to complete the park.

The Legion will redouble its efforts to reach its goal during the next week. J. H. Trousdale, commander of the L. B. Faulk post, said yesterday that contributions have been made by relatively few people and that the support of the general public is necessary if the drive is to succeed.

"We want everybody to have a part in this civic project," Mr. Trousdale said. "Contributions of $1, $5, and other small amounts are earnestly solicited and we urge the concerted support of the entire community."

In connection with the campaign, it might be well to point out again that the Legion group is a non-profit organization which expects to make no financial gain through the operation of the park. This corporation will not operate the baseball club if and when Monroe obtains a professional franchise or a semi-pro team is fielded. The park also will be available for use of local amatuer teams when there is no conflict with pro or semi-pro schedules.

Monroe certainly should be able to match strides with towns much smaller than ours. Only ten days or so ago New Iberia completed its baseball campaign by oversubscribing its quota of $50,000 by more than $20,000. Other smaller communities have had no difficulty in obtaining funds for this most important recreational facility.

The Legion committees have devoted much time and effort to this worthy cause. They deserve the wholehearted cooperation and support of the entire community.

The Role Of Heroes

When sportswriters recall the world series scandal of 1919 they often tell the story of the little boy and Joe Jackson, one of the Black Sox of the Chicago White Sox. The youthful fan is supposed to have approached Shoeless Joe with this tearful plea: "Say it ain't so, Joe."

This story is usually told to illustrate the responsibility that is supposed to be part of the sports hero's price of fame. Nor is it an isolated case. Leo Durocher, in his various excursions in and out of trouble, has more than once been reminded that he should set an example of upright living for our small fry. Other athletes have received the same admonition.

The inference is that the country's professional athletes receive a sort of honorary commission as scoutmaster when they make the headlines and the big money. This inference has taken on the solemn trappings of a national tradition with the passage of time.

But Bill Veeck, the president of the world champion Cleveland Indians, filed a minority report in a banquet speech the other night. He said he was tired of hearing talk about how sports and athletes build character.

"I wouldn't be here tonight just as a character builder," said Mr. Veeck. "You have to win to be invited to banquets."

We are inclined to agree with the Indians' head man. We feel safe in saying that few if any lives have been blighted by youthful disillusionment caused by the extracurricular behavior of professional athletes.

The late Babe Ruth was one of the greatest idols that sport has produced. He was a remarkable compound of strength, co-ordination, instinctive baseball sense and colorful personality.

But throughout his playing career, the Babe had a reputation of being a bad boy off the field—not evil or criminal, but irresponsible to a degree far beyond the limits of Sunday school standards. So far as we know, this did not diminish his stature as a public hero.

All this may not be too important, but it is a little unfair to the athletes. It's enough of a strain on the average pro's mentality to keep well enough in shape to play his best, please the boss and the fans, and justify his handsome salary. He shouldn't be saddled with the added job of crusading against juvenile delinquency—an assignment which understandably he might not even comprehend.

So far as we can learn, most delinquency arises from a child's home environment and treatment, not from his reaction to the off-limits escapades of ball players. The real defenses against delinquency are the home, the social and economic environment, the church and the school—perhaps roughly in that order. It might be well if we stopped shifting responsibility to young men who may be stronger in muscle than in brain, and who are simply earning a living in the best way they know how.

Jimmie Fidler: IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—Gloria Jean has settled (for less than half price) that $5000 lawsuit filed against her by New York agent William Lustig . . Time out for Veronica Lake, bedded by a virus infection . . , Anne Jeffreys is talking long-term contract with Warner Brothers; if she's signed, they'll hand her several assignments originally intended for Ann Sheridan . . . Wotzis about another mid-Western exhibitors' organization—the independent theatre operators of Michigan, this time—agreeing to boycott all future picture starring players involved in scandals?

MGM set workers report Judy Garland on a temperamental rampage again, with Director Robert Z. Leonard as the new target for her ire . . . Kristine Miller and William Scuyler have called off their altar date . . . Bluepencil reports that Hillary Brooke and her recently divorced spouse, Jack Voglin, are reconciling; HE is all right but the current object of his attentions is his first wife. Miss Brooke was his second . . . Mrs. John Wayne, seriously ill last year, has been bedded since the holidays by a new malady.

Adolphe Menjou says he's been booked for a lecture tour this year, and pals are predicting that he'll fire both barrels at the Hollywood Commies . . Altar-bound: NBC's airways comic, Lennie Sherman, and cover-girl Susan George . . . Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are definitely set for a screen reunion in MGM's "Embassy For Brazil" . . . Romancing: Sylvia (Doug's widow) Fairbanks and Woolworth Donahue.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: Paramount's "Alias Nick Beal" (Ray Milland-Audrey Totter-Thomas Mitchell). Faustian drama, rich in entertainment value and high in moral tone . . . GOOD: United Artists' "The Lucky Stiff" (Dorothy Lamour-Brian Donlevy-Claire Trevor-Irene Hervey). Jack Benny's initial effort as a movie producer—and it's entertaining enough to win praise from Fred Allen . . Allied Artists' "Bad Boy" (Lloyd Nolan-Jane Wyatt-Audie Murphy). Juvenile delinquency is the subject, and the picture is one most audiences will applaud . . . Film Classics' "Alaska Patrol" (Richard Travis-Helen Westcott). A low budgeted "B," but it packs a lot of entertainment honey . . SO-SO: Monogram's "The Feathered Serpent" (Roland Winters-Keye Luke-Victor Sen Young). A slow spot in the Charlie Chan series . . . Warner Brothers' "Flaxy Martin" (Virginia Mayo-Zachary Scott-Dorothy Malone). Routine gangster stuff, boresome rather than exciting. . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Ray Milland in "Alias Nick Beal."

Amusing is the word for the verbal feuding between George Raft and Rudy Vallee—and not the least laughable of the remarks exchanged was George's retort, after Rudy had cast aspersions on his acting ability." Said the indignant Mr. Raft. "Rudy's criticisms are crude—and I don't like crude people." Anyway you look at it, that's an unfortunate statement when it comes from a guy who was the bosom pal of the late, notorious gangster, Bugsy Siegal.

I wonder what that mythical "visitor from Mars" might have thought of our American ways had he been present on a certain Hollywood street corner the other night and watched a "stunt" devised by radio's Art Linkletter to harvest contributions for the March of Dimes. Linkletter had Alan Young, who was in the dark about the whole thing, reported to that corner and solicited twenty-five cent donations. Each time $25 was rung up, the person making the final contribution got to sock Young with a custard pie. Young was a good sport and took the pies—fourteen of them during the course of the evening—with a happy smile. But still I'm wondering. The March of Dimes is one of the most worthwhile of all charities; probably the one that is closest to America's heart. Do we need pie-throwing to finance our battle against polio?

Ouch! What a berating I received, via yesterday's mail, from an Ingrid Bergman fan, who has jumped to the conclusion that I am a traitor who has become hostile to her idol. No charge could be more unfair. I still regard the beauteous Swede as the ne plus ultra of screen acting. I have maintained that Miss Bergman has been getting some bad advice—that her career is suffering because her salary demands are now too high for the purse of the average producer, and that her popularity will suffer in the future if she persists in flouting the fans who made her a favorite star. In short, while admiring her ability, I still consider her human enough to make an occasional mistake.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S COUSINS—Levi Lincoln (1782-1868) who was governor of Massachusetts from 1825 to 1834, and his brother Enoch (1788-1829) who was governor of Maine from 1827 to 1829, were the sons of Levi Lincoln, Sr. (1749-1820), who was governor of Massachusetts from 1808 to 1811. For three years the two brothers were governors of two different states at the same time. They were 4th cousins of President Lincoln, being, like him, descended from Samuel Lincoln of Norwich, England, who emigrated to the New World and settled in Hingham, Mass.

Angelo Patri: OUR CHILDREN

A LITTLE TACT

A little tact eases a lot of woe in the household. It acts as oil on the machinery, preventing friction. It is needed by every member of the family, so each should learn to practice it.

Father returns in the evening after a mean day in the shop, a tiresome trip in the car or the train. His nerves are twitching and his stomach is grumbling. He longs for a moment's quiet and peace and his dinner.

The children are full of the day's happenings. The puppy fell into Mr. Jones' well and the teacher gave Tommy a slap. Did Daddy bring home the notebook Mary Ellen wanted? All in one loud attack as Father steps into the house.

Maybe Mother's day has been less than smooth. The children have been almost unmanageable, the electric power went off in the middle of the washing, the Ladies' Committee called unannounced and caught her in full battle array—wet apron, stringy hair and upset temper. Now what? A little tact.

Mother is head of the home. It is she upon whom falls the task of creating calm out of potential storm, so she begins early by quieting the children. She accomplishes that by giving each something to do that will make home more comfortable for Father's homecoming and the family's peace of mind.

Lay the table, tidy the living room, place Father's chair where he likes to have it. Place his belongings carefully on the table by his chair. Warn the children not to spring at Father and to hold their reports until after dinner. Warn them and require them to prepare for this family dinner time, so that it will be a time of peace no matter what has happened during the day.

Father, knowing well the conditions that are likely to meet him, must do his share of the job by being tactful, too. He ignores anything that is out of order and makes himself as agreeable, as appreciative as possible in his hungry, weary and irritable state.

If this looks like pampering Father, it is. Father needs pampering—loving and tactful care. How much is his presence in the family worth? A glance at the health statistics will show the alarming fact that fathers die before they should. Too many of them die of heart failure, or overstrain and worry. A little tact, a little training of the children in thoughtfulness, all the love and helpful service possible might hold Father in this world a bit longer. It's worth trying anyway.

Of all the qualities you would like your child to develop, obedience is perhaps the most desirable. Dr. Patri has written a very wise booklet on the subject which is No. 301, "Obedience."

Director of Research, Southern States Industrial Council:

MOTOR VEHICLES IN SOUTH

Perhaps more typical of the accomplishments possible under the American free enterprise system than any other is that illustrated by the automobile industry. During 1948, just 55 years after the first successful gasoline-engine automobile had been completed in the United States, the 100 millionth vehicle rolled off the assembly lines. During those years a total of 24 million vehicles had been built in all of the rest of the world combined. In the United States there is one automobile for every five persons, compared with one automobile for every 231 persons in the rest of the world. The United States, with 6 per cent of the world's population, owns 72 per cent of the world's motor vehicles.

This could only have happened under the system of economic freedom which is the basis of our system of government. In other lands, cartels and government controls have prevented competition in business, have suppressed individual initiative, and have limited production to class markets instead of mass markets. In our land, under the competitive profit system, there has been an incentive to make better automobiles and make them cheaper. The results under the two systems are obvious.

The highest production year in our history was 1929, when 5,358,000 vehicles were produced. However, the year 1948 came within 76,000 of this number, with a production of 5,282,000 vehicles, and with adequate supplies of steel would have surpassed the 1929 production. The number of motor vehicles in use at the end of 1948 in the United States was approximately 41,000,000, composed of 33,300,000 passenger cars and 7,700,000 trucks and buses.

Complete registration figures for 1948 are not available, but the registrations for 1947 showed that passenger car registrations for that year, south, and that the southern states showed the largest percentage increases in truck use. The actual 1947 registrations for the southern states are shown in the following table:

	Passenger Cars	Motor Buses	Trucks	Total

It, of course, takes immense amounts of raw materials to produce five million motor vehicles. Of particular interest to the south, a predominantly agricultural region, is the fact that such production in a year uses up agricultural products grown on 2 1/2 million acres, to make paints, lubricants, seat coverings and other preparations. It takes 345 million pounds of cotton, 2 1/2 million bushels of corn, 12 million gallons of molasses, 160 million pounds of wool, 10 million pounds of turpentine, and sizeable amounts of beeswax, flaxseed, paper and lumber.

The importance of this industry in our economy is additionally emphasized by the fact that it uses half the malleable iron produced in the United States, 75 per cent of all plate glass, 80 per cent of the crude rubber, 90 per cent of the gasoline, 68 per cent of all upholstery leather, 37 per cent of the mohair, 23 per cent of the nickel. It is the world's largest user of steel, and consumes huge amounts of materials like aluminum, copper, lead and plastics.

George E. Sokolsky: THESE DAYS

THE COMMUNIST TRIAL

The Communists now being tried in New York have raised an issue which needs the widest discussion.

The 12 Communists being tried constitute the national committee of the Communist party of America. One of them, William Z. Foster, the chairman, is ill and has been severed for a separate trial. The indictment does not of course, make them guilty; it only stipulates offenses. The indictment was drawn by a grand jury after devoting 18 months to sifting a mass of material concerning a Communist conspiracy to overthrow the government of the United States. This is the same grand jury that indicted Alger Hiss for perjury.

The 12 indicted Communists are to be tried before a trial jury still to be sworn in. The Communists have raised this issue: both the grand jury and the trial jury are illegal because improperly drawn, as Negroes, Jews, laborers and poor people are not on them.

The law only provides that they should be American citizen.

The fundamental question raised by the Communists is, what kind of people are we? Are we Americans or are we Jews, Catholics, Protestants, Negroes, whites, nisei, Italo-Americans, workers, capitalists, management, labor leaders? Are we already broken up into little segments? Surely no nation so divided can long endure.

The fifth amendment to the Constitution provides:

"No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger. . . ."

The courts have held that ". . . a change in the indictment deprives the court of the power of proceeding to try the accused."

But what happens if the grand jury is found to be illegal? Then of course, the indictment would be quashed. Otherwise, a new indictment has to be obtained. If the trial jury should be found illegal, then that jury is dismissed and another must be found.

". . . The rule as now stated is is found to be illegal? Then, of course, that a person has been in jeopardy when he is regularly charged with a crime before a tribunal properly organized and competent to try him—certainly so when acquitted. . . ."

These men are now charged before a properly constituted court, but they contend that it was done by an illegal grand jury. They contend that no grand or petit jury in New York can be legal because of the current procedure. What they are actually fighting for is the death of the indictment. And should they succeed, thousands of criminal cases in United States courts may have to be reopened.

Grand juries and trial juries, in this area, are 'hand-picked." The reason ought to be obvious: In a large city, where neighbor does not know neighbor, it is possible to have juries of bums, loafers, crooks, scoundrels, and bribe-takers. Also, while it is true that a man is to be tried by his peers —a word that means "equals"—it is also true that in a city of 8,000,000 population, it is next to impossible to get intelligent "equals" by a hit-or-miss method.

How to pick jurors is a pretty tough problem. Some do it out of the telephone book, from voting lists, from local tax lists. Judge John C. Knox, presiding justice of the federal court in the southern district of New York, instituted a method that is both representative and equitable, preference being given to responsibility, education, intelligence. No questions of political, racial or religious affiliation arise.

Someone has to decide what constitutes the "best." Is it "best" that members of Marcantonio's clubs should fill the panels? Somebody has to decide on a formula. The officers of the court make the decisions.

Some lawyers cannot be blamed for objecting to intelligence on the juries when it would serve their clients to leave dopes, bums and bribe-takers on the juries. But the Communists have raised altogether a different issue, namely, that we are not a nation but a congeries of groups. That idea ought not to be tolerated. It is destructive.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.: SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus began His ministry at home, which was the proper and natural place to begin, but also the most difficult.

His sayings, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country," and "A man's foes shall be those of his own household," expresses a truth widely exemplified in human experience. How many men of genius have had to win their way and fame against the strong opposition of parents, who designed them for something else! How many men of achievement and fame won in the outside world have received belated honor from communities that regarded them with suspicion in their youth!

Jesus, of course, did not have the embarrassment of the average youth, who rises to preach in his own home town. He had lived an exemplary life. As Luke tells us, He had increased in favor with man, as well as with God. There were no unsavory escapades, or unworthy incidents, such as might become all too vividly remembered by a youth speaking even in deep sincerity to those who had known him well.

But to preach in Nazareth, nevertheless, was not easy for the Master. His own brothers, as we know from John 7:1-5, did not believe in Him, or His professed mission, although at least two of them later became earnest Christians and leaders in the church.

The favor with which His fellow townsmen had viewed Him soon disappeared as Jesus announced that mission and ministry; and with the blindness and prejudiced zeal that have been the curse of the otherwise religiously earnest all through the history of religion, they not only rejected Him, but they sought to throw Him from the brow of a nearby hill and kill Him.

Jesus must have sensed these dangers, for "He knew what was in man." But He dared to face them, and to declare in the place where He was brought up, the consciousness of the mission and ministry to which He had been called, to fulfill the prophecy of Isaiah. "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

Why should such words, or such a claim, have moved anybody to anger? If He who announced such a ministry could not perform it, where was anyone the worse? Gamaliel had much better sense and wisdom, "If the work be of man it shall come to naught; if it be of God ye cannot prevail against it."

The Gospels tell the story of how those words spoken in Nazareth, and the ministry begun there, were vindicated in all that the Master said and did. In teaching, preaching and healing He fulfilled all that a great prophet had declared of God's plan and purpose.

What Others Say: EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

REACTION TO RUSSIA

Editors agree that the timing of the Russian "peace offensive" proves it a tactic to prevent or soften specific western moves. And most editors agree that we should simply await proof of Russia's sincerity by action. However, a few note that Russia might be facing internal and satellite difficulties which we should explore for any possibilities of peace—without appeasement and with Russian proof of sincerity through action.

New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "U. S. statesmen have been expecting the Kremlin to try to allay American and western suspicions just at this time . . . Congress is preparing now to take up plans for military defense, the Marshall plan, and a new lend-lease to implement the projected Atlantic security pact. The Soviets tried a similar peace offensive last year when congress was debating the ECA appropriation . . . If Moscow really wants to assure us of communism's desire for peace, there is an immediate . . . test: Call off the Berlin blockade."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer (Ind.-Rep.): "Since Communist leaders in Italy and France suddenly launched a new 'peace offensive' . . . there have been indications that this switch in the Communist line is a regional one, for use mainly in western Europe . . . There have been no similar signs of conciliation in Russia itself or its immediate satellites. Moscow goes right on consolidating its power and Pravda and Izvestia go right on denouncing the Marshall plan and American 'imperialism.'"

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "Stalin is having trouble . . . Yugoslavia is defying his dictatorship and flirting with the west Czechoslovakian prosperity slumps. Poland is restive. But it is vastly important that Stalin is succeeding in the . . . mideast and Asia . . . Stalin will be sitting pretty if his 'peace' ruse lulls the democracies into appeasement while he advances in Asia and reorganizes in Europe . . . The trick will not work unless the western governments have forgotten Soviet treachery in similiar moves in the past."

Boston (Mass.) Herald (Ind.): "The new 'peace' line is most probably directed at undermining the proposed north Atlantic pact . . . Also . . . having failed to stop the (Marshall) plan, Communists may now be hoping to get some of its benefits. Or just possibility, the Communists may feel that they have already lost the fight for western Europe and want to reopen negotiations on the treaties . . . Whatever the purpose of the new line, the western government will be sure not to take it at face value."

New York Star (Ind.): "The recent gestures from the Russian-dominated world have been friendly, peaceful. How sincere they were, we do not know; maybe they were phonies. But it would have cost us nothing in prestige, nor wealth, nor security to have tried to find out. It is possible that by timing those gestures before Mr. Truman's inauguration, the Russians, too, were seeking a way off the hook."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "The troubles the Soviet government is facing at home and abroad are formidable. The west is making encouraging progress in recovery . . . Firmness and increasing strength in the west may have made for a shifting of Russian tactics. But if that turns out to be the case, any opportunities thus offered for improvement in the world situation should be dealt with in the realization that the Russian leaders are still dominated by their own interests and purposes."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind. Rep.): "It is . . . just a stupid wickedness in the politburo . . . or are not the members of that body themselves the products of a system—of ideas, pressures, backgrounds—which make it as humanly inevitable that they should act as they do as it is that democratic-capitalist statesmen should act in their way? This is a very serious question . . . It is not a question of 'willingness' to live in peace, but a question of trying in some very much more positive way to discover just how antipathetic systems can live in peace."

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.), Boston, Mass.: "The west today is in the position of Nehemiah, who could not leave off building his wall for doubtful discussion with men of undisclosed intention . . . The possibility that western progress toward its goals is winning, if not Soviet good will, at least Soviet respect is all to the good. Much remains to be done for western stability that need not be done against Russia or anyone else. It is on this task and opportunity that attention should be fixed."

Hal Boyle's NOTEBOOK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Ole Massa with the mint julep in his hand don't live here any more.

Yes, suh, there was an old south—there really was. But now, yes, suh, there's a new south—there really is.

And the new south is right here, springing up like danderlions, getting purty as a speckled pup on a red wagon. Of course, those hammerheads up nawth don't know the new south is arriving.

But, you know, it's funnty thing—a visitor gets the odd feeling the people down this way don't realize how far they're gone in the direction they're going.

They have a luncheon or banquet, yes suh, they generally or certainly do. And they generally and almost certainly also will have at least one speaker who will discuss "The New South." Well, it's funny thing about that speech. It is pretty likely to bring up the roses and raptures of the old south. And everybody gets chunky-in-the-throat and misty-eyed over the glamorous past.

And then the speaker, in a brief and defiant finale, comes out flatly with a prediction the "new south everybody's been waiting for is on the way, sure as justice."

As a Missouri-born stranger whose folks got here from Ireland too late to get mixed up in the America's famous family quarrel, I claim I am as unprejudiced as a man can be who believes Robert E. Lee got directed to the wrong court house at Appomattox.

My immigrant grandfather, who came from southern Ireland, stayed out of this foreign American fuss until he learned that the south had "lost." From then on he reared his 17 children in the faith that the south must have been right. But he didn't blame Abraham Lincoln or General Grant. He blamed the British. He knew they were responsible for southern Ireland's plight, and he was sure they had a topic allergy here, too.

All that was long ago if not faraway, of course, and that is what I think of when I hear these grandsons of one of the worst military occupations in history talk about the "new south."

I have seen two recent American overseas military occupations—in Germany and Japan—and I am sure they were softer than the occupation the pore south suffered. After all, if your mother-in-law moves in, doesn't she muscle there longer than anybody?

But that brings me back to the real point—which is, what happens after mammy-in-law moves out? Well, it is hard to realize. And I think it is hard for the south to realize that it is freer than it knows—and maybe going farther than it understands.

Henry Grady, the beloved southern editor, once wrote: "The south will come into its own when the fields are green in winter."

But that he meant the south would have gotten away from the multiple slavery of one crop-cotton. Well, today the fields of Alabama, a key state of the old south, are green. The cattle fatten where they never grazed before.

There aren't so many leaning tar and tin covered wood shanties wearying a hillside. Brick buildings are going up, factories are opening. People, black and white, are coming home with more take-home money. School buildings for the poor white, the poor black, are rising in every area. They are wiping out the long dark shadow on the slow soft land.

A man says, "some day my boy is going to grow up and take over from me," but he never really knows just when it happens.

And that—I think—is the way it is about the old south and the new south. The new south is here, happening every day to the people still scanning the horizon for it to come.

RULES COMMITTEE SHORN OF POWER

Action Taken For Fear Two Democrats Might Join Republicans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—When the 81st congress convened one of the first things the Democratic leadership did was to clip the wings of its powerful rules committee.

As much responsible for this action as any other individual was Rep. Bill Colmer (D-Miss.).

At least, if it hadn't been for Colmer, administration leaders wouldn't have been in the spot where they had to take such action.

The rules committee is something of a traffic control committee for the house. All bills clear through it and the committee decides on priorities and length of debate.

Under Republican control last year the committee held up some administration proposals, making it difficult, if not impossible, for Democrats to get Truman measures before the house.

There are 12 members of the committee, divided 8 to 4, with the party controlling the house having a good workable majority.

But after the November election the lineup showed four holdover Republicans opposed to Truman measures plus conservative Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) who, democratic leaders feared, would vote with the Republicans on Truman bills. If one more Democrat voted with Cox and the Republicans, then the committee would be split 6-6 and goodbye Truman program.

Colmer, a former rules committee member before the Republicans took control two years ago, was entitled to return to the committee under the seniority system.

But Colmer was suspect in the eyes of the administration since he walked out of the national convention and supported the States' Rights ticket.

Thus the house leadership had these choices:

1. Deny Colmer a place on the committee and upset the seniority system. This the leadership was loathe to do because of the precedent involved.

2. Change the rules and increase the committee membership in order to outvote any possible Republican-Cox-Colmer combination.

This the leadership also was reluctant to do.

3. Reduce the rules committee power.

The leadership chose the third way to put over a change in rules. Under this change, if the rules committee doesn't bring a bill to the floor within 21 days, then the committee which previously approved the bill can have it brought out for debate.

This means, however, that the rules committee might still sit on an administration measure the last 20 days of the session, which will be an interesting angle to watch.

One of the most pleased persons to come out of the White House recently was Phil Mullen, Oxford, Miss. publisher and a Mississippi state representative.

He had just had a personal interview with President Truman — something of a thrill in itself — in which he said the President gave good solid assurance he is supporting pro-Truman Democrats in Mississippi.

The meeting with Mr. Truman, Mullen felt, was that sign of recognition the group wanted and believed it needed.

What happens next is anyone's guess.

One thing to watch is this: The pro-Truman group has recommended to National Party Chairman McGrath two Mississippi appointments — Curtis Mullen, Oxford, for internal revenue collector, and Martin Riley, Jackson, for federal housing administration.

If these are made, it's a cinch the party leadership is looking to the pro-Truman group.

But if these appointments are made they must go to the senate where objections by Senators Eastland and Stennis could bolck confirmation.

They haven't made their stand public since the appointments haven't yet been made.

Although Louisiana's two senators have made different recommendations for the office of New Orleans customs collector, neither presumably will oppose the other's selection.

Senator Ellender has recommended Miles A. Pratt, present collector, while Senator Long last week asked Secretary of the Treasury Snyder to name Wesley Wertz, Baton Rouge attorney, to the post.

"This is a patronage job," he said, "and since I didn't actively support Mr. Truman, the administration may not follow my recommendations. But I feel obligated to support Mr. Pratt for the office since I recommended him heretofore."

He said that if Wertz is given the nomination he will not oppose confirmation under any circumstances.

Long's friends say that likewise it's a fair assumption that he won't oppose Pratt's confirmation if Pratt is nominated. But they consider that nomination a very remote possibility.

In fact, Ellender himself apparently doesn't have much hope that Pratt's name will be sent to the senate.

He said he had discussed the matter with Secretary Snyder and that Snyder "wasn't very encouraging."

5 U. S. SOLDIERS BURNED TO DEATH

TOKYO, Sunday, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Five American soldiers burned to death and 10 others were believed missing in a fire which swept the two-story barracks at the Yokota Air Force base early today.

At least 15 others were injured, five of them seriously.

Smoke and heat awakened Staff Sgt. Carl R. Nilson of Tacoma, Wash. He sounded the alarm, but flames already were licking through the barracks, which housed 90 men.

Headquarters said five bodies, none immediately identified, had been recovered. Search was underway for 10 more believed missing.

INJUNCTION

already have begun a fight to keep those and many other provisions of that act on the books.

The question of how to deal with "national emergency" strikes is one that has given officials charged with drafting the new bill considerable thought.

The Taft-Hartley measure dealing with labor-management relations, lets the government get 80-day court orders to prevent strikes that imperil the national health or safety-while mediators try to work out a settlement.

Administration officials debated for weeks whether to keep the injunction provision. Organized labor protested vigorously against it. The idea finally was dropped.

In national emergency strike threats, the new bill would depend mainly upon the moral force of recommendations by emergency boards—as in the railway labor act. While the boards are at work and for five days thereafter—a total of 30 days—the bill says both labor and management shall continue operations. But no injunctions or penalties are provided in case they don't.

In fact the only injunctions allowed under the entire bill are those which the national labor relations board can get to enforce its "unfair labor practice" findings.

Certain boycotts and strikes of a "jurisdictional" nature (in which a union seeks to beat out another union to do certain work) are made "unfair labor practices" under the new bill. A union conceivably could be subject to injunctions in those cases—but only after the N. L. R. B. had found them guilty of violations.

The new bill was sent to the capitol by Secretary of Labor Tobin. He will discuss it Monday before the senate labor committee.

Mr. Truman's drive to get rid of the Taft-Hartley law already has stirred furious debate in congress. Backers of the present law predict the move will fail. Foes are claiming that repeal is a foregone conclusion.

In addition to new "national emergency" machinery, the administration bill contains these things:

1. A ban on jurisdictional strikes and "unjustifiable" secondary boycotts.

2. A statement that it is the "public policy" of the U. S. for labor contracts to contain clauses providing for arbitration of disputes over interpretation of the contract.

3. Return of the federal mediation and conciliation service to the labor department, and change of its name back to "U. S. conciliation service."

The A. F. L. and C. I. O., studying the administration's move, withheld official reaction.

Some labor lawyers appeared to be surprised and pleased because the injunction authority was cut back in the bill.

The A. F. L. executive council will have a chance to pass on the proposals at its meeting in Miami beginning tomorrow. The C. I. O. said its legal department is studying the bill and the organization's attitude will be set forth in congressional hearings during the week.

In Ohio, Senator Taft (R.), leader of forces battling the attempt to wreck the law bearing his name, commented:

"The administration has surrendered to the labor leaders on two provisions: (1) The national emergency strike measure, and (2) the impartiality of the national mediation service. The first is a milk and water version of the original (Taft-Hartley) clause."

President Truman, in messages to congress, had asked for banning of jurisdictional strikes and "unjustifiable" secondary boycotts, prevention of dispute over interpretation of contracts, and strengthening of the labor department.

The Taft-Hartley law itself bans jurisdictional strikes and all kinds of secondary boycotts. Because of that, backers of the law have claimed that Mr. Truman, in outlining his program, actualy was endorsing sections of the existing aw. They have argued that what he is proposing amounts to amendment of the Taft-Hartley law, and not repeal it all.

The administration bill, by repealing the Taft-Hartley measure, would toss out such things as:

The ban on the closed shop, under which employers can hire only union members.

The non-Communist affidavit provision. That requires union officers to swear they are not Communists before their unions can deal with the national labor relations board.

A profibition against political spending by unions.

Supporters of the Taft-Hartley law, led by Taft, already have begun a fight to keep those and many other Taft-Hartley provisions on the books.

To replace the Taft-Hartley injunction procedure in national emergency strikes, the administration set forth this plan:

When the president found that a dispute affected the public interest he would issue a proclamation saying so. He also would ask that there be no work stoppage.

The president then would appoint an emergency board to investigate. In most cases the board would have 25 days to report its findings and recommendations. The disputants would be asked to refrain from a work stoppage for another five days.

The administration clearly is counting on acceptance of the boards' recommendations to settle the disputes. There is no provision in the bill for any further step.

The railway labor act, a separate measure in effect for several years, provides for a somewhat similar procedure. In rail disputes, the emergency board's recommendations usually—though not always—are accepted by the disputants.

Under the Taft-Hartley law, the president can appoint a fact-finding board but it can make no recommendations. On the basis of this board's report, the president can direct the government to ask for an injunction, if he so decides.

The Taft-Hartley injunctions stay in effect up to 80 days, during which there can be no strike unless in defiance of the court.

If there is a strike after the injunction is lifted, the president can go to congress and ask it to take whatever steps he deems necessary.

The new bill's provision for returning the conciliation service to the labor department is sure to cause a hot fight in congress.

Most businessmen are strongly opposed to such a move, saying they can have more confidence in the agency's impartiality if it stays independent.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the service, reportedly has threatened to resign if the agency is put in the labor department.

The administration bill is drafted as a "one package" measure. That is, it provides for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and restoring the Wagner act—with changes—in a single legislative step.

But in advance of Tobin's appearance before the labor committee there was no definite indication whether he will ask for one package handling. Mr. Truman, however, reportedly favors that procedure.

The American Federation of Labor and the CIO, on the other hand, want two package handling.

Under this plan, the Taft-Hartley law and the Wagner act would be repealed in a first bill. A second measure, to be considered later, would deal with the Wagner act changes the president is seeking.

The new bill defines a jurisdictional dispute as one between two or more unions over "assignment or prospective assignment of a particular work task by an employer."

Under a secondary boycott, a union having a dispute against one company tries to stop other firms from doing business with that company.

The administration bill would ban such boycotts when they are designed to force an employer to bargain with a particular union despite the fact that some other union is the official representative of the workers.

The bill does not ban boycotts in support of wage demands or any other economic demands as the Taft-Hartley law does. Mr. Truman has said those kinds of boycotts are all right.

The administration measure authorizes the national labor relations board to intervene in jurisdictional disputes and try to settle them. Or, the board could authorize an arbitrator to work out a settlement.

If the union which the board or an arbitrator decided against then called a strike or a boycott, it would be regarded as an "unfair labor practice." It also would be "unfair" for the employer to refuse to assign work as the board or the arbitrator directed.

To enforce its rulings in such cases, the N. L. R. B. could seek a court injunction. The idea is the same as under the original Wagner Act, except that previously that law contained no "unfair labor practices' 'chargeable to unions.

In brief, the old Wagner Act guaranteed the right of employes to organize into unions and bargain through representatives of their own choosing.

It listed certain "unfair" labor practices in which employers were not permitted to engage.

The original Wagner measure set up a three man N. L. R. B. to prevent employers from interfering with workers' rights.

The Taft-Hartley law enlarged the board to five members. The administration bill would keep it at five and raise the members salaries to $17,500 a year. That is $5,500 more than under the Taft-Hartley law and $7,500 more than under the original Wagner measure.

COLD WEATHER

son, Greenwood and Meridian. In New Orleans the thermometer was still above freezing (at 36 degrees) early in the evening, but the weather bureau forecast a low of from 26 to 30 for this morning (Sunday).

Shreveport, where the mercury had dropped to 28 in the evening, was expected to have a low of 18 to 26 Sunday morning. At Alexandria the mercury was expected to fall to the mid 20's, and to the upper 20's in Baton Rouge, Lafayette and Lake Charles.

On the Mississippi coast, at Biloxi the temperature early last night held up to 39 degrees, but was expected to reach a minimum of about 26 by this morning. Inland, at Jackson, Greenwood and Meridian temperatures from the low 20's to the mid 20's were promised for Sunday morning.

In Hammond a light sleet was falling late yesterday. Strawberry farmers said a hard freeze could cause substantial damage to the crop, which, under balmy temperatures, had started to mature six weeks earlier than usual.

South of New Orleans there remained part of a citrus crop on the trees, but weathermen said they did not believe there would be a damaging frost in that area.

In a New Orleans suburb yesterday there was a flurry of tiny hail. Lake Charles reported a light snow flurry.

In the Sulphur and Red River valleys northeast Texas and northwest Louisiana some livestock losses were anticipated from floodwaters.

FREEZING RAIN HITS RIO GRANDE VALLEY

BROWNSVILLE Tex., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Light sleet, snow and freezing rain hit the crop-rich lower Rio Grande valley of Texas late today.

Winter's bitterest blast yet to reach Texas enveloped the state. Temperatures were below freezing everywhere.

The freeze posed a serious threat to lower valley vegetable crops. It was freezing also up the Rio Grande at Laredo, in the winter garden section.

Weather ranging around 30 degrees was general over the lower valley. A low of 25 degrees was forecast.

Elsewhere in the state temperatures reached two degrees above zero in the Panhandle. Snow fell in much of west Texas from El Paso eastward. There was snow, sleet and freezing rain on the Texas gulf coast, and some snow in central Texas.

Freezing rain and sleet spread widely in the lower valley by nightfall.

Valley citrus growers said damage would result if readings dropped to 27 degrees above zero and remained there long.

Frank Burneman, Cameron county agricultural agent, said tomato and potato crops would be the hardest hit. He said they might be wiped out, depending on the duration of the freeze.

In the Aoilene and San Angelo areas of west Texas considerable shrinkage of livestock was reported.

The state's latest cold wave followed a severe ice storm which earlier in the week caused heavy damage to power and telephone lines in the north Texas area. Most of that ice thawed Thursday, before the new cold weather struck, but crews of workmen were still struggling to restore lines.

NEW HOSPITAL

of personnel when they are hired and at periods during their employment.

Emphasize indoctrination and on-the-job training of employes, particularly those who deal directly with patients.

Improve food "as much as possible."

Supervise employes more closely, with a view to more careful treatment of patients.

Dr. Smith said the plan would allow officials to weed out "a lot of attendants who shouldn't be here, but who were a wartime necessity." He said an improved personnel system—stressing more detailed information about applicants before they are hired—will be employed.

Another feature, he said, will be the requirement that every new employe must submit to a physical examination. He said Dr. J. S. Nolan, assistant superintendent and chief of medical services at the facility, will be in charge of these examinations. Dr. Nolan will set up minimum standards, the superintendent added, which will be submitted to the hospital's board of administrators at their next meeting.

"We can't do much about the food, even though we know it is not all it should be," Business Manager Richardson explained. Patients in the past have been allowed to serve themselves from a common bowl, he added, but henceforth would be served individually by attendants.

"The need for additional help at Jackson is still acute," Richardson said, "but employes hired in the future are going to have to show they can contribute to the betterment of the hospital."

ades and bring relief to suffering people and livestock in the snowbound areas."

The swift developments came as Nebraskans, wearied by the worst winter in 60 years, plugged away at digging out principal highways reblocked late this week by a new 12-inch snowstorm.

Clear, crisp weather helped the cause and most main highways were reopened. But of 200 bulldozers previously assigned to the blizzard area, only 60 had reached their destination.

Air force planes operating out of Kearney, Omaha and Sioux City, Ia., criss-crossed the snow-covered Nebraska countryside, looking for distress signals on isolated farms.

Two National Guard companies in Lincoln were mobilized and a third was alerted. Four other companies—two at North Platte, one at Alliance and one at Grand Island—have been on duty since early in the month.

PRESIDENT STEPS UP AID TO BLIZZARD AREA

(By Associated Press)

President Truman stepped up federal aid Saturday as clear cold weather came to most of the blizzard-stricken west.

The weather was a boon to expanding rescue efforts, but an additional hardship for hungry, snow-stranded livestock.

The cold wave, which extended east to the Atlantic, also relieved the present threat of major floods in the midwest.

The president authorized Defense Secretary Forrestal to dip into funds set up for river and harbor control to speed relief work in the disaster areas. Forrestal can spend for blizzard relief such funds as are available in the military establishment.

The President will ask congress for a supplemental appropriation to replace blizzard relief funds spent by the military branches. He also sent to congress a request for a supplemental relief appropriation of $500,000.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, who directed wartime construction of the China-Burma road, was placed in charge of storm relief work in all the Missouri basin except Montana.

At Omaha, he described the job ahead as the biggest since the Ledo road. Gen. Pick is the Missouri river division engineer.

Planes, bulldozers, helicopters, tractors, weasels, jeeps and huge primitive sleds already are at work in the disaster area. Now, however, General Pick will have the assistance of scores of private contractors, many of whom have been working on Missouri basin development dam building projects.

The contractors will supply some men and many of the machines. The army engineers will supply additional machines, and the Fifth army additional personnel.

General Pick placed his engineers on a 24 hour a day basis and said "every available resource at our command will be thrown into this fight to break the snow blockades and bring relief to suffering people and livestock in the snowbound area."

Under the presidential order, Maj. Gen. Philip Fleming, federal works administrator, will be coordinator of federal relief activities in the disaster area. C. W. Anderson, divisional federal works agency engineer from Kansas City, was named coordinator to supervise storm relief work in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Two air force helicopters, brought in from Kansas, flew over snow-clogged Nebraska communities on relief missions. The two helicopters will be used principally in transporting doctors to their patients and visa versa.

Two Nebraska National Guard companies were mobilized for relief and rescue work. They will supplement four other guard companies which have been on duty since early in the month.

Another blizzard which whipped across Nebraska Friday, set back relief work. The storm set up new road blocks before bulldozers which were traveling to other areas still blocked by old snow. At least 135 bulldozers have been assigned to the blizzard area and more are on the way.

Farther west in the Utah-Nevada-Arizona disaster area favorable weather aided airmen and ranchers getting food to snow-stranded livestock and humans.

Army planes dropped food supplies by parachute in their first relief flights for Navajo Indians snowbound deep in their reservations north of Winslow, Ariz.

Although truckers have succeeded in getting some feed to Utah livestock, hundreds of wild deer have come down from the snow-covered mountains to seek food in Salt Lake City.

The rising Ohio river reached a standstill at Cincinnati as cold weather moved over the Ohio river valley. The river there reached 52.4 feet—four tenths of a foot above flood stage. An additional rise of two to three feet was forecast, but this would not cause serious damage. The cold weather also slowed sharply the rise of Ohio river tributaries in southern Illinois where 1,000 have been made homeless.

The cold weather spread south to the Gulf of Mexico and eastward to New England. Moderate temperatures continued in California and along the Pacific coast. Mild weather prevailed in the southeast.

REDS INSIST

were idling on or near the north bank of the Yangtze at many points. Coupled with this, the new political demands plunged Nanking hopes of a negotiated settlement to new lows.

The Communist broadcast, by an unidentified spokesman,, also angrily demanded re-arrest of Lt. Gen. Yasutsugu Okamura, last Japanese commander in China. He was acquitted of war crimes before a Chinese government military court Wednesday.

The Communist statement declared: "We hold that your present activities are a scheme to use hypocritical peace negotiations as a cover for regrouping your forces and war preparations, including a plot to bring the Japanese reactionaries to China to join you in butchering the Chinese people."

The statement suggested that the local surrender at Peiping Jan. 22 was a pattern for similar bit-by bit settlements covering Nanking, Shanghai, Canton and all other government-held territory.

It made clear, however, that the Reds' 8-point surrender demand of Jan. 14 must be met first.

First of these eight points was "punishment of war criminals."

"Chiang Kai-Shek is especially important," said the statement. "The said criminal has now fled to Fenghwa, and may very possibly flee abroad, to hide beneath the cloak of American or British imperialism.

"Therefore you must act swiftly to arrest this criminal and not permit him to escape. You must bear full responsibility for this; if escape occurs, you will be punished as a conniver, with no mercy shown whatsoever."

The broadcast referred to the Dec. 25 list of 43 "war criminals," but said a fuller list was now being discussed with various non-government organizations "in our territory and yours" and would be published soon.

(The original Red list contained 45 names. Several times since, the Communists have referred to 43, without saying which two were removed. The two exemptions might be Acting President Li and Gen. Fu Tso-Yi, the government's North China commander. Li's name has not been mentioned since the first broadcast, and Fu was praised in the latest statement for his work on the Peiping settlement.)

"Nanking will be informed later of the preparatory work that must be carried out by both sides for other points of the eight terms," said the statement.

(This implied that all eight points would have to be met before peace can be "negotiated." Second of the eight points is "abrogate the bogus constitution. Others include "remold all reactionary armies; confiscate bureaucratic capital; reform the land system; and abrogate treaties of national betrayal.")

The broadcast said, "Carrying out these eight terms will be enough and may be more than enough work for you, for us, for all democratic parties and groups, all people's organizations, and people of all circles thoughout the country for several months, half a year, a year, several years."

At the same time, Nanking was instructed to hold its peace delegates in readiness to confer in Peiping whenever the pre-conditions should be met.

Another Communist broadcast, presented on a less official basis, accused Chiang Kai-Shek of having secretly ordered his followers to "fight to the finish" before he left Jan. 21.

Government representatives in Peiping relayed a Red demand that the government halt its move south to Canton.

This already has gone too far to halt, even if the government agreed. Operations in Canton are scheduled to begin by Feb. 5.

In this connection, unconfirmed reports, said to have originated in the Chinese foreign office, stated that the Soviet ambassador would leave for Canton Sunday. Because of the supposed Soviet affinity for the Reds, this injected an unexplained element into the confused situation.

The United States and other western powers are retaining their embassies in Nanking and sending only second-string diplomatic representatives to Canton.

that they had been accepted were completely unfounded.

The informants said "a rebellious movement to overthrow the legal regime in Greece cannot be considered a government" with which the Nationalists could negotiate.

The Conservative Newspaper Estia said the government has met the people's desires in ignoring the rebels' peace offer. It was the first Greek publication to comment on it.

The government pressed its campaign to shut off aid to rebels in the field. Piraeus police arrested 34 women in raids against a Communist women's organization and ordered them held for trial by a military tribunal. All were charged with aiding rebels by collecting money for them and distributing Communist leaflets.

Guerrillas raided the American school of agriculture near Salonika last night, and abducted 36 students and three workers. All of those seized were Greeks. National troops pursued the raiders. The school is American-supported.

"From Glynn's grandmother, Mrs. R. H. Swaggart, Sr."

Here is a pig story facts of which were secured from J. H. McQuerry down at Columbia. He's an ex-newspaper man so we are sure like George Washington he can never tell a lie.

Last spring a pig, small and scrawny, appeared on the banks of Davis lake in Ward 2, Caldwell parish. It was a runt, its owner and even its sex chanced to be shrouded in mystery. But this did not prevent its becoming a downright nuisance, for no gate or fence was able to keep the beast out. The farmer who was bothered with the creature decided to place an "adv." in the "estray" column of the Caldwell Watchman and here is how he phrased it:" There is on my premises a mischievous pig, black with white spots, apparently nine months old, weight 60 pounds or thereabouts of common razorback stock. Owner diligently sought after remains unknown."

The estray advertisement was run in the weekly newspaper for a month without avail. The day of the proposted sale arrived. However the auctioneer received not a single bid, the animal being regarded not worth accrued costs. There upon the justice of the peace suggested that the costs be contributed to the Red Cross for the purchase of the beast and that the farmer continue to feed it until the January auction sale would be held. The court so ordered.

Now it is disclosed that the farmer, T. E. Teekell, fed the pig and placed it on sale on the block at the Delhi livestock auction. It amazed even the most optimistic when it was sold for $28.00. A check for this sum was handed to Judge V. M. Mouser, chairman of the Caldwell parish Red Cross.

Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Wood will sail from New Orleans February 3 on the "Antiqua", steamer of the Great White fleet, for a cruise in the Caribbean and they will include the Panama Canal on the trip. Also they will doubtless stop off at some of the countries where there has been a turn over of governmental administrations recently. Dr. Wood does not state as to whether or not he plans to make any further changes in governmental status while down there, but his friends say he'll bear watching. He promises to be back after a three-weeks' frolic down where the sun spends the winter.

GANDHI'S

man, has suggested the death sentence to the court.

What Gandhi would have said about any effort to punish his slayers will be debated in India for a long time. But the people have raised no question that justice should take its course.

Bloody rioting between the Hindu and Moslem populations of India and Pakistan had become commonplace when Gandhi was shot down. He was walking to his prayer meeting place here to continue his crusade for communal peace, when three shots were fired into his body.

The crime occurred as India faced critical times and issues.

There was talk of war between the two new dominions, created when British crown rule of India ended and the country was divided in August, 1947. Refugees crammed the cities, calling for the blood of people of the opposite religion. Hindus had fled Pakistan, and Moslems from India —12,000,000 of them.

The economy was shaken on both sides of the border.

Not all of the headway in the past 12 months came about as Gandhi would have done it. There was more rioting, but it ebbed steadily. The police and military crushed it with their guns, bayonets and clubs. Organizations preaching religious hatred were outlawed and harried out of existence.

The Rastriya Swayam Sewat Sangh, one of the outlawed organizations, tested its comeback powers last December. Its members courted arrest—the old Gandhian technique in his crusade for Indian independence — in an effort to have the ban lifted. The police tear gassed them. The people backed the police.

Under leadership of two staunch friends, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and Governor-General C. Rajagopalachari, India has come far to give Gandhi in death a peaceful land.

A cease-fire agreement dated Jan. 1, arranged with United Nations assistance, has stopped the fighting of Indian and Pakistan troops.

They had fought for months over which dominion should possess the state. They then agreed to settle it by referendum.

Gandhi would have been proud, too, of India's lead in calling the recent Asian conference, which protested Dutch military action in Indonesia and demanded independence for the Indonesians. He believed no western power had a right to colonial possessions in the East.

The country's constituent assembly is drafting the Indian constitution. It is framing a document calling for a democratic state, where the people can express their will freely at the polls, as Gandhi wanted.

SHERROUSE P.-T. A. PLANTS TREES AS PUBLIC MEMORIALS

Arbor Day Fittingly Celebrated On Campus Of School

Arbor day, set this year by gubernatorial proclamation for January 28, was appropriately celebrated at Sherrouse school Friday afternoon. Short talks were given by Mrs. C. C. Lindley, Rev. George Pearce and Mike John, Jr. Trees were planted, one as memorial to the work of E. L. Neville, of the city schools; another to honor students of Sherrouse who have gone forth to high school and college and have taken their places in the world; while the third tree planted was to honor men and women who served in the last World War.

Mrs. W. S. Vincent, principal of Sherrouse school, explained the meaning of Arbor day and told of the trees to be planted. She paid special stress to the third tree that will be a memorial to those who gave their all, even their lives in many instances, that freedom may prevail in our land.

Reverend Pearce, pastor of Memorial Methodist Church, declared in fitting terms, "Trees are like people, they give strength and comfort to those around them. We want this tree, a memorial to our World War men and women, to grow strong and tall just as we want you boys and girls to grow tall and strong."

Then Jimmie Wood, first grade pupil, placed a bottle in which were names of all in the first grade in a hole near the roots of the magnolia tree. He said: "We will guard and protect this tree and six years from now we will take the bottle from the ground and see how many children still remain in Sherrouse school and have enjoyed the growth of the tree through the years."

Mrs. Lindley, past president of Sherrouse P.-T. A. spoke next as follows: "I am happy to have the honor to be here in this tree planting ceremony, especially to dedicate the beautiful magnolia to the P.-T. A. of this community. The Congress of Parents and Teachers will celebrate its 62nd birthday in a few days, and next to the church I think this is the finest organization because it has for its purpose the welfare of children, its ideals and purposes have made it great through the years.

"We are grateful for the Sherrouse P.-T. A. and for its community influence creating good will, better understanding and cooperation between home and school which makes for the betterment of this and every community. This is not the largest P.-T. A. in our state in point of membership, but it ranks high in point of service rendered in the efforts to attain the purposes and objectives for which it was organized. In every organization there must be a guiding light and I would pay tribute today to the guiding light of Sherrouse P.-T. A. since it was organized in 1931, for through the years as each president and other officers have served their terms and passed the torch on to others, the helping hand has always been there to encourage and inspire those to do their best. This guiding light is none else than Mrs. W. S. Vincent, school principal, who because of her sterling qualities and unselfish devotion to duty is now state president of the P.-T. A.

"So as this beautiful tree with its ever shining leaves grows year by year, in the words of Joyce Kilmer. 'Looks to God all day and lifts her leafy arms to pray,' may this P.-T. A. be a symbol of it and look to God for wisdom, guidance and divine leadership in the going forward and carrying on of its purposes and ideals."

The third tree, a beautiful live oak, was dedicated by Mike John, Jr., city school board member, who said:

"I am very happy to be here with you on this occasion, and I would like to take the opportunity in the beginning to compliment you on the initiative and the enthusiasm with which you are observing Arbor day.

"I am impressed wih the theme under which you are dedicating these trees, and the thought of purpose under which you are so dedicating them to a person or to a group of people.

"As my part on the program, I have the happy privilege of honoring our former superintendent, E. L. Neville by dedicating one of these oak trees to him.

"I went to Webster's dictionary in an effort to perhaps find a picture parallel between the qualities represented in an oak tree, and those sterling human qualities represented in Mr. Neville.

"I quickly discovered that Webster's did not do full justice in describing an oak tree. And by like token, I am unable to do full justice to Mr. Neville. The point is that no matter what I might try to say about either Mr. Neville, or an oak tree, my words of description would be inadequate.

"However, there are certain distinguishing and prominent qualities common in this case to both man and tree . . . both creatures and handiwork of God. Mr. Neville, like the oak tree being dedicated to him, possesses those fine qualities of durability strongness and usefulness of purpose which naturally call for esteem.

"Mr. Neville's roots were planted in the soil of education in this city many years ago, and his statue has continued to grow throughout the years. So today, we plant in his honor, a tree that will also continue to grow throughout the years. Mr. Neville's life's work in the educational growth of our city school system is as inspiring as the beauty of this oak tree will be 47 years from now . . . when it too, like Mr. Neville today, can look back over its years of useful service and consider its job well done."

At the conclusion of the planting of the trees, a timely program was presented by each grade, after which refreshments were provided by the school's P.-T. A. under direction of Mrs. Howard John, room mother chairman.

VISHINSKY SUFFERS NERVOUS DISORDER

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 29—(AP)—Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky is "gravely ill from a nervous disorder," a staff member of a Russian army sanatorium at Karlsbad said tonight.

"Mr. Vishinsky is unable to concentrate on anything," the staff member said. "He cannot be seen by anyone."

The sanatorium is located in the Hotel Imperial one of the show places of Karlsbad, an ancient health resort 70 miles west of Prague not far from the German border.

Staff employes and a nurse made no secret of their concern over the condition of Vishinsky, one of the top figures in Soviet diplomacy.

The settlement of his illness was the first official disclosure that Vishinsky was in Czechoslovakia. It was given out after a conference with one of his attendants.

Rumors circulated here Thursday that Vishinsky had been "trouble shooting" in Czechoslovakia.

These rumors stemmed from reports of dissension in the Czechoslovakia government and the Communist party that controls it. They were not confirmed.

Vishinsky, 66, headed the Soviet delegation at the last meeting of the United Nations general assembly in Paris.

He has been one of the most vigorous defenders of Soviet foreign policy in all international assemblies.

Although Vishinsky's presence in Karlsbad had been rumored for several days, no official quarter would confirm that he was in Czechoslovakia.

The Soviet embassy declined to talk about it.

BODIES OF MORE THAN 70 RAISED

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 29—(AP)—The bodies of more than 70 men, women and children have been recovered from the hulk of a sunken German U-boat in Kiel Bay.

The submarine apparently was carrying refugees fleeing before the advancing Russian armies in 1945 when it was trapped on the surface and sunk by Allied aircraft in the bay, known as "the graveyard of the German navy."

Most of the people were from Danzig. Bodies of 54 have been identified. Records are being checked to identify the others.

The 1,600-ton submarine, an undersea coffin to these victims, is just one of more than 40 sunk off the German Baltic coast. This is the first grim evidence uncovered by salvage crews, however, that they were used to exacuate civilians.

Hundreds of refugees were known to have died when the German liner Wilhelm Gustloff, 25-000 tons, hit a mine and sank in January, 1945, off Stolpmuende. Thousands of concentration camp inmates died when they were moved by sea, with the bombing of the liners Cap Arcona and Deutschland. S. S. guards shot those who swam ashore.

The overturned hulks are easily visible in Leubeck Bay, where some day salvage men will get to them. A recent survey showed 431 wrecks of German shipping off the North Sea and Baltic coasts.

The vessels are being salvaged, and the scrap metal is exported to Britain by occupation authorities.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength — and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof, shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

RULES COMMITTEE SHORN OF POWER

Action Taken For Fear Two Democrats Might Join Republicans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—When the 81st congress convened one of the first things the Democratic leadership did was to clip the wings of its powerful rules committee.

As much responsible for this action as any other individual was Rep. Bill Colmer (D-Miss.).

At least, if it hadn't been for Colmer, administration leaders wouldn't have been in the spot where they had to take such action.

The rules committee is something of a traffic control committee for the house. All bills clear through it and the committee decides on priorities and length of debate.

Under Republican control last year the committee held up some administration proposals, making it difficult, if not impossible, for Democrats to get Truman measures before the house.

There are 12 members of the committee, divided 8 to 4, with the party controlling the house having a good workable majority.

But after the November election the lineup showed four holdover Republicans opposed to Truman measures plus conservative Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) who, democratic leaders feared, would vote with the Republicans on Truman bills. If one more Democrat voted with Cox and the Republicans, then the committee would be split 6-6 and goodbye Truman program.

Colmer, a former rules committee member before the Republicans took control two years ago, was entitled to return to the committee under the seniority system.

But Colmer was suspect in the eyes of the administration since he walked out of the national convention and supported the States' Rights ticket.

Thus the house leadership had these choices:

1. Deny Colmer a place on the committee and upset the seniority system. This the leadership was loathe to do because of the precedent involved.

2. Change the rules and increase the committee membership in order to outvote any possible Republican-Cox-Colmer combination.

This the leadership also was reluctant to do.

3. Reduce the rules committee power.

The leadership chose the third way. It put over a change in rules. Under this change, if the rules committee doesn't bring a bill to the floor within 21 days, then the committee which previously approved the bill can have it brought out for debate.

This means, however, that the rules committee might still sit on an administration measure the last 20 days of the session, which will be an interesting angle to watch.

One of the most pleased persons to come out of the White House recently was Phil Mullen, Oxford, Miss., publisher and a Mississippi state representative.

He had just had a personal interview with President Truman — something of a thrill in itself — in which he said the President gave good solid assurance he is supporting pro-Truman Democrats in Mississippi.

The meeting with Mr. Truman, Mullen felt, was that sign of recognition the group wanted and believed it needed.

What happens next is anyone's guess.

One thing to watch is this: The pro-Truman group has recommended to National Party Chairman McGrath two Mississippi appointments — Curtis Mullen, Oxford, for internal revenue collector, and Martin Riley, Jackson, for federal housing administration.

If these are made, it's a cinch the party leadership is looking to the pro-Truman group.

But if these appointments are made they must go to the senate where objections by Senators Eastland and Stennis could bolck confirmation.

They haven't made their stand public since the appointments haven't yet been made.

Although Louisiana's two senators have made different recommendations for the office of New Orleans customs collector, neither presumably will oppose the other's selection.

Senator Ellender has recommended Miles A. Pratt, present collector, while Senator Long last week asked Secretary of the Treasury Snyder to name Wesley Wertz, Baton Rouge attorney, to the post.

"This is a patronage job," he said, "and since I didn't actively support Mr. Truman, the administration may not follow my recommendations. But I feel obligated to support Mr. Pratt for the office since I recommended him heretofore."

He said that if Wertz is given the nomination he will not oppose confirmation under any circumstances.

Long's friends say that likewise it's a fair assumption that he won't oppose Pratt's confirmation if Pratt is nominated. But they consider that nomination a very remote possibility.

In fact, Ellender himself apparently doesn't have much hope that Pratt's name will be sent to the senate.

He said he had discussed the matter with Secretary Snyder and that Snyder "wasn't very encouraging."

5 U. S. SOLDIERS BURNED TO DEATH

TOKYO, Sunday, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Five American soldiers burned to death and 10 others were believed missing in a fire which swept the two-story barracks at the Yokota Air Force base early today.

At least 15 others were injured, five of them seriously.

Smoke and heat awakened Staff Sgt. Carl R. Nilson of Tacoma, Wash. He sounded the alarm, but flames already were licking through the barracks, which housed 90 men.

Headquarters said five bodies, none immediately identified, had been recovered. Search was underway for 10 more believed missing.

already have begun a fight to keep those and many other provisions of that act on the books.

The question of how to deal with "national emergency" strikes is one that has given officials charged with drafting the new bill considerable thought.

The Taft-Hartley measure dealing with labor-management relations, lets the government get 80-day court orders to prevent strikes that imperil the national health or safety-while mediators try to work out a settlement.

Administration officials debated for weeks whether to keep the injunction provision. Organized labor protested vigorously against it. The idea finally was dropped.

In national emergency strike threats, the new bill would depend mainly upon the moral force of recommendations by emergency boards—as in the railway labor act. While the boards are at work and for five days thereafter—a total of 30 days—the bill says both labor and management shall continue operations. But no injunctions or penalties are provided in case they don't.

In fact the only injunctions allowed under the entire bill are those which the national labor relations board can get to enforce its "unfair labor practice" findings.

Certain boycotts and strikes of a "jurisdictional" nature (in which a union seeks to beat out another union to do certain work) are made "unfair labor practices" under the new bill. A union conceivably could be subject to injunctions in those cases—but only after the N. L. R. B. had found them guilty of violations.

The new bill was sent to the capitol by Secretary of Labor Tobin. He will discuss it Monday before the senate labor committee.

Mr. Truman's drive to get rid of the Taft-Hartley law already has stirred furious debate in congress. Backers of the present law predict the move will fail. Foes are claiming that repeal is a foregone conclusion.

In addition to new "national emergency" machinery, the administration bill contains these things:

1. A ban on jurisdictional strikes and "unjustifiable" secondary boycotts.

2. A statement that it is the "public policy" of the U. S. for labor contracts to contain clauses providing for arbitration of disputes over interpretation of the contract.

3. Return of the federal mediation and conciliation service to the labor department, and change of its name back to "U. S. conciliation service."

The A. F. L. and C. I. O., studying the administration's move, withheld official reaction.

Some labor lawyers appeared to be surprised and pleased because the injunction authority was cut back in the bill.

The A. F. L. executive council will have a chance to pass on the proposals at its meeting in Miami beginning tomorrow. The C. I. O. said its legal department is studying the bill and the organization's attitude will be set forth in congressional hearings during the week.

In Ohio, Senator Taft (R.), leader of forces battling the attempt to wreck the law bearing his name, commented:

"The administration has surrendered to the labor leaders on two provisions: (1) The national emergency strike measure, and (2) the impartiality of the national mediation service. The first is a milk and water version of the original (Taft-Hartley) clause."

President Truman, in messages to congress, had asked for banning of jurisdictional strikes and "unjustifiable" secondary boycotts, prevention of dispute over interpretation of contracts, and strengthening of the labor department.

The Taft-Hartley law itself bans jurisdictional strikes and all kinds of secondary boycotts. Because of that, backers of the law have claimed that Mr. Truman, in outlining his program, actualy was endorsing sections of the existing aw. They have argued that what he is proposing amounts to amendment of the Taft-Hartley law, and not repeal it all.

The administration bill, by repealing the Taft-Hartley measure, would toss out such things as:

The ban on the closed shop, under which employers can hire only union members.

The non-Communist affidavit provision. That requires union officers to swear they are not Communists before their unions can deal with the national labor relations board.

A prohibition against political spending by unions.

Supporters of the Taft-Hartley law, led by Taft, already have begun a fight to keep those and many other Taft-Hartley provisions on the books.

To replace the Taft-Hartley injunction procedure in national emergency strikes, the administration set forth this plan:

When the president found that a dispute affected the public interest he would issue a proclamation saying so. He also would ask that there be no work stoppage.

The president then would appoint an emergency board to investigate. In most cases the board would have 25 days to report its findings and recommendations. The disputants would be asked to refrain from a work stoppage for another five days.

The administration clearly is counting on acceptance of the boards' recommendations to settle the disputes. There is no provision in the bill for any further step.

The railway labor act, a separate measure in effect for several years, provides for a somewhat similar procedure. In rail disputes, the emergency board's recommendations usually—though not always—are accepted by the disputants.

Under the Taft-Hartley law, the president can appoint a fact-finding board but it can make no recommendations. On the basis of this board's report, the president can direct the government to ask for an injunction, if he so decides.

The Taft-Hartley injunctions stay in effect up to 80 days, during which there can be no strike unless in defiance of the court.

If there is a strike after the injunction is lifted, the president can go to congress and ask it to take whatever steps he deems necessary.

The new bill's provision for returning the conciliation service to the labor department is sure to cause a hot fight in congress.

Most businessmen are strongly opposed to such a move, saying they can have more confidence in the agency's impartiality if it stays independent.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the service, reportedly has threatened to resign if the agency is put in the labor department.

The administration bill is drafted as a "one package" measure. That is, it provides for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and restoring the Wagner act—with changes—in a single legislative step.

But in advance of Tobin's appearance before the labor committee there was no definite indication whether he will ask for one package handling. Mr. Truman, however, reportedly favors that procedure.

The American Federation of Labor and the CIO, on the other hand, want two package handling.

Under this plan, the Taft-Hartley law and the Wagner act would be repealed in a first bill. A second measure, to be considered later, would deal with the Wagner act changes the president is seeking.

The new bill defines a jurisdictional dispute as one between two or more unions over "assignment or prospective assignment of a particular work task by an employer."

Under a secondary boycott, a union having a dispute against one company tries to stop other firms from doing business with that company.

The administration bill would ban such boycotts when they are designed to force an employer to bargain with a particular union despite the fact that some other union is the official representative of the workers.

The bill does not ban boycotts in support of wage demands or any other economic demands, as the Taft-Hartley law does. Mr. Truman has said those kinds of boycotts are all right.

The administration measure authorizes the national labor relations board to intervene in jurisdictional disputes and try to settle them. Or, the board could authorize an arbitrator to work out a settlement.

If the union which the board or an arbitrator decided against then called a strike or a boycott, it would be regarded as an "unfair labor practice." It also would be "unfair" for the employer to refuse to assign work as the board or the arbitrator directed.

To enforce its rulings in such cases, the N. L. R. B. could seek a court injunction. The idea is the same as under the original Wagner Act, except that previously that law contained no "unfair labor practices" chargeable to unions.

In brief, the old Wagner Act guaranteed the right of employes to organize into unions and bargain through representatives of their own choosing.

It listed certain "unfair" labor practices in which employers were not permitted to engage.

The original Wagner measure set up a three man N. L. R. B. to prevent employers from interfering with workers' rights.

The Taft-Hartley law enlarged the board to five members. The administration bill would keep it at five and raise the members salaries to $17,500 a year. That is $5,500 more than under the Taft-Hartley law and $7,500 more than under the original Wagner measure.

COLD WEATHER

son, Greenwood and Meridian. In New Orleans the thermometer was still above freezing (at 36 degrees) early in the evening, but the weather bureau forecast a low of from 26 to 29 for this morning (Sunday).

Shreveport, where the mercury had dropped to 28 in the evening, was expected to have a low of 18 to 26 Sunday morning. At Alexandria the mercury was expected to fall to the mid 20's, and to the upper 20's in Baton Rouge, Lafayette and Lake Charles.

On the Mississippi coast, at Biloxi the temperature early last night held up to 39 degrees, but was expected to reach a minimum of about 26 by this morning. Inland, at Jackson, Greenwood and Meridian temperatures from the low 20's to the mid 20's were promised for Sunday morning.

In Hammond a light sleet was falling late yesterday. Strawberry farmers said a hard freeze could cause substantial damage to the crop, which, under balmy temperatures, had started to mature six weeks earlier than usual.

South of New Orleans there remained part of a citrus crop on the trees, but weathermen said they did not believe there would be a damaging frost in that area.

In a New Orleans suburb yesterday there was a flurry of tiny hail. Lake Charles reported a light snow flurry.

In the Sulphur and Red River valleys northeast Texas and northwest Louisiana some livestock losses were anticipated from floodwaters.

FREEZING RAIN HITS RIO GRANDE VALLEY

BROWNSVILLE Tex., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Light sleet, snow and freezing rain hit the crop-rich lower Rio Grande valley of Texas late today.

Winter's bitterest blast yet to reach Texas enveloped the state. Temperatures were below freezing everywhere.

The freeze posed a serious threat to lower valley vegetable crops. It was freezing also up the Rio Grande at Laredo, in the winter garden section.

Weather ranging around 30 degrees was general over the lower valley. A low of 25 degrees was forecast.

Elsewhere in the state temperatures reached two degrees above zero in the Panhandle. Snow fell in much of west Texas from El Paso eastward. There was snow, sleet and freezing rain on the Texas gulf coast, and some snow in central Texas.

Freezing rain and sleet spread widely in the lower valley by nightfall.

Valley citrus growers said damage would result if readings dropped to 27 degrees above zero and remained there long.

Frank Burneman, Cameron county agricultural agent, said tomato and potato crops would be the hardest hit. He said they might be wiped out, depending on the duration of the freeze.

In the Abilene and San Angelo areas of west Texas considerable shrinkage of livestock was reported.

The state's latest cold wave followed a severe ice storm which earlier in the week caused heavy damage to power and telephone lines in the north Texas area. Most of that ice thawed Thursday, before the new cold weather struck, but crews of workmen were still struggling to restore lines.

NEW HOSPITAL

of personnel when they are hired and at periods during their employment.

Emphasize indoctrination and on-the-job training of employes, particularly those who deal directly with patients.

Improve food "as much as possible."

Supervise employes more closely, with a view to more careful treatment of patients.

Dr. Smith said the plan would allow officials to weed out "a lot of attendants who shouldn't be here, but who were a wartime necessity." He said an improved personnel system—stressing more detailed information about applicants before they are hired—will be employed.

Another feature, he said, will be the requirement that every new employe must submit to a physical examination. He said Dr. J. S. Nolan, assistant superintendent and chief of medical services at the facility, will be in charge of these examinations. Dr. Nolan will set up minimum standards, the superintendent added, which will be submitted to the hospital's board of administrators at their next meeting.

"We can't do much about the food, even though we know it is not all it should be," Business Manager Richardson explained. Patients in the past have been allowed to serve themselves from a common bowl, he added, but henceforth would be served individually by attendants.

"The need for additional help at Jackson is still acute," Richardson said, "but employes hired in the future are going to have to show they can contribute to the betterment of the hospital."

ades and bring relief to suffering people and livestock in the snowbound areas."

The swift developments came as Nebraskans, wearied by the worst winter in 60 years, plugged away at digging out principal highways reblocked late this week by a new 12-inch snowstorm.

Clear, crisp weather helped the cause and most main highways were reopened. But of 200 bulldozers previously assigned to the blizzard area, only 60 had reached their destination.

Air force planes operating out of Kearney, Omaha and Sioux City, Ia., criss-crossed the snow-covered Nebraska countryside, looking for distress signals on isolated farms.

Two National Guard companies in Lincoln were mobilized and a third was alerted. Four other companies—two at North Platte, one at Alliance and one at Grand Island—have been on duty since early in the month.

PRESIDENT STEPS UP AID TO BLIZZARD AREA

(By Associated Press)

President Truman stepped up federal aid Saturday as clear cold weather came to most of the blizzard-stricken west.

The weather was a boon to expanding rescue efforts, but an additional hardship for hungry, snow-stranded livestock.

The cold wave, which extended east to the Atlantic, also relieved the present threat of major floods in the midwest.

The president authorized Defense Secretary Forrestal to dip into funds set up for river and harbor control to speed relief work in the disaster areas. Forrestal can spend for blizzard relief such funds as are available in the military establishment.

The President will ask congress for a supplemental appropriation to replace blizzard relief funds spent by the military branches. He also sent to congress a request for a supplemental relief appropriation of $500,000.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, who directed wartime construction of the China-Burma road, was placed in charge of storm relief work in all the Missouri basin except Montana.

At Omaha, he described the job ahead as the biggest since the Ledo road. Gen. Pick is the Missouri river division engineer.

Planes, bullodzers, helicopters, tractors, weasels, jeeps and huge primitive sleds already are at work in the disaster area. Now, however, General Pick will have the assistance of scores of private contractors, many of whom have been working on Missouri basin development dam building projects.

The contractors will supply some men and many of the machines. The army engineers will supply additional machines, and the Fifth army additional personnel.

General Pick placed his engineers on a 24 hour a day basis and said "every available resource at our command will be thrown into this fight to break the snow blockades and bring relief to suffering people and livestock in the snowbound area."

Under the presidential order, Maj. Gen. Philip Fleming, federal works administrator, will be coordinator of federal relief activities in the disaster area. C. W. Anderson, divisional federal works agency engineer from Kansas City, was named coordinator to supervise storm relief work in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Two air force helicopters, brought in from Kansas, flew over snow-clogged Nebraska communities on relief missions. The two helicopters will be used principally in transporting doctors to their patients and visa versa.

Two Nebraska National Guard companies were mobilized for relief and rescue work. They will spplement four other guard companies which have been on duty since early in the month.

Another blizzard which whipped across Nebraska Friday, set back relief work. The storm set up new road blocks before bulldozers which were traveling to other areas still blocked by old snow. At least 135 bulldozers have been assigned to the blizzard area and more are on the way.

Farther west in the Utah-Nevada-Arizona disaster area favorable weather aided airmen and ranchers getting food to snow-stranded livestock and humans.

Army planes dropped food supplies by parachute in their first relief flights for Navajo Indians snowbound deep in their reservations north of Winslow, Ariz.

Although truckers have succeeded in getting some feed to Utah livestock, hundreds of wild deer have come down from the snow-covered mountains to seek food in Salt Lake City.

The rising Ohio river reached a standstill at Cincinnati as cold weather moved over the Ohio river valley. The river there reached 52.4 feet—four tenths of a foot above flood stage. An additional rise of two to three feet was forecast, but this would not cause serious damage. The cold weather also slowed sharply the rise of Ohio river tributaries in southern Illinois where 1,000 have been made homeless.

The cold weather spread south to the Gulf of Mexico and eastward to New England. Moderate temperatures continued in California and along the Pacific coast. Mild weather prevailed in the southeast.

REDS INSIST

were idling on or near the north bank of the Yangtze at many points. Coupled with this, the new political demands plunged Nanking hopes of a negotiated settlement to new lows.

The Communist broadcast, by an unidentified spokesman,, also angrily demanded re-arrest of Lt. Gen. Yasutsugu Okamura, last Japanese commander in China. He was acquitted of war crimes before a Chinese government military court Wednesday.

The Communist statement declared:

"We hold that your present activities are a scheme to use hypocritical peace negotiations as a cover for regrouping your forces and war preparations, including a plot to bring the Japanese reactionaries to China to join you in butchering the Chinese people."

The statement suggested that the local surrender at Peiping Jan. 22 was a pattern for similar bit-by bit settlements covering Nanking, Shanghai, Canton and all other government-held territory.

It made clear, however, that the Reds' 8-point surrender demand of Jan. 14 must be met first.

First of these eight points was "punishment of war criminals."

"Chiang Kai-Shek is especially important," said the statement. "The said criminal has now fled to Fenghwa, and may very possibly flee abroad, to hide beneath the cloak of American or British imperialism.

"Therefore you must act swiftly to arrest this criminal and not permit him to escape. You must bear full responsibility for this; if escape occurs, you will be punished as a conniver, with no mercy shown whatsoever."

The broadcast referred to the Dec. 25 list of 43 "war criminals," but said a fuller list was now being discussed with various non-government organizations "in our territory and yours" and would be published soon.

(The original Red list contained 45 names. Several times since, the Communists have referred to 43, without saying which two were removed. The two exemptions might be Acting President Li and Gen. Fu Tso-Yi, the government's North China commander. Li's name has not been mentioned since the first broadcast, and Fu was praised in the latest statement for his work on the Peiping settlement.)

"Nanking will be informed later of the preparatory work that must be carried out by both sides for other points of the eight terms," said the statement.

(This implied that all eight points would have to be met before peace can be "negotiated." Second of the eight points is "abrogate the bogus constitution. Others include "remold all reactionary armies; confiscate bureaucratic capital; reform the land system; and abrogate treaties of national betrayal.")

The broadcast said, "Carrying out these eight terms will be enough and may be more than enough work for you, for us, for all democratic parties and groups, all people's organizations, and people of all circles thoughout the country for several months, half a year, a year, several years."

At the same time, Nanking was instructed to hold its peace delegates in readiness to confer in Peiping whenever the pre-conditions should be met.

Another Communist broadcast, presented on a less official basis, accused Chiang Kai-Shek of having secretly ordered his followers to "fight to the finish" before he left Jan. 21.

Government representatives in Peiping relayed a Red demand that the government halt its move south to Canton.

This already has gone too far to halt, even if the government agreed. Operations in Canton are scheduled to begin by Feb. 5.

In this connection, unconfirmed reports, said to have originated in the Chinese foreign office, stated that the Soviet ambassador would leave for Canton Sunday. Because of the supposed Soviet affinity for the Reds, this injected an unexplained element into the confused situation.

The United States and other western powers are retaining their embassies in Nanking and sending only second-string diplomatic representatives to Canton.

that they had been accepted were completely unfounded.

The informants said "a rebellious movement to overthrow the legal regime in Greece cannot be considered a government" with which the Nationalists could negotiate.

The Conservative Newspaper Estia said the government has met the people's desires in ignoring the rebels' peace offer. It was the first Greek publication to comment on it.

The government pressed its campaign to shut off aid to rebels in the field. Piraeus police arrested 34 women in raids against a Communist women's organization and ordered them held for trial by a military tribunal. All were charged with aiding rebels by collecting money for them and distributing Communist leaflets.

Guerrillas raided the American school of agriculture near Salonika last night, and abducted 36 students and three workers. All of those seized were Greeks. National troops pursued the raiders. The school is American-supported.

his little heart'. No one can understand who has not had a polio victim in the family, how they suffer as well as the patient. Little Glynn has really had a tough time for the past two and one-half years and still has a long way to go before he can walk alone, but thanks to the March of Dimes he has already received much assistance and is improving slowly and we hope that some day he can walk alone.

"I feel sure that if more people who are financially able could see and get acquanited with little Glynn Swaggart the March of Dimes fund would grow with lightning pace.

"From Glynn's grandmother, Mrs. R. H. Swaggart, Sr."

Here is a pig story facts of which were secured from J. H. McQuerry down at Columbia. He's an ex-newspaper man so we are sure like George Washington he can never tell a lie.

Last spring a pig, small and scrawny, appeared on the banks of Davis lake in Ward 2, Caldwell parish. It was a runt, its owner and even its sex chanced to be shrouded in mystery. But this did not prevent its becoming a downright nuisance, for no gate or fence was able to keep the beast out. The farmer who was bothered with the creature decided to place an "adv." in the "estray" column of the Caldwell Watchman and here is how he phrased it:" There is on my premises a mischievous pig, black with white spots, apparently nine months old, weight 60 pounds or thereabouts of common razorback stock. Owner diligently sought after remains unknown."

The estray advertisement was run in the weekly newspaper for a month without avail. The day of the proposted sale arrived. However the auctioneer received not a single bid, the animal being regarded not worth accrued costs. There upon the justice of the peace suggested that the costs be contributed to the Red Cross for the purchase of the beast and that the farmer continue to feed it until the January auction sale would be held. The court so ordered.

Now it is disclosed that the farmer, T. E. Teekell, fed the pig and placed it on sale on the block at the Delhi livestock auction. It amazed even the most optimistic when it was sold for $28.00. A check for this sum was handed to Judge V. M. Mouser, chairman of the Caldwell parish Red Cross.

Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Wood will sail from New Orleans February 3 on the "Antiqua", steamer of the Great White fleet, for a cruise in the Caribbean and they will include the Panama Canal on the trip. Also they will doubtless stop off at some of the countries where there has been a turn over of governmental administrations recently. Dr. Wood does not state as to whether or not he plans to make any further changes in governmental status while down there, but his friends say he'll bear watching. He promises to be back after a three-weeks' frolic down where the sun spends the winter.

man, has suggested the death sentence to the court.

What Gandhi would have said about any effort to punish his slayers will be debated in India for a long time. But the people have raised no question that justice should take its course.

Bloody rioting between the Hindu and Moslem populations of India and Pakistan had become commonplace when Gandhi was shot down. He was walking to his prayer meeting place here to continue his crusade for communal peace, when three shots were fired into his body.

The crime occurred as India faced critical times and issues.

There was talk of war between the two new dominions, created when British crown rule of India ended and the country was divided in August, 1947. Refugees crammed the cities, calling for the blood of people of the opposite religion. Hindus had fled Pakistan, and Moslems from India —12,000,000 of them.

The economy was shaken on both sides of the border.

Not all of the headway in the past 12 months came about as Gandhi would have done it. There was more rioting, but it ebbed steadily. The police and military crushed it with their guns, bayonets and clubs. Organizations preaching religious hatred were outlawed and harried out of existence.

The Rastriya Swayam Sewat Sangh, one of the outlawed organizations, tested its comeback powers last December. Its members courted arrest—the old Gandhian technique in his crusade for Indian independence — in an effort to have the ban lifted. The police tear gassed them. The people backed the police.

Under leadership of two staunch friends, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and Governor-General C. Rajagopalachari, India has come far to give Gandhi in death a peaceful land.

A cease-fire agreement dated Jan. 1, arranged with United Nations assistance, has stopped the fighting of Indian and Pakistan troops.

They had fought for months over which dominion should possess the state. They then agreed to settle it by referendum.

Gandhi would have been proud, too, of India's lead in calling the recent Asian conference, which protested Dutch military action in Indonesia and demanded independence for the Indonesians. He believed no western power had a right to colonial possessions in the East.

The country's constituent assembly is drafting the Indian constitution. It is framing a document calling for a democratic state, where the people can express their will freely at the polls, as Gandhi wanted.

SHERROUSE P.-T. A. PLANTS TREES AS PUBLIC MEMORIALS

Arbor Day Fittingly Celebrated On Campus Of School

Arbor day, set this year by gubernatorial proclamation for January 28, was appropriately celebrated at Sherrouse school Friday afternoon. Short talks were given by Mrs. C. C. Lindley, Rev. George Pearce and Mike John, Jr. Trees were planted, one as memorial to the work of E. L. Neville, of the city schools; another to honor students of Sherrouse who have gone forth to high school and college and have taken their places in the world; while the third tree planted was to honor men and women who served in the last World War.

Mrs. W. S. Vincent, principal of Sherrouse school, explained the meaning of Arbor day and told of the trees to be planted. She paid special stress to the third tree that will be a memorial to those who gave their all, even their lives in many instances, that freedom may prevail in our land.

Reverend Pearce, pastor of Memorial Methodist Church, declared in fitting terms, "Trees are like people. they give strength and comfort to those around them. We want this tree, a memorial to our World War men and women, to grow strong and tall just as we want you boys and girls to grow tall and strong."

Then Jimmie Wood, first grade pupil, placed a bottle in which were names of all in the first grade in a hole near the roots of the magnolia tree. He said: "We will guard and protect this tree and six years from now we will take the bottle from the ground and see how many children still remain in Sherrouse school and have enjoyed the growth of the tree through the years."

Mrs. Lindley, past president of Sherrouse P.-T. A. spoke next as follows: "I am happy to have the honor to be here in this tree planting ceremony, especially to dedicate the beautiful magnolia to the P.-T. A. of this community. The Congress of Parents and Teachers will celebrate its 62nd birthday in a few days, and next to the church I think this is the finest organization because it has for its purpose the welfare of children, its ideals and purposes have made it great through the years.

"We are grateful for the Sherrouse P.-T. A. and for its community influence creating good will, better understanding and cooperation between home and school which makes for the betterment of this and every community. This is not the largest P.-T. A. in our state in point of membership, but it ranks high in point of service rendered in the efforts to attain the purposes and objectives for which it was organized. In every organization there must be a guiding light and I would pay tribute today to the guiding light of Sherrouse P.-T. A. since it was organized in 1931, for through the years as each president and other officers have served their terms and passed the torch on to others, the helping hand has always been there to encourage and inspire those to do their best. This guiding light is none else than Mrs. W. S. Vincent, school principal, who because of her sterling qualities and unselfish devotion to duty is now state president of the P.-T. A.

"So as this beautiful tree with its ever shining leaves grows year by year, in the words of Joyce Kilmer. 'Looks to God all day and lifts her leafy arms to pray,' may this P.-T. A. be a symbol of it and look to God for wisdom, guidance and divine leadership in the going forward and carrying on of its purposes and ideals."

The third tree, a beautiful live oak, was dedicated by Mike John, Jr., city school board member, who said:

"I am very happy to be here with you on this occasion, and I would like to take the opportunity in the beginning to compliment you on the initiative and the enthusiasm with which you are observing Arbor day.

"I am impressed wih the theme under which you are dedicating these trees, and the thought of purpose under which you are so dedicating them to a person or to a group of people.

"As my part on the program, I have the happy privilege of honoring our former superintendent, E. L. Neville by dedicating one of these oak trees to him.

"I went to Webster's dictionary in an effort to perhaps find a picture parallel between the qualities represented in an oak tree, and those sterling human qualities represented in Mr. Neville.

"I quickly discovered that Webster's did not do full justice in describing an oak tree. And by like token, I am unable to do full justice to Mr. Neville. The point is that no matter what I might try to say about either Mr. Neville, or an oak tree, my words of description would be inadequate.

"However, there are certain distinguishing and prominent qualities common in this case to both man and tree . . . both creatures and handiwork of God. Mr. Neville, like the oak tree being dedicated to him, possesses those fine qualities of durability strongness and usefulness of purpose which naturally call for esteem.

"Mr. Neville's roots were planted in the soil of education in this city many years ago, and his statue has continued to grow throughout the years. So today, we plant in his honor, a tree that will also continue to grow throughout the years. Mr. Neville's life's work in the educational growth of our city school system is as inspiring as the beauty of this oak tree will be 47 years from now . . . when it too, like Mr. Neville today, can look back over its years of useful service and consider its job well done."

At the conclusion of the planting of the trees, a timely program was presented by each grade, after which refreshments were provided by the school's P.-T. A. under direction of Mrs. Howard John, room mother chairman.

VISHINSKY SUFFERS NERVOUS DISORDER

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 29—(AP)—Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky is "gravely ill from a nervous disorder," a staff member of a Russian army sanatorium at Karlsbad said tonight.

"Mr. Vishinsky is unable to concentrate on anything," the staff member said. "He cannot be seen by anyone."

The sanatorium is located in the Hotel Imperial one of the show places of Karlsbad, an ancient health resort 70 miles west of Prague not far from the German border.

Staff employes and a nurse made no secret of their concern over the condition of Vishinsky, one of the top figures in Soviet diplomacy.

The settlement of his illness was the first official disclosure that Vishinsky was in Czechoslovakia. It was given out after a conference with one of his attendants.

Rumors circulated here Thursday that Vishinsky had been "trouble shooting" in Czechoslovakia.

These rumors stemmed from reports of dissension in the Czechoslovakia government and the Communist party that controls it. They were not confirmed.

Vishinsky, 66, headed the Soviet delegation at the last meeting of the United Nations general assembly in Paris.

He has been one of the most vigorous defenders of Soviet foreign policy in all international assemblies.

Although Vishinsky's presence in Karlsbad had been rumored for several days, no official quarter would confirm that he was in Czechoslovakia.

The Soviet embassy declined to talk about it.

BODIES OF MORE THAN 70 RAISED

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 29—(AP)—The bodies of more than 70 men, women and children have been recovered from the hulk of a sunken German U-boat in Kiel Bay.

The submarine apparently was carrying refugees fleeing before the advancing Russian armies in 1945 when it was trapped on the surface and sunk by Allied aircraft in the bay, known as "the graveyard of the German navy."

Most of the people were from Danzig. Bodies of 54 have been identified. Records are being checked to identify the others.

The 1,600-ton submarine, an undersea coffin to these victims, is just one of more than 40 sunk off the German Baltic coast. This is the first grim evidence uncovered by salvage crews, however, that they were used to exacuate civilians.

Hundreds of refugees were known to have died when the German liner Wilhelm Gustloff, 25-000 tons, hit a mine and sank in January, 1945, off Stolpmuende. Thousands of concentration camp inmates died when they were moved by sea, with the bombing of the liners Cap Arcona and Deutschland. S. S. guards shot those who swam ashore.

The overturned hulks are easily visible in Leubeck Bay, where some day salvage men will get to them. A recent survey showed 431 wrecks of German shipping off the North Sea and Baltic coasts.

The vessels are being salvaged, and the scrap metal is exported to Britain by occupation authorities.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength — and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. LEGION ACCEPTS BID FOR PARK GRANDSTAND

JOHNSON, COON MAKE A $28,385 BUILDING OFFER

Formal Signing Of Contract Expected To Take Place Tomorrow

A building contract for the first phase of construction of a proposed baseball stadium at Bernstein Park is expected to be let tomorow with the formal signing of the necessary documents, it was announced yesterday by Jim Trousdale, chairman of the general committee of American Legion Stadium, Inc.

Trousdale, also commander of L. B. Faulk Post of the American Legion which is sponsoring the park building program, said contracts had been submitted for the building of the grandstand and that the bid of Johnston and Coon, a Monroe firm, of $28,385 has been accepted.

"One other firm submitted a slightly lower bid," Trousdale revealed, "But the offer by Johnston and Coon included specifications for a more suitable grandstand and we feel that in the long run we'll be geting more for our money in accepting their offer." The fact that theirs is a local concern also was judged in the acceptance."

The Johnston and Coon bid includes complete grandstand and bleachers, with concrete box seats, a roof over the grandstand, wood seats on steel framework, press box, and wire screen. It does not include dressing rooms, ticket offices, concession stands, fences and such which go into making up a complete baseball plant.

Bids for other phases of work will be asked at later dates as the necessary funds become available.

Overall, tomorow is expected to be a big day for American Legion Stadium, Inc. In addition to the signing of the grandstand building contract, Trousdale said officials of the city of Monroe are expected to sign over a formal lease for the Bernstein Park property, details of which are being handled for the Legion by Travis Oliver Jr., relative to ground layout and leasing arrangements. Then tomorrow night members of L. B. Faulk Post will gather to reorganize their drive for additional building funds.

"We have sufficient funds in sight to defray the costs of this contract," Trousdale said. "We are redoubling our efforts to realize our goal of $60,000 which will provide Monroe and West Monroe with one of the finest ball parks anywhere in the country."

Bonneau Peters, head of the Shreveport Sports of the Texas League, is ready to back a professional club or a semi-pro team in Monroe and is expected to put the club in the local plant this spring. Peters has been seeking membership in the Cotton States League for a Monroe club, but since there is no immediate opening in the Cotton States, he intends to aid with a semi-pro outfit until a professional franchise becomes available.

MORE DONATIONS

The baseball park building fund yesterday had reached $17,238.10 with additional donations accepted in the last two days by American Legion Stadium, Inc.

Latest firms and individuals to join in the drive are Brown Paper Mill Company, Teddy R. Moore, Sam M. Brown, C. S. Walker, C. S. Walker Jr., Nichols Motor Company, Scoggin Motor Company, Square Deal Motor Company, M. and S. Motors, Willis Montgomery, Earl Motors, Henry Lawton, Charles A. Panzico, B. J. NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(NEA)—Jim Buckley died, and the conversation on Jacobs Beach swung 'way back to the old Sharkey A. C., where the grand old Irishman was the promoter, matchmaker ticket taker and announcer all rolled into one highly explosive package.

In those "Both-Members-of-This-Club" days before the Frawley law and World War I, ringworms walked up a flight of stairs into a little place with a small balcony on the west side of mid-New York. As few as 1500 spectators packed the joint to the rafters.

"The ropes on one side of the ring were only several inches from a brick wall," recalled Dumb Dan Morgan, the venerable manager.

"Many a belligerent charged or was spun into the wall, but fighters' heads were harder in those days."

Top purses ran from $400 to $600, yet many renowned performers appeared at the Sharkey A. C., during that particular stretch when prize fighting was illegal in New York State. Included among them were Jack Johnson, Sam Langford, Gunboat Smith, the Twin Sullivans, Willie Beecher, Harlem Tommy Murphy, Leach Cross, K. O. Valentine Brown and Abe Attell.

Tickets were sold downstairs, but if the purchaser didn't look good to ticket taker Buckley at the door, he didn't get in.

The club was raided practically every week, and Buckley would announce:

"Boys, a couple of bum cops sneaked in here, and I have to go to the station house. But I have the power to get out, and I'll let you know when to come back."

Shows thus postponed frenuently took place the very next night.

Buckley, a real tough man who stood only five feet four and was as wide as he was high, developed violent dislikes for boxing writers who referred to his fights as being of the outlaw variety. He insisted that it was strictly a club proposition.

Six-foot Jim McConaughy, a brilliant writer of the time, was thrown down the stairs by the husky Buckley early in the history of the Sharkey A. C. for tagging it "The Tub of Blood."

Buckley managed Harlem Tommy Murphy, Gunboat Smith and later Canada Lee, now a renowned actor.

He originated the exclamation "We wuz robbed!" at the conclusion of one of the Gunner's matches in California.

Paying off his fighters, Buckley didn't like the idea of itemizing all things, so he wrote "etc." after each pay-off of any size. All that stood out in the statements given the fighters were those etc's.

"Who are all these people?" Gunboat Smith finally asked him.

"If you had to pay them all," replied Buckley, "you'd know who they were."

Buckley's father was the patentee of a hod-hoisting machine, and Jim and his brother, Dominick, inherited a very fine business.

But Jim Buckley went broke backing theatrical productions.

'Lead Poisoning' Causes Deaths Of Ducks In LaFourche Swamp

Horace Buckley, state game agent of Swartz, last night said the recent wave of deaths among the duck population wintering in LaFourche swamp near here had been attributed to "lead poisoning" by John Lynch, biologist of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

Lynch forwarded a full report of the findings in the duck deaths to Buckley after completing the examination of dead birds in laboratory tests and commended the Swartz agent for his alertness in discovering and reporting the plight of the ducks.

The outbreak of duck sickness in LaFourche swamp was reported by Buckley on January 15, and, at the reuest of Major James Brown of the Louisiana department of Wildlife and Fisheries, and U. S. Game Management Agent Charles H. Lawrence, an "on the scene" investigation was made January 20 by Agent J. C. Lanier and Biologist Lynch with the assistance of State Agent Buckley.

It was reported that at the height of the sickness as many as fifty dead ducks per day were found by trappers and Buckley.

Lynch's final report blamed lead shotgun pellets which the birds had picked up in feeding off the bottom of the swamp for their plight. One examined duck had as many as 26 lead pellets in its gizzard. Birds affected by "lead poisoning" lose their power of flight and die, others, not too greatly poisoned, become sterile and are incapable of reproduction.

"Fortunately heavy rains fell in the region on January 20 and 21," Lynch reported. "The resultant rise in water levels moved the ducks out of the most dangerous feedings areas and brought a halt to the sickness. We do not anticipate further trouble from this sources this season, but the area should be watched closely, and, should sickness recur, immediate steps should be taken to drive the ducks out.

"Exact appraisal of the number of ducks lost in this outbreak of lead poisoning is impossible. Hogs and ground predators immediately destroyed sick and dead birds, and rising waters removed what evidence might have been left. However, considering the duration and severity of the outbreak, the number of carcasses we found per unit area, and the number reported by trappers, we estimate that lead poisoning killed or contributed to the deaths of at least 1,000 ducks. We must add to this figure an unknown number of birds that are still on the wing, but that picked up sublethal or possibly sterilizing doses of shot before rising waters forced them out of the danger area."

NO WIVES AND NO AUTOS GO TO WHITE SOX CAMP

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The new Chicago White Sox regime is already clamping down to get the best possible results out of its player personnel.

General Manager Frank Lane will issue an order to each player before the club departs for Pasadena, Calif., Feb. 26 that wives and automobiles are to be left behind.

"Any White Sox player who brings his automobile or wife to spring training," says an edict to be passed out, "will be fined $250, which will not be returnable at the end of the 1949 season."

The ultimatum also states that "no player will be permitted to leave the club to go to his home city and drive his car or escort his wife to Chicago."

GAVILAN SPEAKS OUT FOR CHANCE AT WELTER BELT

After Surprise Win Over Williams, Cuban Demands Robinson Match

By Jack Hand

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Kid Gavilan will post forfeit for a welterweight title match with Sugar Ray Robinson after his exciting upset victory over Ike Williams, the lightweight king.

The 20th Century Sporting Club has something else in mind—a 15-round rematch of last night's 10-round nontitle battle with Ike. Frank "Blinky" Palermo, Williams' manager, is in full agreement with the promoters.

"No soap," says Angel Lopez, Gavilan's manager, "no third match. Why should we fight him again? I will go to the New York State Commission Monday or Tuesday and put up the money demanding that Robinson fight us.

"We'll fight anybody they say if Robinson doesn't want to fight. Charley Fusari, Gene Burton, Vince Foster, Bernard Docusen or anybody. Yes, even Williams, if they say so, but only for the welter title.

"If Robinson fights as a welterweight again he has to fight the kid or pay us $5,000. We never signed any papers releasing him from that agreement, made when he promised to weigh 150 for the non-title fight with the kid at the Yankee Stadium last September. (Robinson weighed 150 1/2 and decisioned the Cuban.)

There is some doubt about Robinson's ability to make the 147-pound weight limit. Sugar Ray claims he can do it, but others are dubious. In any event he probably will not be ready to risk the crown without a few tuneups after a long layoff due to a rib injury. That would push back any title match until the summer in a ball park.

In the meantime, Williams will be pressing for another match with Gavilan. It will be a sure sellout in the Garden for the crowd of 15,125 which paid $57,195 for the second of the series wants more. Few fights in recent Garden history have been fought more bitterly than last night's brawl.

Gavilan reuired three stitches in a cut over his right eye after a furious scrap that was fought head to head and shoulder to shoulder all the way.

Ike won the first time they met, last February, on a very close but unanimous decision. This time it was split. Referee Ruby Goldstein called it a draw 4-4-2 with 8 points for each. Judge Harold Barnes and Artie Schwartz saw it for Gavilan 5-4 with 1 even. The AP card put Gavilan ahead 5-3-2 but it was razor close in every round. Many thought a draw was right.

The Cuban's body punching swung the vote this time as he banged away at Ike's middle with his left hand. Once again Willliams was the stiffer puncher but Gavilan smothered many of them with his bobbing, weaving style. Flashy Gavilan put on his usual closing spurt in each round.

Gavilan's most spectacular rally came in the final 15 seconds when, on advice from Trainer Charlie Goldman, he swarmed over Ike like a wild man. Firing away with both hands he must have thrown 50 punches, such as they were in the final surge to victory.

Sharpshooter Ike, deadpan as usual, stalked his man. Jabbing with the left, he tried to set him up for that right hand bomb. Several times he succeeded but Gavilan shook off the bomb and came right back throwing punches.

Ike scaled 140 1/2 to Gavilan's 145 1/4.

PARKER TEAMS WITH STEDDUM AGAINST CURTIS

Champion Jack To Furnish Own Partner As 'Surprise' At Kallio's

A tag team scramble that will serve to continue the Jack Curtis-Bill Steddum fuss and include Allen "Sailor" Parker and a yet unnamed wrestler will be the feature attraction of the program at Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night.

Promoter Kallio last night announced the match developed through Parker, the tough Tennessee veteran who will team with Steddum, the wild bull from Waco, Tex., world's light heavyweight champ, had been granted permission to produce his own teammate as a "surprise."

Parker, shortly after he had won a straight-falls victory over The Virginian here last Tuesday night and while Curtis and Steddum were mixing it up in a rowdy main event, approached Kallio with the offer: "Let me be the matchmaker for next week and I'll guarantee you a good card that'll draw a big crowd."

"Well, I take ideas from anybody when it comes to matchmaking," answered Kallio, "What do you have in mind?"

But at that point the Curtis-Steddum action got rough, and Kallio bolted away to the ringside leaving Parker and his question unanswered. It was after the night's program was over before Kallio got around to Parker again as the Tennesseon was collecting for his night's work. Then Kallio asked him to finish his story.

"You saw my match with the Virginian," Parker commenced. "I knocked him off in quick fashion—two straight falls—and I feel great. I think I can wrestle as good as I ever could right now, so I'll tell you what I've got in mind.

"I don't have anything against Curtis, but once he played a nasty trick on me and I haven't forgotten. You remember when I was trying to take his belt? I was giving him almost more than he could take. Somehow we fell out of the ring and I hit the concrete floor. As I was getting up, Curtis took advantage of me, grabbed me up in a pile driver and rammed my head against the floor. That's how he won the match."

Kallio said he didn't remember until Parker informed him that was the night "I almost went crazy and bit younr finger." Kallio quickly remembered then for he had a finger tip bitten to the bone.

Finally Parker got around to what he wanted to say all the time: "Match me and Steddum in a tag bout against Curtis and anybody he wants to work with him."

"That won't settle anything," Kallio answered. "Curtis will win again."

"What do you mean?" Parker challenged. "Curtis was beaten two weeks ago, but you and the commissioner took it away from Steddum by reversing the referee (Parker was the referee). But we'll just forget about that, it's water under the bridge and I don't hold a grudge. I just know Curtis is a sneaky wrestler."

"How about Steddum?" Kallio asked. "Don't you think he's a bad one?"

"Sure, he's a little rough and tough, but he's not sneaky," Parker answered. "Anything he does is in the open. He's a gentleman on and off the mat. Him and I have something new worked out, and if you'll give us this match we'll show you something you've never seen before."

Curtis didn't hesitate to accept the match, telling Kallio, "It's like I told you before—more matches, more money."

However, Curtis wouldn't say who he had in mind for a partner. Kallio informed him it was almost necessary to name all the wrestlers on the card in keeping with state regulations. However, Commissioner Dave Silverstein, aproached by Kallio on the case, granted Cutris the right to withhold the name of his partner and bring him in as a surprise package.

Kallio said Claude Skidmore, the Jackson, Miss., official who has done a capable job here on the last two cards, will again work as referee.

GRANTLAND RICE WILL HEAD DRIVE FOR HEART

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(Special)—Grantland Rice, noted sports columnist, has been named chairman of the sports committee in the forthcoming $5,000,000 drive of the American Heart Association, it was announced today by Harold E. Stassen, chairman of the 1949 heart campaign.

The campaign will be conducted from February 7 to 28 by the American Heart Association and its local affiliates throughout the country to support a program of research, education and community service.

"Sports enthusiasts, both on the field and in the stands, have a special interest in the Heart program," Rice said on accepting the appointment.

"In our job as sportswriters we speak of the 'fighter's heart' or the 'heart' of a tennis champion, a distance runner or of any great performer putting forth that last ounce of effort to win. We say this because an athlete literally depends on his heart for performance.

"Every sports performer, professional or amateur, and every lover of sports has a stake in the program of the American Heart Association, in the spread of knowledge for safeguarding the heart of America. I know we may count on the sports world to put its heart into the 1949 campaign to combat America's leading cause of death."

CONCORDIA CAGE DATE ADVANCED

Parish Tournament To Be Held At Ferriday Gym On February 18

FERRIDAY, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—A change has been announced in the date of the annual Concordia Parish Basketball Tournrament. The tournament, orginially scheduled for February 25, will take place on February 18 at the spacious Ferriday High School gymnasium with entries expected from Ferriday, Vidalia, Acme, New Era, Monterey, Shaw and Clayton.

According to the announcement of the change in date made by the parish superintendent of education, Jesse C. Burris, of Vidalia, competition in the annual parish cage meet has been so arranged that the smaller schools of the parish will have an equal chance to compete with the larger schools.

Supt. Burris declared that three factors will be considered in the competition for the grand prizes, and these are: percentage of attendance of faculty members, percentage of attendance of pupils, and the playing percentage of the teams of a parish school. He said all of these factors will be averaged, and the school having the highest average of these will receive first prize in the annual event.

In order to give all an equal chance, Supt. Burris states that the competition for the division prizes will disregard the size of the parish schols and the games will be played strictly on the basis of the winning team receiving the prize. He added that these division prizes will be awarded to championships of four divisions, high school boys, high school girls, elementary school boys and elementary school girls.

According to Supt. Burris the idea of the tournament association is to increase the attendance of pupils and faculty members at the annual tournament in Ferriday. In past years, he pointed out, the attendance at the cage meets, has been slight.

LEGION ACCEPTS BID FOR PARK GRANDSTAND

JOHNSON, COON MAKE A $28,385 BUILDING OFFER

Formal Signing Of Contract Expected To Take Place Tomorrow

A building contract for the first phase of construction of a proposed baseball stadium at Bernstein Park is expected to be let tomorow with the formal signing of the documents, it was announced yesterday by Jim Trousdale, chairman of the general committee of American Legion Stadium, Inc.

Trousdale, also commander of L. B. Faulk Post of the American Legion which is sponsoring the park building program, said contracts had been submitted for the building of the grandstand and that the bid of Johnston and Coon, a Monroe firm, of $28,385 has been accepted.

"One other firm submitted a slightly lower bid," Trousdale revealed, "But the offer by Johnston and Coon included specifications for a more suitable grandstand and we feel that in the long run we'll be geting more for our money in accepting their offer." The fact that theirs is a local concern also was judged in the acceptance."

The Johnston and Coon bid includes complete grandstand and bleachers, with concrete box seats, a roof over the grandstand, wood seats on steel framework, press box, and wire screen. It does not include dressing rooms, ticket offices, concession stands, fences and such which go into making up a complete baseball plant.

Bids for other phases of work will be asked at later dates as the necessary funds become available.

Overall, tomorow is expected to be a big day for American Legion Stadium, Inc. In addition to the signing of the grandstand building contract, Trousdale said officials of the city of Monroe are expected to sign over a formal lease for the Bernstein Park property, details of which are being handled for the Legion by Travis Oliver Jr., relative to ground layout and leasing arrangements. Then tomorrow night members of L. B. Faulk Post will gather to reorganize their drive for additional building funds.

"We have sufficient funds in sight to defray the costs of this contract," Trousdale said. "We are redoubling our efforts to realize our goal of $60,000 which will provide Monroe and West Monroe with one of the finest ball parks anywhere in the country."

Bonneau Peters, head of the Shreveport Sports of the Texas League, is ready to back a professional club or a semi-pro team in Monroe and is expected to put the club in the local plant this spring. Peters has been seeking membership in the Cotton States League for a Monroe club, but since there is no immediate opening in the Cotton States, he intends to aid with a semi-pro outfit until a professional franchise becomes available.

MORE DONATIONS

The baseball park building fund yesterday had reached $17,238.10 with additional donations accepted in the last two days by American Legion Stadium, Inc.

Latest firms and individuals to join in the drive are Brown Paper Mill Company, Teddy R. Moore, Sam M. Brown, C. S. Walker, C. S. St. Paschal's Parochial School of West Monroe is launching an athletic program for its boys this year and yesterday announced the appointment of Lawrence Gibbs, KMLB radio station announcer, as coach.

Sister Bernadette of St. Paschal's has completed arrangements for Gibbs to begin work with the boys at once, and Gibbs said yesterday he would hold a "get acquainted" session tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 o'clock.

Gibbs said he was planning a program of boxing, baseball and football for St. Paschal's which includes all school grades through the tenth. Conditioning drills will be undertaken before the boys plunge into any single phase of athletics.

NO WIVES AND NO AUTOS GO TO WHITE SOX CAMP

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The new Chicago White Sox regime is already clamping down to get the best possible results out of its player personnel.

General Manager Frank Lane will issue an order to each player before the club departs for Pasadena, Calif., Feb. 26 that wives and automobiles are to be left behind.

"Any White Sox player who brings his automobile or wife to spring training," says an edict to be passed out, "will be fined $250, which will not be returnable at the end of the 1949 season."

The ultimatum also states that "no player will be permitted to leave the club to go to his home city and drive his car or escort his wife to Chicago."

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(NEA)—Jim Buckley died, and the conversation on Jacobs Beach swung 'way back to the old Sharkey A. C., where the grand old Irishman was the promoter, matchmaker ticket taker and announcer all rolled into one highly explosive package.

In those "Both-Members-of-This-Club" days before the Frawley law and World War I, ringworms walked up a flight of stairs into a little place with a small balcony on the west side of mid-New York. As few as 1500 spectators packed the joint to the rafters.

"The ropes on one side of the ring were only several inches from a brick wall," recalled Dumb Dan Morgan, the venerable manager.

"Many a belligerent charged or was spun into the wall, but fighters' heads were harder in those days."

Top purses ran from $400 to $600, yet many renowned performers appeared at the Sharkey A. C., during that particular stretch when prize fighting was illegal in New York State. Included among them were Jack Johnson, Sam Langford, Gunboat Smith, the Twin Sullivans, Willie Beecher, Harlem Tommy Murphy, Leach Cross, K. O. Valentine Brown and Abe Attell.

Tickets were sold downstairs, but if the purchaser didn't look good to ticket taker Buckley at the door, he didn't get in.

The club was raided practically every week, and Buckley would announce:

"Boys, a couple of bum cops sneaked in here, and I have to go to the station house. But I have the power to get out, and I'll let you know when to come back."

Shows thus postponed frenuently took place the very next night.

Buckley, a real tough man who stood only five feet four and was as wide as he was high, developed violent dislikes for boxing writers who referred to his fights as being of the outlaw variety. He insisted that it was strictly a club proposition.

Six-foot Jim McConaughy, a brilliant writer of the time, was thrown down the stairs by the husky Buckley early in the history of the Sharkey A. C. for tagging it "The Tub of Blood."

Buckley managed Harlem Tommy Murphy, Gunboat Smith and later Canada Lee, now a renowned actor.

He originated the exclamation "We wuz robbed!" at the conclusion of one of the Gunner's matches in California.

Paying off his fighters, Buckley didn't like the idea of itemizing all things, so he wrote "etc," after each pay-off of any size. All that stood out in the statements given the fighters were those etc's.

"Who are all these people?" Gunboat Smith finally asked him.

"If you had to pay them all," replied Buckley, "you'd know who they were."

Buckley's father was the patentee of a hod-hoisting machine, and Jim and his brother, Dominick, inherited a very fine business.

But Jim Buckley went broke backing theatrical productions.

'Lead Poisoning' Causes Deaths Of Ducks In LaFourche Swamp

Horace Buckley, state game agent of Swartz, last night said the recent wave of deaths among the duck population wintering in LaFourche swamp near here had been attributed to "lead poisoning" by John Lynch, biologist of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

Lynch forwarded a full report of the findings in the duck deaths to Buckley after completing the examination of dead birds in laboratory tests and commended the Swartz agent for his alertness in discovering and reporting the plight of the ducks.

The outbreak of duck sickness in LaFourche swamp was reported by Buckley on January 15, and, at the reuest of Major James Brown of the Louisiana department of Wildlife and Fisheries, and U. S. Game Management Agent Charles H. Lawrence, an "on the scene" investigation was made January 20 by Agent J. C. Lanier and Biologist Lynch with the assistance of State Agent Buckley.

It was reported that at the height of the sickness as many as fifty dead ducks per day were found by trappers and Buckley.

Lynch's final report blamed lead shotgun pellets which the birds had picked up in feeding off the bottom of the swamp for their plight. One examined duck had as many as 26 lead pellets in its gizzard. Birds affected by "lead poisoning" lose their power of flight and die, others, not too greatly poisoned, become sterile and are incapable of reproduction.

"Fortunately heavy rains fell in the region on January 20 and 21," Lynch reported. "The resultant rise in water levels moved the ducks out of the most dangerous feedings areas and brought a halt to the sickness. We do not anticipate further trouble from this sources this season, but the area should be watched closely, and, should sickness recur, immediate steps should be taken to drive the ducks out.

"Exact appraisal of the number of ducks lost in this outbreak of lead poisoning is impossible. Hogs and ground predators immediately destroyed sick and dead birds, and rising waters removed what evidence might have been left. However, considering the duration and severity of the outbreak, the number of carcasses we found per unit area, and the number reported by trappers, we estimate that lead poisoning killed or contributed to the deaths of at least 1,000 ducks. We must add to this figure an unknown number of birds that are still on the wing, but that picked up sublethal or possibly sterilizing doses of shot before rising waters forced them out of the danger area."

GAVILAN SPEAKS OUT FOR CHANCE AT WELTER BELT

After Surprise Win Over Williams, Cuban Demands Robinson Match

By Jack Hand

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Kid Gavilan will post forfeit for a welterweight title match with Sugar Ray Robinson after his exciting upset victory over Ike Williams, the lightweight king.

The 20th Century Sporting Club has something else in mind—a 15-round rematch of last night's 10-round nontitle battle with Ike. Frank "Blinky" Palermo, Williams' manager, is in full agreement with the promoters.

"No soap," says Angel Lopez, Gavilan's manager, "no third match. Why should we fight him again? I will go to the New York State Commission Monday or Tuesday and put up the money demanding that Robinson fight us.

"We'll fight anybody they say if Robinson doesn't want to fight. Charley Fusari, Gene Burton, Vince Foster, Bernard Docusen or anybody. Yes, even Williams, if they say so, but only for the welter title.

"If Robinson fights as a welterweight again he has to fight the kid or pay us $5,000. We never signed any papers releasing him from that agreement, made when he promised to weigh 150 for the non-title fight with the kid at the Yankee Stadium last September. (Robinson weighed 150 1/2 and decisioned the Cuban.)

There is some doubt about Robinson's ability to make the 147-pound weight limit. Sugar Ray claims he can do it, but others are dubious. In any event he probably will not be ready to risk the crown without a few tuneups after a long layoff due to a rib injury. That would push back any title match until the summer in a ball park.

In the meantime, Williams will be pressing for another match with Gavilan. It will be a sure sellout in the Garden for the crowd of 15,125 which paid $57,195 for the second of the series wants more. Few fights in recent Garden history have been fought more bitterly than last night's brawl.

Gavilan reuired three stitches in a cut over his right eye after a furious scrap that was fought head to head and shoulder to shoulder all the way.

Ike won the first time they met, last February, on a very close but unanimous decision. This time it was split. Referee Ruby Goldstein called it a draw 4-4-2 with 8 points for each. Judge Harold Barnes and Artie Schwartz saw it for Gavilan 5-4 with 1 even. The AP card put Gavilan ahead 5-3-2 but it was razor close in every round. Many thought a draw was right.

The Cuban's body punching swung the vote this time as he banged away at Ike's middle with his left hand. Once again Willliams was the stiffer puncher but Gavilan smothered many of them with his bobbing, weaving style. Flashy Gavilan put on his usual closing spurt in each round.

Gavilan's most spectacular rally came in the final 15 seconds when, on advice from Trainer Charlie Goldman, he swarmed over Ike like a wild man. Firing away with both hands he must have thrown 50 punches, such as they were in the final surge to victory.

Sharpshooter Ike, deadpan as usual, stalked his man. Jabbing with the left, he tried to set him up for that right hand bomb. Several times he succeeded but Gavilan shook off the bomb and came right back throwing punches.

Ike scaled 140 1/2 to Gavilan's 145 1/4.

PARKER TEAMS WITH STEDDUM AGAINST CURTIS

Champion Jack To Furnish Own Partner As 'Surprise' At Kallio's

A tag team scramble that will serve to continue the Jack Curtis-Bill Steddum fuss and include Allen "Sailor" Parker and a yet unnamed wrestler will be the feature attraction of the program at Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night.

Promoter Kallio last night announced the match developed through Parker, the tough Tennessee veteran who will team with Steddum, the wild bull from Waco, Tex., world's light heavyweight champ, had been granted permission to produce his own teammate as a "surprise."

Parker, shortly after he had won a straight-falls victory over The Virginian here last Tuesday night and while Curtis and Steddum were mixing it up in a rowdy main event, approached Kallio with the offer: "Let me be the matchmaker for next week and I'll guarantee you a good card that'll draw a big crowd."

"Well, I take ideas from anybody when it comes to matchmaking," answered Kallio, "What do you have in mind?"

But at that point the Curtis-Steddum action got rough, and Kallio bolted away to the ringside leaving Parker and his question unanswered. It was after the night's program was over before Kallio got around to Parker again as the Tennesseon was collecting for his night's work. Then Kallio asked him to finish his story.

"You saw my match with the Virginian," Parker commenced. "I knocked him off in quick fashion—two straight falls—and I feel great. I think I can wrestle as good as I ever could right now, so I'll tell you what I've got in mind.

"I don't have anything against Curtis, but once he played a nasty trick on me and I haven't forgotten. You remember when I was trying to take his belt? I was giving him almost more than he could take. Somehow we fell out of the ring and I hit the concrete floor. As I was getting up, Curtis took advantage of me, grabbed me up in a pile driver and rammed my head against the floor. That's how he won the match."

Kallio said he didn't remember until Parker informed him that was the night "I almost went crazy and bit younr finger." Kallio quickly remembered then for he had a finger tip bitten to the bone.

Finally Parker got around to what he wanted to say all the time: "Match me and Steddum in a tag bout against Curtis and anybody he wants to work with him."

"That won't settle anything," Kallio answered. "Curtis will win again."

"What do you mean?" Parker challenged. "Curtis was beaten two weeks ago, but you and the commissioner took it away from Steddum by reversing the referee (Parker was the referee). But we'll just forget about that, it's water under the bridge and I don't hold a grudge. I just know Curtis is a sneaky wrestler."

"How about Steddum?" Kallio asked. "Don't you think he's a bad one?"

"Sure, he's a little rough and tough, but he's not sneaky," Parker answered. "Anything he does is in the open. He's a gentleman on and off the mat. Him and I have something new worked out, and if you'll give us this match we'll show you something you've never seen before."

Curtis didn't hesitate to accept the match, telling Kallio, "It's like I told you before—more matches, more money."

However, Curtis wouldn't say who he had in mind for a partner. Kallio informed him it was almost necessary to name all the wrestlers on the card in keeping with state regulations. However, Commissioner Dave Silverstein, aproached by Kallio on the case, granted Cutris the right to withhold the name of his partner and bring him in as a surprise package.

Kallio said Claude Skidmore, the Jackson, Miss., official who has done a capable job here on the last two cards, will again work as referee.

GRANTLAND RICE WILL HEAD DRIVE FOR HEART

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(Special)—Grantland Rice, noted sports columnist, has been named chairman of the sports committee in the forthcoming $5,000,000 drive of the American Heart Association, it was announced today by Harold E. Stassen, chairman of the 1949 heart campaign.

The campaign will be conducted from February 7 to 28 by the American Heart Association and its local affiliates throughout the country to support a program of research, education and community service.

"Sports enthusiasts, both on the field and in the stands, have a special interest in the Heart program," Rice said on accepting the appointment.

"In our job as sportswriters we speak of the 'fighter's heart' or the 'heart' of a tennis champion, a distance runner or of any great performer putting forth that last ounce of effort to win. We say this because an athlete literally depends on his heart for performance.

"Every sports performer, professional or amateur, and every lover of sports has a stake in the program of the American Heart Association, in the spread of knowledge for safeguarding the heart of America. I know we may count on the sports world to put its heart into the 1949 campaign to combat America's leading cause of death."

CONCORDIA CAGE DATE ADVANCED

Parish Tournament To Be Held At Ferriday Gym On February 18

FERRIDAY, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—A change has been announced in the date of the annual Concordia Parish Basketball Tounrnament. The tournament, orginially scheduled for February 25, will take place on February 18 at the spacious Ferriday High School gymna ium with entries expected from Ferriday, Vidalia, Acme, New Era, Monterey, Shaw and Clayton.

According to the announcement of the change in date made by the parish superintendent of education, Jesse C. Burris, of Vidalia, competition in the annual parish cage meet has been so arranged that the smaller schools of the parish will have an equal chance to compete with the larger schools.

Supt. Burris declared that three factors will be considered in the competition for the grand prizes, and these are; percentage of attendance of faculty members, percentage of attendance of pupils, and the playing percentage of the teams of a parish school. He said all of these factors will be averaged, and the school having the highest average of these will receive first prize in the annual event.

In order to give all an equal chance, Supt. Burris states that the competition for the division prizes will disregard the size of the parish schols and the games will be played strictly on the basis of the winning team receiving the prize. He added that these division prizes will be awarded to championships of four divisions, high school boys, high school girls, elementary school boys and elementary school girls.

According to Supt. Burris the idea of the tournament association is to increase the attendance of pupils and faculty members at the annual tournament in Ferriday. In past years, he pointed out, the attendance at the cage meets, has been slight.

HOGAN STORMS INTO LEAD IN PHOENIX OPEN

BANTAM BENNY EQUALS COURSE RECORD WITH 64

Jimmy Demaret Trails Pacemaker In $10,000 Event By One Stroke

By Jack Stevenson

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Ben Hogan, the Hershey, Pa., golfing king, equalled the Phoneix Country Club competitive golf record of 64 today as he moved into a third round lead in the $10,000 Phoenix Open with a 204.

Hogan finished with a pair of birdies as his approach shot landed within six feet of the pin on the 17th to give him a three. He chipped on the 18th within two feet of the flag.

Two years ago, when he won the tournament here with a 72-hole score of 270, Hogan also had an 18-hole score of 64—that time on the second round. He shares the record with several other professionals.

Pressing the former Texan, who figures to quit the winter circuit and settle down in Fort Worth, Tex., after the Phoenix Open, was Jim Demaret, Ojai, Calif. He turned in a 65 today, even after missing a foot and a half putt on the 16th. Today's work left him with a 205 total.

Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., dentist, and Marty Furgol, Albuquerque, N. M., were red hot. They came

ILLINI HAND UPSET TO GOPHERS, 45-44

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 29—(AP)—Illinois basketball team staged a sensational comeback drive tonight to hand Minnesota's Gophers their first defeat in 14 games, 45-44.

The win gave Illinois possession of first place in the Western Conference with a record of four wins and no losses.

Minnesota now has 5-1.

Jim McIntyre led Minnesota with 15 points, and teammate Whitey Skoog had 13. Fred Green and Jim Marks had 10 each for Illinois.

With 10 minutes gone in the first half, Minnesota held a 17-5 advantage, then the Illinois applied a "press" defense for the first time, and in the final 10 minutes whittled their deficit down to seven points, 27-20, as the half ended.

In the second half, Illinois' press clicked beautifully, Minnesota's stalling offense was unable to function, and during the first four and a half minutes the Illini scored eight points to Minnesota's zero.

SEVERAL TOWNS SHOW INTEREST IN JOINING LOOP

Urania Joins 'Definite' Clubs; Meeting Slated Here February 15

WINNSBORO, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—With the organization meeting at Monroe of a proposed semi-pro baseball league little more than two weeks away, Don Mayer and B. I. Berry, Winnsboro Lions Club committeemen in charge of organization arangements, today reported good progress throughout northeast Louisiana and promise of a strong league.

The organizational meeting is scheduled for Tuesday night, February 15, in the studios of radio station KMLB in Frances Hotel at Monroe, and all towns in this section interested in a strong semi-pro circuit are invited to be represented at the meeting.

In addition to the Columbia Ramblers, already certain of coming in along with the Winnsboro Red Sox, Mayer and Berry said Urania had been announced as a definite entry by Fred Minard of Urania.

The baseball committee of the Winnsboro Lions Club also has visited Delhi, Tallulah, Oak Grove, and Bastrop where they attended meetings designed to bring about baseball organization.

At Delhi, the committee met with Mayor Wilbur H. Farmer, W. E. Coats, George Summerlin, George Anding and others. Delhi promised to "give an answer as soon as we

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—A southern report says the University of North Carolina faculty committee will vote next month against further "bowl" competition for N. C. teams . . . seems that prexy Frank Graham (originator of the ill-fated "Graham plan") always has been against them and strongly opposed going to the Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1 . . . the Tar Heels have lined up an eleven-game schedule without a soft spot, so they'll probably be ready to quit after the regular season ... Another story making the rounds in the south is that Tulane athletic officials relieved Basketball Coach Cliff Wells of the schedule-making duties. Reason was that basketball was advancing so fast they were afraid it would take the play from the strong 1949 football team.

EASY TO LEARN

Bob Cook, No. 1 man on the Indiana University golf team, pulled a "stopper" on Coach Chili Cochrane the other day when the coach suggested a book called "the nine bad shots of golf." . . . said Cook: "Forget it, coach. I not only know those nine shots, I can make every one of them."

SPORTS MENTION

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, who starred on the sports show circuit last winter, turned down $3,000 offers from seven shows this year to make the golf swing. Chances are Babe won't make $21,000 if she wins everything in sight . . . Harry Fitzpatrick, veteran driver, whose luck on the grand circuit was bad last season, got so mad that he declared: "I'd probably do better in any other colors than these red and whites — maybe green and orange." . . . Mrs. Roy Riegel, who manufactures racing silks, overheard aand shipped him a set of green and orange silks. So next season Fitz will be racing in new colors . . . Wilbur Evans, Austin American sports editor who is noted for his diplomacy in protecting colleagues from irate fans, will be the new sports publicity director at the U. of Texas . . . since that syndicate bought the Philadelphia Eagles, Pete claims he goes down the street speaking to everyone he meets. "Might be one of my 100 bosses," he explains.

WEEK END NOTES

Walter P. Chrysler, who knows his nursery rhymes, gave the name "Broken Crown" to his two-year-old colt by Jack High-Up The Hill, which recently made his racing debut. The youngster is a full brother to Pail The Water . . . The national baseball congress has ordered one million baseball rules booklets to be distributed free to kids this year . . . a San Francisco hotel man claims 20 or 30 tablecloths were ruined during the football coaches convention with diagrams of Rose Bowl plays . . . "There were 15 diagrams on as many different tablecloths of Northwestern's second touchdown alone," he explained. "But I still don't know whether Murakowski fumbled before going over the goal line."

RAY MORRISON TAKES AUSTIN COLLEGE POST

SHERMAN, Tex., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Ray Morrison today became head football coach of Austin College. He resigned last Thursday as head mentor at Temple University.

Morrison formerly coached at Southern Methodist University and Vanderbilt.

He succeeds Will Pierce as coach of Austin College, which is a member of the Texas Conference. Pierce resigned Dec. 6 after being coach two years.

The length of contract and salary were not disclosed by Austin College officials.

Morrison is to report here March 1 to start spring training.

STRONG CENTRAL TEAM TO BATTLE OUACHITA CAGERS

Lions Engage High Stepping Richland Parish Boys Here Wednesday

The strong Central High School basketball team, boasting the type of "little" school combination that gets its glory in knocking off the "big" outfits, invades Monroe Wednesday night for a single game against the Ouachita Parish High School Lions.

Coach Herbert H. Holliman last night said it had been originally planned to meet Central in a double header with "B" teams opening the show, but that he would be unable to floor a "B" combination because of promotion of second-stringers to fill gaps in his varsity lineup caused by losses through injuries, ailments, and graduation.

Central, beaten only twice this year and already with a host of victims, recently won first place in the Lake Providence tournament, first place in the Sicily Island invitational tournament, and second place in the tournament of Pines at Urania where they suffered one of their two losses in the title finals. Central, located near Delhi, should rank as a favored team if it elects to compete in the forthcoming Northeast Junior College invitational meet.

The game here Wednesday night is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock in the O. P. H. S. gymnasium.

Losses to the Ouachita squad include Mark Boatright, Tommy Wilson, Billy Milstead, and Harold Price.

Boatright, a standout gridder and dependable cager, is through for the season because of aggravation of a knee injury suffered in football. Coach Holliman said Boatright might be kept out of athletics for the next season to give his knee a chance to regain its strength.

Price was also advised to give up basketball for a while because of an ailment, and the Lions are losing Wilson through mid-term graduation.

The Lions have appeared in only five games so far this year, winning three and losing two. Their most recent triumph was a win over Ruston High School here Friday night to avenge an earlier loss to the Bearcats.

JOE DAVIDSON CAGERS NOSE OUT NEWELLTON

NEWELLTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—In one of the most thrilling games ever staged in this section, the Joseph Davidson High School Commodores nosed out the hard fighting Newellton Bears 19 to 18 Friday night on the Newellton High gym court.

After trailing by a four-point margin through most of the game, the Commodores came to life early in the final quarter. With Newellton leading 17-13 and with only six minutes left to play, the Davidson basketeers broke loose and showed marked improvement in their all-around performances.

After an almost scoreless third quarter the Davidson quintet began to roll early in the final quarter. Enete looped in a long one from center to bring the score to 18-16 in favor of the Bears. Jerry Laparie evened the game up at 18-all by hooking a one hander from the foul circle. Watson then kept the basket hot by dumping in a charity toss from the free throw line.

The foul basket proved to be the margin of victory for the Commodores as they promptly froze the sphere for the remainer of the contest.

MORTON DENIES ST. MARY'S RAID OF GRID TALENT

Gaels Charge Maroons Have Lured Star To Mississippi State

STARKVILLE, Miss., Jan. 29—(AP)—Head Coach A. W. "Slick" Morton of Mississippi State College said today that neither he or the school had contacted Tony Kotowski, St. Mary's College football star reported leaving that school for Mississippi State.

"We are not conducting any campus raids," said Morton, and "If the boy is enroute here I don't know it."

He said if Kotowski wishes he will be admitted since "we can't turn a student, boy or girl, away from a state institution whether he's from Podunk or some big school."

Morton made these remarks in reply to a charge by Public Relations Director Bill Bettencourt of St. Mary's College at Moraga, Calif., that Mississippi State had lured Kotowski, a student sophomore right end, away from the Galloping Gaels.

Bettencourt said Kotowski withdraw from the college yesterday after notifying Coach Joe Verducci he had accepted a scholarship at the southern school.

Morton said Kotowski had written Line Coach Art Lewis some time ago asking if he could be admitted to State and asking also: "If I am injured while playing football could I stay at Mississippi State to graduate? I am a sophomore with two years football eligibility at St. Mary's."

Morton said Kotowski had not been offered a scholarship but "probably would be if he applies for one and is eligible under the N. C. A. A. rules."

Morton did not say if Kotowski's letter was answered but said "If he is coming here I don't know it."

ILLINI HAND UPSET TO GOPHERS, 45-44

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 29—(AP)—Illinois basketball team staged a sensational comeback drive tonight to hand Minnesota's Gophers their first defeat in 14 games, 45-44.

The win gave Illinois possession of first place in the Western Conference with a record of four wins and no losses.

Minnesota now has 5-1.

Jim McIntyre led Minnesota with 15 points, and teammate Whitey Skoog had 13. Fred Green and Jim Marks had 10 each for Illinois.

With 10 minutes gone in the first half, Minnesota held a 17-5 advantage, then the Illinois applied a "press" defense for the first time, and in the final 10 minutes whittled their deficit down to seven points, 27-20, as the half ended.

In the second half, Illinois' press clicked beautifully, Minnesota's stalling offense was unable to function, and during the first four and a half minutes the Illini scored eight points to Minnesota's zero.

SEVERAL TOWNS SHOW INTEREST IN JOINING LOOP

Urania Joins 'Definite' Clubs; Meeting Slated Here February 15

WINNSBORO, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—With the organization meeting at Monroe of a proposed semi-pro baseball league little more than two weeks away, Don Mayer and B. I. Berry, Winnsboro Lions Club committeemen in charge of organization arangements, today reported good progress throughout northeast Louisiana and promise of a strong league.

The organizational meeting is scheduled for Tuesday night, February 15, in the studios of radio station KMLB in Frances Hotel at Monroe, and all towns in this section interested in a strong semi-pro circuit are invited to be represented at the meeting.

In addition to the Columbia Ramblers, already certain of coming in along with the Winnsboro Red Sox, Mayer and Berry said Urania had been announced as a definite entry by Fred Minard of Urania.

The baseball committee of the Winnsboro Lions Club also has visited Delhi, Tallulah, Oak Grove, and Bastrop where they attended meetings designed to bring about baseball organization.

At Delhi, the committee met with Mayor Wilbur H. Farmer, W. E. Coats, George Summerlin, George Anding and others. Delhi promised to "give an answer as soon as we

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—A southern report says the University of North Carolina faculty committee will vote next month against further "bowl" competition for N. C. teams . . . seems that prexy Frank Graham (originator of the ill-fated "Graham plan") always has been against them and strongly opposed going to the Sugar Bowl last Jan. 1 . . . the Tar Heels have lined up an eleven-game schedule without a soft spot, so they'll probably be ready to quit after the regular season ... Another story making the rounds in the south is that Tulane athletic officials relieved Basketball Coach Cliff Wells of the schedule-making duties. Reason was that basketball was advancing so fast they were afraid it would take the play from the strong 1949 football team.

EASY TO LEARN

Bob Cook, No. 1 man on the Indiana University golf team, pulled a "stopper" on Coach Chili Cochrane the other day when the coach suggested a book called "the nine bad shots of golf." . . . said Cook: "Forget it, coach. I not only know those nine shots, I can make every one of them."

SPORTS MENTION

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, who starred on the sports show circuit last winter, turned down $3,000 offers from seven shows this year to make the golf swing. Chances are Babe won't make $21,000 if she wins everything in sight . . . Harry Fitzpatrick, veteran driver, whose luck on the grand circuit was bad last season, got so mad that he declared: "I'd probably do better in any other colors than these red and whites — maybe green and orange." . . . Mrs. Roy Riegel, who manufactures racing silks, overheard aand shipped him a set of green and orange silks. So next season Fitz will be racing in new colors . . . Wilbur Evans, Austin American sports editor who is noted for his diplomacy in protecting colleagues from irate fans, will be the new sports publicity director at the U. of Texas . . . since that syndicate bought the Philadelphia Eagles, Pete claims he goes down the street speaking to everyone he meets. "Might be one of my 100 bosses," he explains.

WEEK END NOTES

Walter P. Chrysler, who knows his nursery rhymes, gave the name "Broken Crown" to his two-year-old colt by Jack High-Up The Hill, which recently made his racing debut. The youngster is a full brother to Pail The Water . . . The national baseball congress has ordered one million baseball rules booklets to be distributed free to kids this year . . . a San Francisco hotel man claims 20 or 30 tablecloths were ruined during the football coaches convention with diagrams of Rose Bowl plays . . ."There were 15 diagrams on as many different tablecloths of Northwestern's second touchdown alone," he explained. "But I still don't know whether Murakowski fumbled before going over the goal line."

RAY MORRISON TAKES AUSTIN COLLEGE POST

SHERMAN, Tex., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Ray Morrison today became head football coach of Austin College. He resigned last Thursday as head mentor at Temple University.

Morrison formerly coached at Southern Methodist University and Vanderbilt.

He succeeds Will Pierce as coach of Austin College, which is a member of the Texas Conference. Pierce resigned Dec. 6 after being coach two years.

The length of contract and salary were not disclosed by Austin College officials.

Morrison is to report here March 1 to start spring training.

STRONG CENTRAL TEAM TO BATTLE OUACHITA CAGERS

Lions Engage High Stepping Richland Parish Boys Here Wednesday

The strong Central High School basketball team, boasting the type of "little" school combination that gets its glory in knocking off the "big" outfits, invades Monroe Wednesday night for a single game against the Ouachita Parish High School Lions.

Coach Herbert H. Holliman last night said it had been originally planned to meet Central in a double header with "B" teams opening the show, but that he would be unable to floor a "B" combination because of promotion of second-stringers to fill gaps in his varsity lineup caused by losses through injuries, ailments, and graduation.

Central, beaten only twice this year and already with a host of victims, recently won first place in the Lake Providence tournament, first place in the Sicily Island invitational tournament, and second place in the tournament of Pines at Urania where they suffered one of their two losses in the title finals. Central, located near Delhi, should rank as a favored team if it elects to compete in the forthcoming Northeast Junior College invitational meet.

The game here Wednesday night is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock in the O. P. H. S. gymnasium.

Losses to the Ouachita squad include Mark Boatright, Tommy Wilson, Billy Milstead, and Harold Price.

Boatright, a standout gridder and dependable cager, is through for the season because of aggravation of a knee injury suffered in football. Coach Holliman said Boatright might be kept out of athletics for the next season to give his knee a chance to regain its strength.

Price was also advised to give up basketball for a while because of an ailment, and the Lions are losing Wilson through mid-term graduation.

The Lions have appeared in only five games so far this year, winning three and losing two. Their most recent triumph was a win over Ruston High School here Friday night to avenge an earlier loss to the Bearcats.

JOE DAVIDSON CAGERS NOSE OUT NEWELLTON

NEWELLTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—In one of the most thrilling games ever staged in this section, the Joseph Davidson High School Commodores nosed out the hard fighting Newellton Bears 19 to 18 Friday night on the Newellton High gym court.

After trailing by a four-point margin through most of the game, the Commodores came to life early in the final quarter. With Newellton leading 17-13 and with only six minutes left to play, the Davidson basketeers broke loose and showed marked improvement in their all-around performances.

After an almost scoreless third quarter the Davidson quintet began to roll early in the final quarter. Enete looped in a long one from center to bring the score to 18-16 in favor of the Bears. Jerry Laparie evened the game up at 18-all by hooking a one hander from the foul circle. Watson then kept the basket hot by dumping in a charity toss from the free throw line.

The foul basket proved to be the margin of victory for the Commodores as they promptly froze the sphere for the remainer of the contest.

MORTON DENIES ST. MARY'S RAID OF GRID TALENT

Gaels Charge Maroons Have Lured Star To Mississippi State

STARKVILLE, Miss., Jan. 29—(AP)—Head Coach A. W. "Slick" Morton of Mississippi State College said today that neither he or the school had contacted Tony Kotowski, St. Mary's College football star reported leaving that school for Mississippi State.

"We are not conducting any campus raids," said Morton, and "If the boy is enroute here I don't know it."

He said if Kotowski wishes he will be admitted since "we can't turn a student, boy or girl, away from a state institution whether he's from Podunk or some big school."

Morton made these remarks in reply to a charge by Public Relations Director Bill Bettencourt of St. Mary's College at Moraga, Calif., that Mississippi State had lured Kotowski, a student sophomore right end, away from the Galloping Gaels.

Bettencourt said Kotowski withdraw from the college yesterday after notifying Coach Joe Verducci he had accepted a scholarship at the southern school.

Morton said Kotowski had written Line Coach Art Lewis some time ago asking if he could be admitted to State and asking also: "If I am injured while playing football could I stay at Mississippi State to graduate? I am a sophomore with two years football eligibility at St. Mary's."

Morton said Kotowski had not been offered a scholarship but "probably would be if he applies for one and is eligible under the N. C. A. A. rules."

Morton did not say if Kotowski's letter was answered but said "If he is coming here I don't know it."

SET SHOTS and LAY-UPS, TOO

(Another of a series by foremost coaches written for NEA Service.)

By Cappy Cappon
Princeton Coach

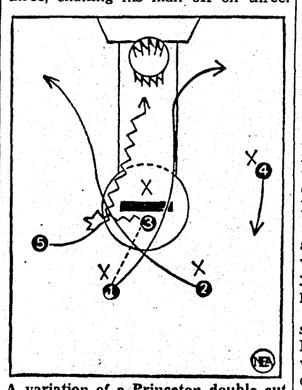
PRINCETON, N. J.—(NEA)—Most Princeton plays are simple in design.

The double cut off a post is one of our basic maneuvers.

Cappy Cappon

The diagramed variation starts with player one passing to three, who acts as a post or pivot. One follows up his pass, cutting to the inside of three and clearing out to the right side of the basket.

Two times his cut, delaying so that he crosses behind one and past three, after one has made his feint. He clears out on the left side, thus keeping the middle open. Three dribbles from his pivot position to the side of the court. Five breaks around three, shaking his man off on three.



A variation of a Princeton double cut off a post.

The latter's defensive man follows him out.

Proper timing, and a quick break by five, will prevent a switch, leaving five open to break through the middle for a lay-up shot.

Four moves back to cover up defensively.

get the sentiment of the people," and promised to have representation at the February 15 meeting .

Approximately 30 baseball enthusiasts gathered at Tallulah in the office of Police Chief Massey with Lamar T. Lee as chairman of the session. All civic groups and the Chamber of Commerce at Tallulah were represented. It was decided to name committees to begin work next week on baseball plans there, and Tallulah was called a "very good posisbility."

A meeting at Oak Grove, sponsored by the Oak Grove Lions Club, was well attended and enthusiasm there is high. Another meting is scheduled at Oak Grove Wednesday night to further consider joining the proposed league, and also to make plans for the installation of lights on the Oak Grove playing field.

At Bastrop the committee from Winnsboro met with Harbard Haneiman who is working toward providing Bastrop with a first class baseball park. The committee was informed that the Bastrop group is seeking to "straighten out" the title to a plot of ground about four blocks from the paper mill there. If the ground is obtained, it is planned to provide Bastrop with a lighted park for night ball. Bastrop will have representation at the February meeting in Monroe.

Mayer and Berry said they had received an answer on an earlier questionnaire sent to C. G. Wall, Jr., president of the West Monroe Lions Club in which Wall promised to let the group know later of possibilities of West Monroe coming in.

Lake Providence is also regarded as a good possibility for membership. Right now Lake Providence is undertaking a $35,000 park building program, including a lighted field, and should be ripe for semi-pro baseball.

It was also reported here that L. M. Calhoun, Jr., president of the Winnsboro Baseball Club had contacted Bonneau Peters, head of the Shreveport Sports of the Texas League, relative to entering a team in the league and that Peters had promised to be present or have representation at the Monroe meeting. Peters, known to be seeking a professional franchise for Monroe, is reported ready to back a semi-pro team at Monroe if the pro franchise is not forthcoming.

WISCONSIN ACE, GEHRMANN, WINS WANAMAKER RUN

Belgium's Gaston Reiff Cops Two-Mile Run At Millrose Games

By Austin Bealmear

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Little Don Gehrmann of Wisconsin captured the Wanamaker mile at the Millrose indoor games tonight coming from behind with a terrific burst of speed to pass Willy Slykhuis of Holland less than ten yards from the tape.

A sell-out crowd of more than 15,000 gave the National Collegiate champion a tremendous ovation as he came pounding up on the outside to snatch the victory in his final strides in the smart time of 4.09.5 and keep the Wanamaker classic rom having its first foreign winner.

John Twomey of the Illinois Athletic Club finished third, less than ten yards behind Slykhuis, while Ingvar Bengtsoon of Sweden, victorious in his two previous American appearances, wound up a poor last in the field of six.

Gaston Reiff of Belgium, the Olympic 5,000 meter champion, made his American debut by winning the two-mile run in 8:56.1 seconds, fastest time recorded on the boards since Greg Rice, the world indoor record-holder, retired half a dozen years ago.

The Belgian stepper also exhibited a brilliant finish and was going away when he broke the tape a good six yards in front of the Swedish Olympian, Erik Ahlden.

The overflow throng earlier had seen darkhorse Bill Dwyer; former Brown University sprinter, equal the world indoor record for the 60-yard dash as he scored an upset triumph in 6-1 seconds.

Dwyer, representing the Rhode Island Officials' Association, flashed to victory in a four-man final, barely edging a field that included National Champion Ed Conwell of Jersey City.

Conwell was second, inches in front of Tom Carey of the New York Pioneer Club. Bill Mathis of Washington, D. C., former national outdoor sprint king, wound up fourth.

Dwyer's time tied the world indoor mark held jointly by Carey, Conwell and five other sprinters.

Harrison Dillard of Cleveland, Ohio, won the 60-yard high hurdles, as expected, stepping the high sticks in 7.3 seconds.

Ed Dugger of Dayton, Ohio, edged Jim Gehrdes of Penn State, the Sugar Bowl champion, for second place with Bill Mitchell of Georgetown fourth.

Tom Comerford of Manhattan led all the way to take the 880-yard run for his fifth straight triumph of the season.

Comerford scored by two yards over Tom Dickey of Louisiana State, Sugar Bowl 800-meter winner, in 1:54.2. Carl Joyce of Seton Hall Prep was third, losing to Dickey by inches just short of the tape.

Dickey, who also holds the Southeastern Conference title, trailed the field of six until they reached the final lap. Then he passed four of his opponents on the outside but couldn't quite catch Comerford.

The Manhattan College runner got off to a flying start, passed the quarter pole in 55.4 seconds and never was in any real danger, although Dickey might have caught him also had the race been a few yards longer.

TULANE SHADES ENGINEER QUINT BY 56-49 SCORE

Greenies Barely Better From Field But Hold Big Edge At Foul Line

ATLANTA, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Tulane won a defensive basketball game from Georgia Tech tonight, 56 to 49, to protect its fourth place standing in the Southeastern Conference. Tulane wore down the Tech team in the second half after trailing six points at the half.

The Tulane victory came principally on successful foul throws. Tech sank 20 field goals to only 21 for Tulane. However, the Green Wave dropped 14 free throws to Tech's nine.

Jim Nolan, Tech's six foot eight inch center, was high scorer with 20 points. Jim Riffey, Tulane's timber topping forward, was second with 14. Riffey was sent out of the game on fouls with eight minutes to go.

During the first half Tech made a big majority of shots and Nolan controlled rebounds. The score was tied five times before intermission and three time more after the half.

The second inning was all Tulane's After one minute and 20 seconds of the second half the score was tied. Within another eight minutes Tulane took the lead 39-38 when Riffey sank a goal. From then on Tulane was never headed.

GUNMAN HOLDS UP EX-PARATROOPER

LAUREL, Miss., Jan. 29—(AP)—An ex-paratrooper, now the operator of a suburban grocery here, was held up by a gunman today.

A young, unmasked white man, brandishing a pistol, took $25 from the cash register in a store operated by Harvey Peace.

"I could see the gunman's pistol was cocked and his hand was shaking so I was afraid he would shoot involunterily," Peace said. "My gun was beside the cash register, but I decided it would be safer not to try to use it."

BULLDOG QUINT MEETS DEMONS AT RUSTON GYM

Northwestern Visits Louisiana Tech Cagers Tomorrow Night

RUSTON, Jan. 29.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's hapless basketeers, with only one victory in Gulf States Conference competition, will continue play in the league here Monday night in a game with the highly touted Demons of Northwestern.

To date only a 65-23 win over the Wildcats of Louisiana College stands on the sunny side of the ledger for the Techmen, although in some instances the margin of defeat for the Bulldogs has been slight.

In two of Tech's contests, the Bulldogs lost by only two points, Centenary shading the local quintet, 32-30 at Shreveport and Mississippi Southern nosing out the Techsters 37-35 at Hattiesburg.

Tech this season has lost to Loyola in New Orleans, 49-44; to Spring Hill in Mobile, 58-47; to Southeastern in Hammond, 59-44, and Southwestern in Lafayette, 48-42.

In non-conference games, the Bulldogs hold victories over Barksdale Field, 88-30, and 58-41, and over the Red River Arsenal of Texarkana, 114-28. Tech has lost non-league engagements with Western Illinois college, 57-37, and the Pensacola Naval Air station, 62-62.

McMullen led the scoring with 16 points, and Busby was second with 15.

'LUMBERJACK' SAW USED ON BONES

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A lesson learned in a lumber camp has led to a new development in bone surgery. It's a small electrically-operated saw blade that has "cross-cut" teeth—and it cuts through bone like a lumberjack's two-man saw.

It allows a rapid oscillating—or side-to-side—cut. The ordinary rotating surgical saw cuts all in one direction.

M. W. Hill, vice-president of the concern (Zimmer Manufacturing Company, Warsaw, Ind.) which developed the new saw, says it is more desirable and safe than a rotating one in a situation where a surgeon has to make a small, precise cut—particularly in bone imbedded in deep tissue. He says the rotation-type cut still would be needed for making long cuts in bone, such as those required for the lengthwise cuts on a bone graft.

Other surgical tools, such as burrs and drills, can also be used with the instrument.

Hill says the new development was based largely on his observations of cross-cut saws when he worked as a lumberjack in Oregon during vacations from the University of Illinois.

"I remembered," he says, "how the lumberjack needed something to cut clean, fast and with ease. I thought the surgeon would get the same advantage from a cross-cut saw as a lumberjack."

Another desirable feature of the oscillating blade for close-quarter work, he says, is that it does not throw bone material in the surgeon's face.

LIVING FOSSIL FOUND IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India—(AP)—A "Living Fossil" has been discovered in the wells of the Hindu holy city of Benares in the form of a tiny, transparent centipede—like shrimp.

Dr. B. N. Chopra, formerly officiating director of the Zoological survey of India, said that its ancestors seemed to have flourished during Mesozoic period of the earth's history over 100,000,000 years ago.

Other representatives of this ancient group are now confined to Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand and the Cape Province of South Africa.

He said its discoverey in India lent support to the view about the existence of the Gondwana land, when Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Southern Asia, South Africa and South America formed one big southern land mass.

FOUR BUILDINGS BURN

VILLE PLATTE, La., Jan. 29—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed four business houses here today. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

A barber shop, a bar, filling station and grocery store were burned out.

Jockey Logan Batcheller, riding sensation of the Florida winter season, had never seen a race horse—much less a race track—until he went to work two-and-a-half years ago at Hialeah for Trainer Paul Kelly.

ISRAEL IS ACCORDED BRITISH RECOGNITION

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Britain recognized Israel today, giving the Jewish state the recognition of all the big four.

Belgium and The Netherlands also climbed aboard the bandwagon.

The United States and Russia recognized Israel when the state was formed last May. France extended recognition Monday.

Among the world's large powers, only China has not yet recognized Israel.

Britain's recognition is de facto, or qualified, as was that of the United States. It means recognition of existence of the state.

Indications are that Britain will not grant de jure recognition until Israel's borders have been fixed and peace has been restored to the middle east.

The British announcement followed shortly the decision of the Brussels pact powers yesterday that the time had come to act. It followed months of bitter debate in Britain over the middle east policy of Foreign Secretary Bevin.

The Brussels pact powers are Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. Luxembourg's recognition was expected momentarily.

Joseph Linton, acting representative of the Tel Aviv government, called on Foreign Secretary Bevin soon after the British move was announced. He was with Bevin 25 minutes. Later he described the meeting as very cordial.

2,000 NEW OIL WELLS PLANNED

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Oil and Gas Journal reported today that more than 2,000 new oil wells are contemplated in Louisiana in 1949.

The annual statistical issue of the national magazine said that of the total of 2,041 wells to be drilled, 350 will be wildcats while 1,691 will be developments wells.

A total of 2,325 new wells with a total footage of 10,934,320 were completed during 1948, according to the periodical.

There were 310 wildcats, resulting in 77 oil discoveries, 10 gas producers and 223 dry holes. Development wells completed were 2,015, resulting in 1,475 oil producers, 123 gas wells and 411 dry holes. Also included were six service wells.

Average depthy of Louisiana wells drilled in 1948 was 4,703 feet.

This state produced 189,972,000 barrels of crude petroleum last year compared with a 1947 total of 160,291,000.

As of January 1, Louisiana had 9,356 producing oil wells with an average yield of 55.5 barrels per day.

SHREVEPORT MAYOR GETS HEARTY LAUGH

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Mayor Clyde E. Fant chuckled today for all his 128,000 to 130,000 fellow Shreveporters. He's just heard a report in which Baton Rouge claimed evidence that it was larger than Shreveport, the state's second city.

Baton Rouge had crowed because, they said, their town had been invited to join the American Municipal Association—for cities of 100,000 or more people—and that Shreveport wasn't large enough to rate such an invitation.

Mayor Fant thumbed through his file of communication with the A. M. A. of which New Orleans' Mayor Delesseps Morrison is president, and recalled that Shreveport had been invited to join the association at least four times.

"Why only last week I received another letter from Mayor Morrison, and he practically insisted we join, Mayor Fant declared. "He asked us what the hold up was. We're still considering joining.

"I'm sure inviting Baton Rouge must have been an afterthought," Mayor Fant said.

50 ATTEND MEET OF B'NAI B'RITH

More than 50 members of B'nai B'rith registered for the 1949 state conference being held in Monroe at a local hotel this week end.

Abe Gold, chairman of the conference, announced Saturday that following registration Harry Nowalsky, vice-president of District 7 of B'nai B'rith was speaker for a pre-conference service at Temple B'nai Israel. The conference was entertained at a party in the Cajun room later last night.

D. H. White, noted war correspondent and attorney, will be guest speaker at the noon luncheon today.

The conference will include discussions on all phases of B'nai B'rith activity. Various group discussions will feature the conference where delegates will exchange opinions and ideas concerning youth services, veterans affairs and other important topics.

GROVER CORNETT'S HOME BURGLARIZED

Police late last night were investigating a burglary which occurred yesterday afternoon in the home of Grover Cornett, at 500 Rochelle avenue where a prowler took between $17 and $18 in dimes and a .44 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol, officers said.

The house was entered yesterday afternoon while Mrs. Cornett was visiting her husband who is a patient in a local hospital. When she returned home, she discovered that someone had entered the house and stolen the money and gun. She notified police of the robbery shortly before 8 p. m. last night.

Following investigation, officers reported the intruder to have gained entrance by removing the screen and raising a front window. A complete investigation had not been made late last night.

MASS EVICTIONS TO FACE TROUBLE

Attorney General Instructs Federal District Attorneys To Act

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—Attorney General Clark has instructed federal district attorneys to study carefully any mass issuance of eviction notices for evidence of illegal conspiracy.

This was announced tonight by the justice department, which said the attorneys were directed to present any possible law violations to a grand jury.

A property owners group in Tulsa, Okla., has ordered a number of evictions of tenants within 60 days and has called on landlords in other cities to follow suit.

The Tulsa group took their action in an announced protest against proposed new federal rent control bills now before congress.

President Truman said at his news conference Thursday that he doesn't believe property owners will get away with the plans. Shortly afterward, housing expediter Tighe Woods said he will seek court injunctions against landlords who refuse to withdraw such eviction notices.

The justice department's statement said Clark "instructed all United States district attorneys to examine with care the so-called 'Tulsa plan' concerning mass eviction of tenants and ascertain if there might exist any conspiracy to violate the housing and rental act of 1948 or any other applicable statues."

"The U. S. attorneys were instructed that in the event there appeared to be any violations, they should immediately present the facts to federal grand juries," the announcement said.

TULSA PLAN IS ADOPTED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 29—(AP)—The "Tulsa plan" for mass evictions in protest against rent control has spread to Chicago—but a judge says it won't work.

Some 750 Chicago landlords who said they own 98,000 Chicago rental units voted overwhelmingly last night to withdraw their property from the rental market.

However, Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffler of municipal court said yesterday that any such mass movement of owners "would indicate they were not acting in good faith as required by law." He said the courts would "take all steps to halt any such mass eviction movement."

PLANE CARRIES UP 42 TONS OF BOMBS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—A United States B-36 bomber carried 42 tons of bombs aloft today—greatest bomb load ever lifted—and dropped them on a California bombing range, the air force announced.

The bomb load consisted of two guided missiles.

The two huge bombs, without explosive charges, were dropped suddenly.

The B-36 took off from Carswell Base, Texas, flew to a bombing range at the Muroc, Calif., air test base, and returned to the Texas field, ordinarily a round trip of 2,400 miles. However, additional time over the target and other deviations in the route brought the total distance to 2,900 miles.

The weight of the two 42,000 pound bombs lifted by the six-engine Consolidated Vultee plane was equivalent to a wartime B-17 flying fortress.

At takeoff the bomber, its bombs and fuel load totaled over 300,000 pounds.

THREE SAVED FROM LAKE IN ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29—(AP)—Three men, thrown into the choppy, cold waters of Lake Pontchartrain today when they attempted to get a line aboard a barge, were rescued 20 minutes later by a tugboat.

The barge broke its moorings and dashed against the seawall. The three men, all from New Orleans, left the tugboat in a small skiff to attempt to get a line aboard the barge. The heavy sea swamped the skiff.

As soon as baked potatoes are ready they should be pricked with a fork or broken open to allow the steam to escape and prevent sogginess.

For an economy meal serve a fish chowder, a salad and a hearty dessert such as gingerbread and applesauce or cottage pudding with fruit sauce.

James Marlow: THE NATION TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A democracy is like an elephant with a hot foot.

It'll move, all right, but not like lightning. And, before it moves at all, it really has to feel the heat.

That's why so much of what you read about in Washington gets done, when it gets done, so slowly.

Congress is the prime example.

For congress usually takes its time before acting, hearing both sides, arguing, making up its mind.

And it may not act at all unless the people in the rest of the country apply enough heat.

This very slowness has a virtue of its own.

It gives an issue which seems red hot at the moment time to die down, if it's the kind that will die down, until it's no longer an issue.

And it gives the people, with their conflicting and often strong views, time to make their feelings and their reasons known.

Then, since congress represents the people, the decision it makes at last should pretty well represent the will of most of the people.

That isn't always so and when it isn't or when congress by its slowness shows it doesn't understand or ignores the needs or will of the people, they can change the congress at the next election.

This slowness—the result of trying to get the minds of congress and the people to reach an agreement—isn't always a virtue. Some day, in a time of great danger, it may be a disaster. So far we've been lucky.

Divided thinking kept us unready for World War II but we had allies and two big oceans that gave us time and space in which to put on armor.

Three issues in the present congress show pretty well the slow process of government:

Opening the benefits of social security to those not protected now; raising the minimum wage; and the pre-paid medical care program.

All three have been batting around in congress for years, all three urged by the White House and outside groups, and fought for inside congress.

The social security program and a higher minimum wage may get through congress this year, although that's not certain. There seems far less chance for the medical program.

But the labor law is one of the prize examples.

For years before 1935 labor had clamored for a law which unions felt would help them in dealing with employers. Employers fought the whole idea.

Finally, such a law, the Wagner act, was passed in 1935. Then for 12 years employers clamored to have it changed or knocked out.

This wasn't done till the Republicans got control of congress in 1947, after being out of control since 1932.

Right away they drastically rewrote the labor law and passed the Taft-Hartley act, which pleased employers. But labor screamed.

But after only two years in the saddle, the Republicans now have lost control again to the Democrats. The people made the upset in the elections.

And now the Democrats are going to change the labor law around to suit at least some of the union's demands.

The new law probably will have more in it than labor wanted while it still had the Wagner act, but less than employers wanted while they still had the Taft-Hartley act.

So it's taken the 14 years since 1935 and two opposites in labor law-making to reach the kind of labor law we seem to be approaching now.

And whatever the new law is, labor and employers probably will keep on see-sawing for other changes next year, and next, and next.

So watching the government work is like looking at evolution itself at work.

And it is just that: The evolution of a society, shifting, changing, trying patches or a new road to fit the needs.

A dictatorship, where one man makes decision and the people are mute, can move faster, like a tiger. But how would you like to live with a tiger?

SET SHOTS and LAY-UPS, TOO

(Another of a series by foremost coaches written for NEA Service.)

By Cappy Cappon
Princeton Coach

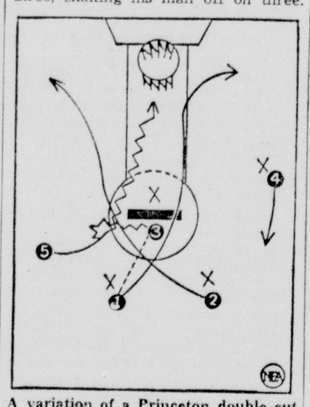
PRINCETON, N. J.—(NEA)—Most Princeton plays are simple in design.

The double cut off a post is one of our basic maneuvers.

Cappy Cappon

The diagramed variation starts with player one passing to three, who acts as a post or pivot. One follows up his pass, cutting to the inside of three and clearing out to the right side of the basket.

Two times his cut, delaying so that he crosses behind one and past three, after one has made his feint. He clears out on the left side, thus keeping the middle open. Three dribbles from his pivot position to the side of the court. Five breaks around three, shaking his man off on three.



A variation of a Princeton double cut off a post.

The latter's defensive man follows him out.

Proper timing, and a quick break by five, will prevent a switch, leaving five open to break through the middle for a lay-up shot.

Four moves back to cover up defensively.

NEXT: Western Kentucky State's second-guard-around play.

get the sentiment of the people," and promised to have representation at the February 15 meeting .

Approximately 30 baseball enthusiasts gathered at Tallulah in the office of Police Chief Massey with Lamar T. Lee as chairman of the session. All civic groups and the Chamber of Commerce at Tallulah were represented. It was decided to name committees to begin work next week on baseball plans there, and Tallulah was called a "very good posisbility."

A meeting at Oak Grove, sponsored by the Oak Grove Lions Club, was well attended and enthusiasm there is high. Another meting is scheduled at Oak Grove Wednesday night to further consider joining the proposed league, and also to make plans for the installation of lights on the Oak Grove playing field.

At Bastrop the committee from Winnsboro met with Harbard Haneiman who is working toward providing Bastrop with a first class baseball park. The committee was informed that the Bastrop group is seeking to "straighten out" the title to a plot of ground about four blocks from the paper mill there. If the ground is obtained, it is planned to provide Bastrop with a lighted park for night ball. Bastrop will have representation at the February meeting in Monroe.

Mayer and Berry said they had received an answer on an earlier questionnaire sent to C. G. Wall, Jr., president of the West Monroe Lions Club in which Wall promised to let the group know later of possibilities of West Monroe coming in.

Lake Providence is also regarded as a good possibility for membership. Right now Lake Providence is undertaking a $35,000 park building program, including a lighted field, and should be ripe for semi-pro baseball.

It was also reported here that L. M. Calhoun, Jr., president of the Winnsboro Baseball Club had contacted Bonneau Peters, head of the Shreveport Sports of the Texas League, relative to entering a team in the league and that Peters had promised to be present or have representation at the Monroe meeting. Peters, known to be seeking a professional franchise for Monroe, is reported ready to back a semi-pro team at Monroe if the pro franchise is not forthcoming.

WISCONSIN ACE, GEHRMANN, WINS WANAMAKER RUN

Belgium's Gaston Reiff Cops Two-Mile Run At Millrose Games

By Austin Bealmear

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Little Don Gehrmann of Wisconsin captured the Wanamaker mile at the Millrose indoor games tonight coming from behind with a terrific burst of speed to pass Willy Slykhuis of Holland less than ten yards from the tape.

A sell-out crowd of more than 15,000 gave the National Collegiate champion a tremendous ovation as he came pounding up on the outside to snatch the victory in his final strides in the smart time of 4.09.5 and keep the Wanamaker classic rom having its first foreign winner.

John Twomey of the Illinois Athletic Club finished third, less than ten yards behind Slykhuis, while Ingvar Bengtsoon of Sweden, victorious in his two previous American appearances, wound up a poor last in the field of six.

Gaston Reiff of Belgium, the Olympic 5,000 meter champion, made his American debut by winning the two-mile run in 8:56.1 seconds, fastest time recorded on the boards since Greg Rice, the world indoor record-holder, retired half a dozen years ago.

The Belgian stepper also exhibited a brilliant finish and was going away when he broke the tape a good six yards in front of the Swedish Olympian, Erik Ahlden.

The overflow throng earlier had seen darkhorse Bill Dwyer; former Brown University sprinter, equal the world indoor record for the 60-yard dash as he scored an upset triumph in 6-1 seconds.

Dwyer, representing the Rhode Island Officials' Association, flashed to victory in a four-man final, barely edging a field that included National Champion Ed Conwell of Jersey City.

Conwell was second, inches in front of Tom Carey of the New York Pioneer Club. Bill Mathis of Washington, D. C., former national outdoor sprint king, wound up fourth.

Dwyer's time tied the world indoor mark held jointly by Carey, Conwell and five other sprinters.

Harrison Dillard of Cleveland, Ohio, won the 60-yard high hurdles, as expected, stepping the high sticks in 7.3 seconds.

Ed Dugger of Dayton, Ohio, edged Jim Gehrdes of Penn State, the Sugar Bowl champion, for second place with Bill Mitchell of Georgetown fourth.

Tom Comerford of Manhattan led all the way to take the 880-yard run for his fifth straight triumph of the season.

Comerford scored by two yards over Tom Dickey of Louisiana State, Sugar Bowl 800-meter winner, in 1:54.2. Carl Joyce of Seton Hall Prep was third, losing to Dickey by inches just short of the tape.

Dickey, who also holds the Southeastern Conference title, trailed the field of six until they reached the final lap. Then he passed four of his opponents on the outside but couldn't quite catch Comerford.

The Manhattan College runner got off to a flying start, passed the quarter pole in 55.4 seconds and never was in any real danger, although Dickey might have caught him also had the race been a few yards longer.

TULANE SHADES ENGINEER QUINT BY 56-49 SCORE

Greenies Barely Better From Field But Hold Big Edge At Foul Line

ATLANTA, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Tulane won a defensive basketball game from Georgia Tech tonight, 56 to 49, to protect its fourth place standing in the Southeastern Conference. Tulane wore down the Tech team in the second half after trailing six points at the half.

The Tulane victory came principally on successful foul throws. Tech sank 20 field goals to only 21 for Tulane. However, the Green Wave dropped 14 free throws to Tech's nine.

Jim Nolan, Tech's six foot eight inch center, was high scorer with 20 points. Jim Riffey, Tulane's timber topping forward, was second with 14. Riffey was sent out of the game on fouls with eight minutes to go.

During the first half Tech made a big majority of shots and Nolan controlled rebounds. The score was tied five times before intermission and three time more after the half.

The second inning was all Tulane's After one minute and 20 seconds of the second half the score was tied. Within another eight minutes Tulane took the lead 39-38 when Riffey sank a goal. From then on Tulane was never headed.

GUNMAN HOLDS UP EX-PARATROOPER

LAUREL, Miss., Jan. 29—(AP)—An ex-paratrooper, now the operator of a suburban grocery here, was held up by a gunman today.

A young, unmasked white man, brandishing a pistol, took $25 from the cash register in a store operated by Harvey Peace.

"I could see the gunman's pistol was cocked and his hand was shaking so I was afraid he would shoot involunterily," Peace said. "My gun was beside the cash register, but I decided it would be safer not to try to use it."

BULLDOG QUINT MEETS DEMONS AT RUSTON GYM

Northwestern Visits Louisiana Tech Cagers Tomorrow Night

RUSTON, Jan. 29.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech's hapless basketeers, with only one victory in Gulf States Conference competition, will continue play in the league here Monday night in a game with the highly touted Demons of Northwestern.

To date only a 65-23 win over the Wildcats of Louisiana College stands on the sunny side of the ledger for the Techmen, although in some instances the margin of defeat for the Bulldogs has been slight.

In two of Tech's contests, the Bulldogs lost by only two points, Centenary shading the local quintet, 32-30 at Shreveport and Mississippi Southern nosing out the Techsters 37-35 at Hattiesburg.

Tech this season has lost to Loyola in New Orleans, 49-44; to Spring Hill in Mobile, 58-47; to Southeastern in Hammond, 59-44, and Southwestern in Lafayette, 48-42.

In non-conference games, the Bulldogs hold victories over Barksdale Field, 88-30, and 58-41, and over the Red River Arsenal of Texarkana, 114-28. Tech has lost non-league engagements with Western Illinois college, 57-37, and the Pensacola Naval Air station, 62-62.

OLE MISS REBS UPSET CRIMSON TIDE, 42-37

UNIVERSITY, Miss. Jan. 29—(AP)—Ole Miss scored an upset here tonight to defeat the University of Alabama in a Southeastern conference basketball game 42 to 37.

With three minutes left to play, the score was tied at 37-37.

With 45 seconds to go, R. B. Reeves got loose for an easy shot of about eight feet of make it 42-37.

At the half Ole Miss was leading 29-17.

McMullen led the scoring with 16 points, and Busby was second with 15.

'LUMBERJACK' SAW USED ON BONES

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A lesson learned in a lumber camp has led to a new development in bone surgery. It's a small electrically-operated saw blade that has "cross-cut" teeth—and it cuts through bone like a lumberjack's two-man saw.

It allows a rapid oscillating—or side-to-side—cut. The ordinary rotating surgical saw cuts all in one direction.

M. W. Hill, vice-president of the concern (Zimmer Manufacturing Company, Warsaw, Ind.) which developed the new saw, says it is more desirable and safe than a rotating one in a situation where a surgeon has to make a small, precise cut—particularly in bone imbedded in deep tissue. He says the rotation-type cut still would be needed for making long cuts in bone, such as those required for the lengthwise cuts on a bone graft.

Other surgical tools, such as burrs and drills, can also be used with the instrument.

Hill says the new development was based largely on his observations of cross-cut saws when he worked as a lumberjack in Oregon during vacations from the University of Illinois.

"I remembered," he says, "how the lumberjack needed something to cut clean, fast and with ease. I thought the surgeon would get the same advantage from a cross-cut saw as a lumberjack."

Another desirable feature of the oscillating blade for close-quarter work, he says, is that it does not throw bone material in the surgeon's face.

LIVING FOSSIL FOUND IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India—(AP)—A "Living Fossil" has been discovered in the wells of the Hindu holy city of Benares in the form of a tiny, transparent centipede—like shrimp.

Dr. B. N. Chopra, formerly officiating director of the Zoological survey of India, said that its ancestors seemed to have flourished during Mesozoic period of the earth's history over 100,000,000 years ago.

Other representatives of this ancient group are now confined to Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand and the Cape Province of South Africa.

He said its discoverey in India lent support to the view about the existence of the Gondwana land, when Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Southern Asia, South Africa and South America formed one big southern land mass.

FOUR BUILDINGS BURN

VILLE PLATTE, La., Jan. 29—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed four business houses here today. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

A barber shop, a bar, filling station and grocery store were burned out.

Jockey Logan Batcheller, riding sensation of the Florida winter season, had never seen a race horse—much less a race track—until he went to work two-and-a-half years ago at Hialeah for Trainer Paul Kelly.

ISRAEL IS ACCORDED BRITISH RECOGNITION

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Britain recognized Israel today, giving the Jewish state the recognition of all the big four.

Belgium and The Netherlands also climbed aboard the bandwagon.

The United States and Russia recognized Israel when the state was formed last May. France extended recognition Monday.

Among the world's large powers, only China has not yet recognized Israel.

Britain's recognition is de facto, or qualified, as was that of the United States. It means recognition of existence of the state.

Indications are that Britain will not grant de jure recognition until Israel's borders have been fixed and peace has been restored to the middle east.

The British announcement followed shortly the decision of the Brussels pact powers yesterday that the time had come to act. It followed months of bitter debate in Britain over the middle east policy of Foreign Secretary Bevin.

The Brussels pact powers are Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. Luxembourg's recognition was expected momentarily.

Joseph Linton, acting representative of the Tel Aviv government, called on Foreign Secretary Bevin soon after the British move was announced. He was with Bevin 25 minutes. Later he described the meeting as very cordial.

2,000 NEW OIL WELLS PLANNED

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Oil and Gas Journal reported today that more than 2,000 new oil wells are contemplated in Louisiana in 1949.

The annual statistical issue of the national magazine said that of the total of 2,041 wells to be drilled, 350 will be wildcats while 1,691 will be developments wells.

A total of 2,325 new wells with a total footage of 10,934,320 were completed during 1948, according to the periodical.

There were 310 wildcats, resulting in 77 oil discoveries, 10 gas producers and 223 dry holes. Development wells completed were 2,015, resulting in 1,475 oil producers, 123 gas wells and 411 dry holes. Also included were six service wells.

Average depthy of Louisiana wells drilled in 1948 was 4,703 feet.

This state produced 189,972,000 barrels of crude petroleum last year compared with a 1947 total of 160,291,000.

As of January 1, Louisiana had 9,356 producing oil wells with an average yield of 55.5 barrels per day.

SHREVEPORT MAYOR GETS HEARTY LAUGH

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Mayor Clyde E. Fant chuckled today for all his 128,000 to 130,000 fellow Shreveporters. He's just heard a report in which Baton Rouge claimed evidence that it was larger than Shreveport, the state's second city.

Baton Rouge had crowed because, they said, their town had been invited to join the American Municipal Association—for cities of 100,000 or more people—and that Shreveport wasn't large enough to rate such an invitation.

Mayor Fant thumbed through his file of communication with the A. M. A. of which New Orleans' Mayor Delesseps Morrison is president, and recalled that Shreveport had been invited to join the association at least four times.

"Why only last week I received another letter from Mayor Morrison, and he practically insisted we join, Mayor Fant declared. "He asked us what the hold up was. We're still considering joining.

"I'm sure inviting Baton Rouge must have been an afterthought," Mayor Fant said.

50 ATTEND MEET OF B'NAI B'RITH

More than 50 members of B'nai B'rith registered for the 1949 state conference being held in Monroe at a local hotel this week end.

Abe Gold, chairman of the conference, announced Saturday that following registration Harry Nowalsky, vice-president of District 7 of B'nai B'rith was speaker for a pre-conference service at Temple B'nai Israel. The conference was entertained at a party in the Cajun room later last night.

D. H. White, noted war correspondent and attorney, will be guest speaker at the noon luncheon today.

The conference will include discussions on all phases of B'nai B'rith activity. Various group discussions will feature the conference where delegates will exchange opinions and ideas concerning youth services, veterans affairs and other important topics.

GROVER CORNETT'S HOME BURGLARIZED

Police late last night were investigating a burglary which occurred yesterday afternoon in the home of Grover Cornett, at 500 Rochelle avenue where a prowler took between $17 and $18 in dimes and a .44 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol, officers said.

The house was entered yesterday afternoon while Mrs. Cornett was visiting her husband who is a patient in a local hospital. When she returned home, she discovered that someone had entered the house and stolen the money and gun. She notified police of the robbery shortly before 8 p. m. last night.

Following investigation, officers reported the intruder to have gained entrance by removing the screen and raising a front window. A complete investigation had not been made late last night.

MASS EVICTIONS TO FACE TROUBLE

Attorney General Instructs Federal District Attorneys To Act

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—Attorney General Clark has instructed federal district attorneys to study carefully any mass issuance of eviction notices for evidence of illegal conspiracy.

This was announced tonight by the justice department, which said the attorneys were directed to present any possible law violations to a grand jury.

A property owners group in Tulsa, Okla., has ordered a number of evictions of tenants within 60 days and has called on landlords in other cities to follow suit.

The Tulsa group took their action in an announced protest against proposed new federal rent control bills now before congress.

President Truman said at his news conference Thursday that he doesn't believe property owners will get away with the plans. Shortly afterward, housing expediter Tighe Woods said he will seek court injunctions against landlords who refuse to withdraw such eviction notices.

The justice department's statement said Clark "instructed all United States district attorneys to examine with care the so-called 'Tulsa plan' concerning mass eviction of tenants and ascertain if there might exist any conspiracy to violate the housing and rental act of 1948 or any other applicable statues."

"The U. S. attorneys were instructed that in the event there appeared to be any violations, they should immediately present the facts to federal grand juries," the announcement said.

TULSA PLAN IS ADOPTED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 29—(AP)—The "Tulsa plan" for mass evictions in protest against rent control has spread to Chicago—but a judge says it won't work.

Some 750 Chicago landlords who said they own 98,000 Chicago rental units voted overwhelmingly last night to withdraw their property from the rental market.

However, Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffler of municipal court said yesterday that any such mass movement of owners "would indicate they were not acting in good faith as required by law." He said the courts would "take all steps to halt any such mass eviction movement."

PLANE CARRIES UP 42 TONS OF BOMBS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—A United States B-36 bomber carried 42 tons of bombs aloft today—greatest bomb load ever lifted—and dropped them on a California bombing range, the air force announced.

The bomb load consisted of two guided missiles.

The two huge bombs, without explosive charges, were dropped suddenly.

The B-36 took off from Carswell Base, Texas, flew to a bombing range at the Muroc, Calif., air test base, and returned to the Texas field, ordinarily a round trip of 2,400 miles. However, additional time over the target and other deviations in the route brought the total distance to 2,900 miles.

The weight of the two 42,000 pound bombs lifted by the six-engine Consolidated Vultee plane was equivalent to a wartime B-17 flying fortress.

At takeoff the bomber, its bombs and fuel load totaled over 300,000 pounds.

THREE SAVED FROM LAKE IN ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29—(AP)—Three men, thrown into the choppy, cold waters of Lake Pontchartrain today when they attempted to get a line aboard a barge, were rescued 20 minutes later by a tugboat.

The barge broke its moorings and dashed against the seawall. The three men, all from New Orleans, left the tugboat in a small skiff to attempt to get a line aboard the barge. The heavy sea swamped the skiff.

As soon as baked potatoes are ready they should be pricked with a fork or broken open to allow the steam to escape and prevent sogginess.

For an economy meal serve a fish chowder, a salad and a hearty dessert such as gingerbread and applesauce or cottage pudding with fruit sauce.

James Marlow: THE NATION TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A democracy is like an elephant with a hot foot.

It'll move, all right, but not like lightning. And, before it moves at all, it really has to feel the heat.

That's why so much of what you read about in Washington gets done, when it gets done, so slowly.

Congress is the prime example.

For congress usually takes its time before acting, hearing both sides, arguing, making up its mind.

And it may not act at all unless the people in the rest of the country apply enough heat.

This very slowness has a virtue of its own.

It gives an issue which seems red hot at the moment time to die down, if it's the kind that will die down, until it's no longer an issue.

And it gives the people, with their conflicting and often strong views, time to make their feelings and their reasons known.

Then, since congress represents the people, the decision it makes at last should pretty well represent the will of most of the people.

That isn't always so and when it isn't or when congress by its slowness shows it doesn't understand or ignores the needs or will of the people, they can change the congress at the next election.

This slowness—the result of trying to get the minds of congress and the people to reach an agreement—isn't always a virtue. Some day, in a time of great danger, it may be a disaster. So far we've been lucky.

Divided thinking kept us unready for World War II but we had allies and two big oceans that gave us time and space in which to put on armor.

Three issues in the present congress show pretty well the slow process of government:

Opening the benefits of social security to those not protected now; raising the minimum wage; and the pre-paid medical care program.

All three have been batting around in congress for years, all three urged by the White House and outside groups, and fought for inside congress.

The social security program and a higher minimum wage may get through congress this year, although that's not certain. There seems far less chance for the medical program.

But the labor law is one of the prize examples.

For years before 1935 labor had clamored for a law which unions felt would help them in dealing with employers. Employers fought the whole idea.

Finally, such a law, the Wagner act, was passed in 1935. Then for 12 years employers clamored to have it changed or knocked out.

This wasn't done till the Republicans got control of congress in 1947, after being out of control since 1932.

Right away they drastically rewrote the labor law and passed the Taft-Hartley act, which pleased employers. But labor screamed.

But after only two years in the saddle, the Republicans now have lost control again to the Democrats. The people made the upset in the elections.

And now the Democrats are going to change the labor law around to suit at least some of the union's demands.

The new law probably will have more in it than labor wanted while it still had the Wagner act, but less than employers wanted while they still had the Taft-Hartley act.

So it's taken the 14 years since 1935 and two opposites in labor law-making to reach the kind of labor law we seem to be approaching now.

And whatever the new law is, labor and employers probably will keep on see-sawing for other changes next year, and next, and next.

So watching the government work is like looking at evolution itself at work.

And it is just that: The evolution of a society, shifting, changing, trying patches or a new road to fit the needs.

A dictatorship, where one man makes decision and the people are mute, can move faster, like a tiger. But how would you like to live with a tiger?

LABORATORIES ARE RATED FOR TULSA

To Enlarge Production And Exploration Research For Finding Crude Oil

TULSA, Oklahoma, Jan. 29—Enlarged production and exploration research laboratories of The Carter Oil Company, affiliate of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) was opened in Tulsa, January 28, providing some of the most advanced facilities in the United States for development of improved techniques and equipment for finding and producing crude oil. Announcing the opening date, O. C. Thorp, president of Carter, said that prominent scientists and educators from southwest colleges and universities will attend the ceremonies which mark the trebling in size of the laboratory within the last 12 months.

Among the scientists attending the opening was Dr. Gustav Egloff, director of research, Universal Oil Products Company of Chicago and a consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission, who will be the speaker at a dinner following a tour of the laboratories.

The laboratories, which provide a research center for the exploration and production activities of a group of Standard Oil Company (N. J.) affiliates, employ more than 100 scientists and include facilities for the manufacture of precision instruments used in the finding and production of petroleum.

The laboratory staff carries on continuing studies in geology, geophysics and sciences which enable oil men to show on maps and graphs underground conditions before drilling operations get under way. Out of this research has come exploration equipment used in the search for oil before drilling, such as improved seismographs that record below-surface formations by recording the shocks of man-made "earthquakes" that are simulated by the explosion of dynamite, and more effective gravity meters that locate underground structures by measuring extremely minute changes in the force of gravity.

In addition to the work on instruments used in search for oil structures, the Carter scientists also have produced improvements on equipment and techniques used to obtain more accurate subsurface information while drilling. These include new devices that give the men on the surface an accurate identification of the rocks penetrated by the well, and improved instruments that measure the properties and attitude of the rocks far below the surface, and new tools for cutting cores of the rocks for study on the surface.

The Carter scientists also have improved on techniques for determining the amount of petroleum, gas and water that is encountered once a well reaches the oil sands.

Elaborate equipment perfected by the laboratory to predict future change of pressure that occurs as oil fields are produced have been of great value in conserving oil and natural gas by establishing a pattern for the most efficient operation of oil fields. As a result of modern conservation techniques, it is estimated that it is now possible in many fields to greatly increase the output and substantially increase the reserves of oil fields by proper control of gas and water.

OIL SEVERANCE TAX IS UPPED IN DECEMBER

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 29—(AP)—Oil severance tax collections increased to $574,597.09 during December, the state oil and gas board reported.

Daily collections declined slightly, but an extra day last month kept the total climbing. Total collections since March, 1944, now stand at $14,195,516.15.

Tinsley Field in Yazoo County continued to lead the state with 272 wells producing 497,658 barrels and paying $73,441.27 in taxes. There were 1,228 wells in the state's 24. Fields last month, producing 3,939,128 barrels.

STATE OF FLA. HOLDS OIL LEASES IN ALA.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 29—(AP)—If you want to drill for oil in Houston county, Ala., maybe you'll have to ask the State of Florida for permission. That's what the Union Producing Company of Jackson, Miss., had to do last Tues- before taking action.

It seems Houston county, which is in extreme south Alabama, used to be part of Florida. While it was part of this state, the cabinet sold some of the Houston county land—but reserved mineral rights on it.

It still has those mineral rights. So the Union Producing Company had to make its application for an oil and gas lease here. The cabinet will advertise the lease proposal day.

OIL PRODUCTION IN STATE DROPS

La.'s Oil Output Declines 600 Barrels; Crude Oil Production Average Falls

RED CROSS AIDING BURNED OUT FAMILY

START, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—Mrs. Bill Stiers, representative of the Richland Parish Red Cross said late Saturday night that the Red Cross office in Rayville was acting as a channel for donations to the Start family of four who were made homeless when their small farm house was demolished by fire Friday night.

An appeal for clothing, food or money was made Saturday by relatives of the H. L. Moore family who reported that Mr. Moore, his wife and two daughters saved only the clothes on their back when fire swept through their Richland parish dwelling.

It was reported that Mr. Moore was the only member of the family to save his coat. The two children, Dorothy Jean, 6, and Gracie Lee, 12, attend the Start school.

Mr. Moore operates a grocermobile.

Anyone desiring to contribute toward the fire stricken family may do so through the Red Cross in Rayville. Clothes are badly needed. Mr. Moore is medium built, weighs about 170 pounds, Dorothy Jean is small for her age and Gracie Lee, rather fat.

NEW WELL FOUND IN DELHI FIELD

Comes In At 3,620 Feet; New Locations Marked In Union, Concordia

A new producer was brought on by drillers in Franklin parish last week while oilers in two other parishes sited three new locations, according to the department of conservation's weekly report revealed here yesterday.

The new well, the J. A. Harper Company's Owen Drexler No. 2 in 6-16-9E of the South Delhi field, Franklin parish, was brought in with an output of 94 barrels at a total depth of 3,620.

New locations sited were:

In Union parish, the Interstate National's Fee No. 219 in 21-21-3E, and in the Truxno field, of Union parish, the Sugar & Flichbaugh Company's M. H. Green No. 1 in 19-23-1E.

The California Company's L. R. Alwood No. 6 in 10-9-10E of the Lake St. John Field in Concordia parish.

BOARD LEASES STATE TRACTS FOR BONUSES

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29—(AP)—The Louisiana mineral board leased 14 state-owned tracts for a total of $196,051 in bonuses.

All the tracts were inland, and the amount received contrasted with the bonuses running into millions collected at earlier mineral board leasings when tidelands properties were offered. Since the United States attorney general filed suit against Louisiana for possession of the oil-rich lands off the Gulf of Mexico coast, the mineral board has received no expressions of interest in tidelands leases and has advertised none for letting, although the board formally adopted a policy of continuing to lease tidelands to any interested operators.

The board rejected bids on two tracts, one of them part of the Louisiana Prison Farm at St. Gabriel.

HOUSEWIVES

deducts half the cost of the stamps.

The tax thus is shared; six cents in paid by the gardner, six cents by the employer.

The tax may be higher by the time the system goes into effect. Mr. Truman has recommended that it be increased to 1 1/2 per cent each on July 1.

Every so often the employe sends his stamp book to the social security administration, which credits him with the earnings toward his old-age pension, and sends him a new book.

The farmer uses the same system for his hired hands. The worker, as he "follows the crops" from one area to another, takes his book with him. "Non-cash" wages paid to farm workers and domestics, such as meals and lodging, count as earnings, under a table of minimum values fixed by the government.

The farmer himself, along with other self-employed persons, would make contributions toward solvency in old age. Kingsley said F. S. A. plans to use the standard income tax form for farmers, operators of one-man businesses and partnerships, and others whose income does not depend on wages.

Use of the income tax blank would catch every self-employed person who has to file an income return—an estimated 75 per cent or more of farmers and non-farm self-employed.

Either a slight revision of the present income tax form, or a short separate form could be used, Kingsley said, depending on the wish of congress.

The taxpayer would enter his self-made earnings as "net income from self-employment." It would be made up from two items on the standard income tax form—"profit (or loss) from business or profession," and "income from partnerships." He would not pay a social security tax on income from investment, rents, annuities and the like.

One question is strictly up to congress: Should the self-employed person pay both the employer and employe contribution, or just the employe contribution?

If he just pays one share but collects full benefits, he won't be carrying his weight in the social insurance system. If he pays both shares, the tax may be an undue burden.

F. S. A., in a recent report, suggested a compromise for congressional consideration. Let the self-employed pay the single rate on the first several hundred dollars of income and the double rate on all additional income.

Some have proposed that the self-employed be allowed to decide for themselves whether they want to enter the system. F. S. A. opposes that plan because the insurance system would not then be soundly built; most of the "expensive risks"—those likely to start collecting benefits soon—would tend to sign up while others might not. And chronically hard-pressed persons might choose to stay out, even though they are the ones likeliest to be in poor circumstances in old age or to become public charges.

Louisiana Contends U. S. Has No Right To Sue State

Asserts Sovereignty Of Individual States Parallels Nation's

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—The state of Louisiana, setting up its first defense against a claim by the United States to the oil-rich tidelands, is trying to persuade the United States supreme court not even to hear the suit.

The high court hasn't said yes or no. The legal situation at the moment is this:

The United States, through Attorney General Clark, claims the submerged lands off the Louisiana coast beginning at low-water mark, and the valuable oil and other minerals under them.

Clark has prepared a suit for these lands. It is similar to one which he filed, and won, against California in 1947.

But, under the rules of the supreme court, he can't file his suit until the court agrees to receive it. He has asked the court to do so.

So far, the Louisiana and California cases are parallel. But in 1947 California didn't object to the right of the federal government to file the suit. The supreme court accepted it, California tried to defend itself against it and lost.

Louisiana, with the benefit of that experience, is jumping into the legal fray right at the start and has entered an objection to the filing of the suit on this ground:

Nothing in the constitution authorizes the United States to sue one of its constituent state, unless that state consents.

And, say the state's legal representatives, "the state of Louisiana has never consented to be summarily dragged by the attorney general before the bar of a federal court."

There is even stronger language in the objection prepared by the state's tidelands defense team, Attorney General Bolivar E. Kemp, Jr., Assistant Attorney General John L. Madden, Leander H. Perez, Plaquemine-St. Bernard district attorney, and their Washington associates. They say, "the consent to be sued is consent to be destroyed."

The state's argument runs this way:

The United States is a sovereign and the individual states are sovereigns. Sovereigns can be sued only if they consent to be. The constitution contains no implied consent either by the federal government or by the individual states to be sued by the other. The supreme court "has clearly decided that the federal government has not consented to be sued by a state. It should likewise decide that the states have not consented to be sued by the federal government."

As a matter of fact, the court in several cases has decided that the United States may sue an individual state. But, say Louisiana's attorneys, these decisions now should be reversed. The state counsel contend that they all are based on an early case against Texas and that in this case the constitutional question was never properly raised and passed upon. Moreover, Louisiana's spokesmen contend, provisions for suits by the United States against individual states were discussed by the framers of the national constitution and rejected.

The Louisiana attorneys, in their objection to the filing of the suit, do some speculating as to what might happen if such a suit were to be accepted and the United States were to win from a state possession of such property as the tidelands and the revenues—estimated elsewhere at $15,000,000—which the state already has derived from them.

"It might well be that the state would be unable to pay these sums without impairing vital functions of the government, they say. "Also we know of no legal process by which the federal government can enforce such a claim, but even if such a process could be found, the enforcement of the claim might easily bankrupt the state and destroy its economic and eventually its political existence. These are the sober consequences that must be faced if the doctrine of the immunity of the sovereign from suit without its consent is not rigidly adhered to."

Louisiana's argument for its objection suggests also a method which the state might accept for reaching a solution to the tidelands dispute. Such disputes between sovereigns, the statement sets out, are normally settled by treaties and agreements reached by negotiation.

Continuing the Louisiana attorney says:

"Thus, if the federal government decides, as a matter of policy and necessity for future national defense, to conserve the oil and other resources within the national defense, to conserve the oil and other resources within the areas here involved, it can seek to do so through an orderly and fair procedure. Under the constitution, such matters of policy are for congress, the legislative branch of the government. For instance, congress may lay down a basic policy that the conservation of those resources should be carried out by the federal government and authorize officials of the federal government to negotiate some joint arrangement with the states, or to acquire the areas involved by purchase or eminent domain."

Here, perhaps, is an indication of what Louisiana's members of the 81st congress may try to accomplish legislatively if the supreme court accepts the justice department's suit and shows signs of following the precedent of the California tidelands case.

FACES TWO CHARGES

James P. Pritchett, 21, route 1, West Monroe, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and causing damage to city property, was arrested by West Monroe police late yesterday afternoon. According to police, Pritchett was released late under a $325 bond.

One can read a book by the Northern Lights when they are at their most brilliant stage, according to Encyclopedia Britannica.

Water requires more heat to warm it and more cold to cool it than any other common substance.

RED RIVER ABOVE SHREVEPORT RISES

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Slight rises in the Sulphur river at Naples, Tex., and in Red river above Shreveport, were reported in the afternoon river bulletin to the United States weather bureau here today. The Cypress at Jefferson, Tex., which had a stage of 10 feet Friday, late today was forecast to reach flood stage and crest at about 20 to 22 feet the first of next week.

Flood stage of the Cypress is 18 feet, and the latest forecast means it will be two to four feet above flood stage about Monday.

The Sulphur at Naples, which was 8.4 feet above flood stage early today, had risen .2 of a foot by late afternoon. Greatest damage expected, so far, from the rising Sulphur is to livestock, and the same holds true for livestock inside the levee near Grand Ecore and Alexandria, La., on Red river.

Today was the first time flood forecast had been issued for Cypress river at Jefferson. The rise is due chiefly to rains, since the Cypress has a large watershed. B. P. Hughes, meteorologist in charge of the weather bureau here, today issued the flood warning of 20 to 22 feet on the Cypress at Jefferson by the first of next week.

The weather bureau says there is no outlook for rains that would affect the Red below Shreveport until after the first of the week.

Fulton, Ark., reported a stage of 31.4 in Red river late today. The river still is rising at that point. The Red still is expected to crest at 34 to 36 feet, one to three feet above flood stage, at Grand Ecore about Tuesday. The Red is expected to reach three feet above flood stage at Alexandria next week.

DEMOCRATS

in President Truman's anti-inflation program. Curiously it is an extension of the "voluntary controls" over steel and other scarce materials voted by the last, Republican controlled, congress as a substitute for more direct and drastic powers over business and industry asked by Mr. Truman.

Republican senators already have served notice they will seek a 13-month extension beyond March 1 of the voluntary allocation plan instead of the temporary seven-month continuation asked by the administration.

In urging the stop-gap extension, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer said that "mandatory powers" will be asked later in a general anti-inflation bill wanted by the president.

Republicans argue that the voluntary system has worked so well there is no reason to cut it off short. They figure that a long term extension will reduce pressure for more drastic controls.

House leaders expect to call up the voluntary allocations bill Wednesday if it clears the senate by then.

Meanwhile both senate and house banking committees will work on a 28-month extension of war-time export controls that expire February 28. This is expected to move through congress without major opposition.

Despite Lucas's optimism about teamwork, there is one issue coming up which is certain to split Democratic ranks wide open. That is the attempt to amend senate rules to outlaw the filibuster, or unlimited, time consuming debate designed to prevent senate action. Southern Democrats want this weapon to fight anti-lynch, anti-poll tax and other parts of the "civil rights" program pledged by the president.

Chairman Hayden (D-Ariz.) brought pressure on the senate rules committee to wind up hearings Monday on a new rule that would allow two-thirds of the senate to end debate on any issue.

Republicans have been pressing Democratic leaders to bring the anti-filibuster measure onto the senate floor at once so it will not hold up other major legislation.

House leaders may call up Monday an authorization for $3,000,000 more of emergency blizzard funds to be used in clearing snow-blocked highways, roads and trails, and for other emergency operations. It was unanimously approved by the senate last week.

An authorization requires an appropriation to put it into operation.

Former President Hoover will make one of his rare congressional appearances before the house expenditures committee Monday. He will testify on proposed authority for streamlining of government agencies which President Truman asks.

House committees also will continue hearings on a proposed increase in minimum hourly wages from 40 to 75 cents, a 70-group (or 48-group) plan for the air forces, and an administration request to extend and broaden the reciprocal trade program.

Chairman Wood (D-Ga.) also called an organization session for the revised house un-American activities committee.

JERRY BOZEMAN IS CRITICALLY BURNED

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Jerry Bozeman, 39, is in critical condition at a Roswell, N. M., hospital of burns suffered last Sunday when the gas stove in the bathroom of his Roswell home exploded and set fire to his clothing.

Bozeman is a former radio station KWKH sports announcer and once was secretary of the Red River Valley Association. At present he is advertising manager of the Roswell Daily Record, daily newspaper. He went to Lake Charles from here in 1945 and returned in 1947 and worked for a local radio station until January, when he went to Roswell as advertising manager of the newspaper.

Mrs. Bozeman and their son, Tandy, 9, escaped without injury.

Bozeman was reported to be under an oxygen tent today. He has been receiving blood transfusions several times each day since the accident.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28—(AP)—For the first time in years, Roy Rogers won't be touring with his rodeo in 1949.

"It's too hard work," the Cincinnati wrangler told me on the "Susanna Pass" set. "It's fun for the first two weeks, then it gets to be a grind. Last year I caught cold and I never could shake it."

Roy has four pictures to do this year for Republic, plus a weekly air show. "I'm going to do some fishing the rest of the time," he said.

Farley Granger will do "Earth and High Heaven" after "Roseanna McCoy." That's the inter-racial romance story originally set for Gregory Peck. The script has had three top writers—Howard Koch, Elmer Rice and John Patrick. It's reported that the message will be minimized and the love story played up.

Humphrey Bogart thrives on feuds. Remember when he picked a fight with San Francisco by saying its women weren't such smart dressers nor its restaurants so special? "It never hurt the business of my pictures there a bit," he says.

Florence Marly, Bogie's leading lady in "Tokyo Joe," is getting known as the lady in grey. She wears nothing else. "Grey suits every occasion and it suits me psychologically," she says. "Women should find the color that suits them best and stick to it." She added that French women are noted for their monotones in dress colors.

Dane Clark is off suspension at Warner's for the first time in more than six months. He's doing "twilight" for the Hakims. Dane's long suspension is something of a record at the suspension-happy lot. He did it by turning down four W. B. scripts and one loan-out.

"Pride of the Yankees" gets a big re-issue splash in April, timed for the baseball season. Goldwyn historians report the date will mark the 10th anniversary of Lou Gehrig's last game.

Billy DeWolfe, back from convulsing the royal family at the command performance, says: "British television is 10 years ahead of video over here."

Robert Taylor, in England for "Conspirator," may return to Europe this summer for pleasure. Barbara Stanwyck and Bob are making plans with the Jack Bennys for a motor tour of England and the continent in July and August.

Loretta Young was asked for her advice to her successor, as academy award winner. "My advice is to do nothing different," she answered on the "Come to the Stable" set. "Continue handling your career the way you were. That's what won you the Oscar, so why change?"

Greer Garson's mother is doing a role with her talented daughter in "Forsyte Saga" . . . It's reported there is 92 per cent unemployment among film actors in Hollywood . . . The legion of decency found "Shock-proof" morally objectionable in part because of "insufficient moral compensation." The film stars Cornel Wilde and Pat Knight.

Oscar Levant may return to M. G. M. for another role after his "Barklevs of Broadway" stint . . . Esther Williams is arranging to have three nurseries built in her home. Triplets?

ORDERS CURTAILMENT OF PRODUCTION IN JETER ZONE

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29—(AP)—Issuance of an order extending productive limits of the Jeter zone in the Logansport field, DeSoto parish, was one of several announced by S. L. Digby, commissioner of conservation.

The Logansport order said geological and engineering data indicated that productive limits of the Jeter zone could be extended, and adopted drilling units mapped by the Skelly Oil Company.

Other orders, by fields, were:

South Delhi—Special rules governing production form the Kny sand, Merritt sand zone and Holt A15 sand.

LABORATORIES ARE SLATED FOR TULSA

Will Enlarge Production And Exploration Research For Finding Crude Oil

TULSA, Oklahoma, Jan. 29—Enlarged production and exploration research laboratories of The Carter Oil Company, affiliate of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) was opened in Tulsa, January 28, providing some of the most advanced facilities in the United States for development of improved techniques and equipment for finding and producing crude oil.

Announcing the opening date, O. C. Schorp, president of Carter, said that prominent scientists and educators from southwest colleges and universities will attend the ceremonies which mark the trebling in size of the laboratory within the last 12 months.

Among the scientists attending the opening was Dr. Gustav Egloff, director of research, Universal Oil Products Company of Chicago and a consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission, who will be the speaker at a dinner following a tour of the laboratories.

The laboratories, which provide a research center for the exploration and production activities of a group of Standard Oil Company (N. J.) affiliates, employ more than 100 scientists and include facilities for the manufacture of precision instruments used in the finding and production of petroleum.

The laboratory staff carries on continuing studies in geology, geophysics and sciences which enable oil men to show on maps and graphs underground conditions before drilling operations get under way. Out of this research has come exploration equipment used in the search for oil before drilling, such as improved seismographs that record below-surface formations by recording the shocks of man-made "earthquakes" that are simulated by the explosion of dynamite, and more effective gravity meters that locate underground structures by measuring extremely minute changes in the force of gravity.

In addition to the work on instruments used in search for oil structures, the Carter scientists also have produced improvements on equipment and techniques used to obtain more accurate subsurface information while drilling. These include new devices that give the men on the surface an accurate identification of the rocks penetrated by the well, and improved instruments that measure the properties and attitude of the rocks far below the surface, and new tools for cutting cores of the rocks for study on the surface.

The Carter scientists also have improved on techniques for determining the amount of petroleum, gas and water that is encountered once a well reaches the oil sands.

Elaborate equipment perfected by the laboratory to predict future change of pressure that occurs as oil fields are produced have been of great value in conserving oil and natural gas by establishing a pattern for the most efficient operation of oil fields. As a result of modern conservation techniques, it is estimated that it is now possible in many fields to greatly increase the output and substantially increase the reserves of oil fields by proper control of gas and water.

OIL SEVERANCE TAX IS UPPED IN DECEMBER

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 29—(AP)—Oil severance tax collections increased to $574,597.09 during December, the state oil and gas board reported.

Daily collections declined slightly, but an extra day last month kept the total climbing. Total collections since March, 1944, now stand at $14,195,516.15.

Tinsley Field in Yazoo County continued to lead the state with 272 wells producing 497,658 barrels and paying $73,441.27 in taxes. There were 1,228 wells in the state's 24. Fields last month, producing 3,939,128 barrels.

RED CROSS AIDING BURNED OUT FAMILY

START, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—Mrs. Bill Stiers, representative of the Richland Parish Red Cross said late Saturday night that the Red Cross office in Rayville was acting as a channel for donations to the Start family of four who were made homeless when their small farm house was demolished by fire Friday night.

An appeal for clothing, food or money was made Saturday by relatives of the H. L. Moore family who reported that Mr. Moore, his wife and two daughters saved only the clothes on their back when fire swept through their Richland parish dwelling.

It was reported that Mr. Moore was the only member of the family to save his coat. The two children, Dorothy Jean, 6, and Gracie Lee, 12, attend the Start school.

Mr. Moore operates a grocermobile.

Anyone desiring to contribute toward the fire stricken family may do so through the Red Cross in Rayville. Clothes are badly needed. Mr. Moore is medium built, weighs about 170 pounds. Dorothy Jean is small for her age and Gracie Lee, rather fat.

STATE OF FLA. HOLDS OIL LEASES IN ALA.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 29—(AP)—If you want to drill for oil in Houston county, Ala., maybe you'll have to ask the State of Florida for permission. That's what the Union Producing Company of Jackson, Miss., had to do last Tuesbefore taking action.

It seems Houston county, which is in extreme south Alabama, used to be part of Florida. While it was part of this state, the cabinet sold some of the Houston county land—but reserved mineral rights on it.

It still has those mineral rights. So the Union Producing Company had to make its application for an oil and gas lease here. The cabinet will advertise the lease proposal day.

NEW WELL FOUND IN DELHI FIELD

Comes In At 3,620 Feet; New Locations Marked In Union, Concordia

A new producer was brought on by drillers in Franklin parish last week while oilers in two other parishes sited three new locations, according to the department of conservation's weekly report revealed here yesterday.

The new well, the J. A. Harper Company's Owen Drexler No. 2 in 6-16-9E of the South Delhi field, Franklin parish, was brought in with an output of 94 barrels at a total depth of 3,620.

New locations sited were:

In Union parish, the Interstate National's Fee No. 219 in 21-21-3E, and in the Truxno field, of Union parish, the Sugar & Flichbaugh Company's M. H. Green No. 1 in 19-23-1E.

The California Company's L. R. Alwood No. 6 in 10-9-10E of the Lake St. John Field in Concordia parish.

BOARD LEASES STATE TRACTS FOR BONUSES

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29—(AP)—The Louisiana mineral board leased 14 state-owned tracts for a total of $196,051 in bonuses.

All the tracts were inland, and the amount received contrasted with the bonuses running into millions collected at earlier mineral board leasings when tidelands properties were offered. Since the United States attorney general filed suit against Louisiana for possession of the oil-rich lands off the Gulf of Mexico coast, the mineral board has received no expressions of interest in tidelands leases and has advertised none for letting, although the board formally adopted a policy of continuing to lease tidelands to any interested operators.

The board rejected bids on two tracts, one of them part of the Louisiana Prison Farm at St. Gabriel.

deducts half the cost of the stamps. The tax thus is shared; six cents in paid by the gardner, six cents by the employer.

The tax may be higher by the time the system goes into effect. Mr. Truman has recommended that it be increased to 1 1/2 per cent each on July 1.

Every so often the employe sends his stamp book to the social security administration, which credits him with the earnings toward his old-age pension, and sends him a new book.

The farmer uses the same system for his hired hands. The worker, as he "follows the crops" from one area to another, takes his book with him. "Non-cash" wages paid to farm workers and domestics, such as meals and lodging, count as earnings, under a table of minimum values fixed by the government.

The farmer himself, along with other self-employed persons, would make contributions toward solvency in old age. Kingsley said F. S. A. plans to use the standard income tax form for farmers, operators of one-man businesses and partnerships, and others whose income does not depend on wages.

Use of the income tax blank would catch every self-employed person who has to file an income return—an estimated 75 per cent or more of farmers and non-farm self-employed.

Either a slight revision of the present income tax form, or a short separate form could be used, Kingsley said, depending on the wish of congress.

The taxpayer would enter his self-made earnings as "net income from self-employment." It would be made up from two items on the standard income tax form—"profit (or loss) from business or profession," and "income from partnerships." He would not pay a social security tax on income from investment, rents, annuities and the like.

One question is strictly up to congress: Should the self-employed person pay both the employer and employe contribution, or just the employe contribution?

If he just pays one share but collects full benefits, he won't be carrying his weight in the social insurance system. If he pays both shares, the tax may be an undue burden.

F. S. A., in a recent report, suggested a compromise for congressional consideration. Let the self-employed pay the single rate on the first several hundred dollars of income and the double rate on all additional income.

Some have proposed that the self-employed be allowed to decide for themselves whether they want to enter the system. F. S. A. opposes that plan because the insurance system would not then be soundly built; most of the "expensive risks"—those likely to start collecting benefits soon—would tend to sign up while others might not. And chronically hard-pressed persons might choose to stay out, even though they are the ones likeliest to be in poor circumstances in old age or to become public charges.

MEMORIAL FAIR TO SELECT MANAGER

WINNSBORO, La., Jan. 29—(Special)—Committeemen of the Franklin Parish War Memorial Fair will meet Thursday at 2:30 p. m. to select a manager for the fair this coming season.

The new manager will replace Louis Westerburg, who served as manager for last year's exhibitions.

October 13, second day after the fair opens this year, has been designated as Monroe-Natchez day at the fair.

Louisiana Contends U. S. Has No Right To Sue State

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—The state of Louisiana, setting up its first defense against a claim by the United States to the oil-rich tidelands, is trying to persuade the United States supreme court not even to hear the suit.

The high court hasn't said yes or no. The legal situation at the moment is this:

The United States, through Attorney General Clark, claims the submerged lands off the Louisiana coast beginning at low-water mark, and the valuable oil and other minerals under them.

Clark has prepared a suit for these lands. It is similar to one which he filed, and won, against California in 1947.

But, under the rules of the supreme court, he can't file his suit until the court agrees to receive it. He has asked the court to do so.

So far, the Louisiana and California cases are parallel. But in 1947 California didn't object to the right of the federal government to file the suit. The supreme court accepted it. California tried to defend itself against it and lost.

Louisiana, with the benefit of that experience, is jumping into the legal fray right at the start and has entered an objection to the filing of the suit on this ground:

Nothing in the constitution authorizes the United States to sue one of its constituent state, unless that state consents.

And, say the state's legal representatives, "the state of Louisiana has never consented to be summarily dragged by the attorney general before the bar of a federal court."

There is even stronger language in the objection prepared by the state's tidelands defense team, Attorney General Bolivar E. Kemp, Jr., Assistant Attorney General John L. Madden, Leander H. Perez, Plaquemine-St. Bernard district attorney, and their Washington associates. They say, "the consent to be sued is consent to be destroyed."

The state's argument runs this way:

The United States is a sovereign and the individual states are sovereigns. Sovereigns can be sued only if they consent to be. The constitution contains no implied consent either by the federal government or by the individual states to be sued by the other. The supreme court "has clearly decided that the federal government has not consented to be sued by a state. It should likewise decide that the states have not consented to be sued by the federal government."

As a matter of fact, the court in several cases has decided that the United States may sue an individual state. But, say Louisiana's attorneys, these decisions now should be reversed. The state counsel contend that they all are based on an early case against Texas and that in this case the constitutional question was never properly raised and passed upon. Moreover, Louisiana's spokesmen contend, provisions for suits by the United States against individual states were discussed by the framers of the national constitution and rejected.

The Louisiana attorneys, in their objection to the filing of the suit, do some speculating as to what might happen if such a suit were to be accepted and the United States were to win from a state possession of such property as the tidelands and the revenues—estimated elsewhere at $15,000,000—which the state already has derived from them.

"It might well be that the state would be unable to pay these sums without impairing vital functions of the government, they say. "Also we know of no legal process by which the federal government can enforce such a claim, but even if such a process could be found, the enforcement of the claim might easily bankrupt the state and destroy its economic and eventually its political existence. These are the sober consequences that must be faced if the doctrine of the immunity of the sovereign from suit without its consent is not rigidly adhered to."

Louisiana's argument for its objection suggests also a method which the state might accept for reaching a solution to the tidelands dispute. Such disputes between sovereigns, the statement sets out, are normally settled by treaties and agreements reached by negotiation.

Continuing the Louisiana attorney says:

"Thus, if the federal government decides, as a matter of policy and necessity for future national defense, to conserve the oil and other resources within the national defense, to conserve the oil and other resources within the areas here involved, it can seek to do so through an orderly and fair procedure. Under the constitution, such matters of policy are for congress, the legislative branch of the government. For instance, congress may lay down a basic policy that the conservation of those resources should be carried out by the federal government, and authorize officials of the federal government to negotiate some joint arrangement with the states, or to acquire the areas involved by purchase or eminent domain."

Here, perhaps, is an indication of what Louisiana's members of the 81st congress may try to accomplish legislatively if the supreme court accepts the justice department's suit and shows signs of following the precedent of the California tidelands case.

FACES TWO CHARGES

James P. Pritchett, 21, route 1, West Monroe, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and causing damage to city property, was arrested by West Monroe police late yesterday afternoon. According to police, Pritchett was released late under a $325 bond.

One can read a book by the Northern Lights when they are at their most brilliant stage, according to Encyclopedia Britannica.

Water requires more heat to warm it and more cold to cool it than any other common substance.

RED RIVER ABOVE SHREVEPORT RISES

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Slight rises in the Sulphur river at Naples, Tex., and in Red river above Shreveport, were reported in the afternoon river bulletin to the United States weather bureau here today. The Cypress at Jefferson, Tex., which had a stage of 10 feet Friday, late today was forecast to reach flood stage and crest at about 20 to 22 feet the first of next week.

Flood stage of the Cypress is 18 feet, and the latest forecast means it will be two to four feet above flood stage about Monday.

The Sulphur at Naples, which was 8.4 feet above flood stage early today, had risen .2 of a foot by late afternoon. Greatest damage expected, so far, from the rising Sulphur is to livestock, and the same holds true for livestock inside the levee near Grand Ecore and Alexandria, La., on Red river.

Today was the first time flood forecast had been issued for Cypress river at Jefferson. The rise is due chiefly to rains, since the Cypress has a large watershed. B. P. Hughes, meteorologist in charge of the weather bureau here, today issued the flood warning of 20 to 22 feet on the Cypress at Jefferson by the first of next week.

The weather bureau says there is no outlook for rains that would affect the Red below Shreveport until after the first of the week.

Fulton, Ark., reported a stage of 31.4 in Red river late today. The river still is rising at that point. The Red still is expected to crest at 34 to 36 feet, one to three feet above flood stage, at Grand Ecore about Tuesday. The Red is expected to reach three feet above flood stage at Alexandria next week.

in President Truman's anti-inflation program. Curiously it is an extension of the "voluntary controls" over steel and other scarce materials voted by the last, Republican controlled, congress as a substitute for more direct and drastic powers over business and industry asked by Mr. Truman.

Republican senators already have served notice they will seek a 13-month extension beyond March 1 of the voluntary allocation plan instead of the temporary seven-month continuation asked by the administration.

In urging the stop-gap extension, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer said that "mandatory powers" will be asked later in a general anti-inflation bill wanted by the president.

Republicans argue that the voluntary system has worked so well there is no reason to cut it off short. They figure that a long term extension will reduce pressure for more drastic controls.

House leaders expect to call up the voluntary allocations bill Wednesday if it clears the senate by then.

Meanwhile both senate and house banking committees will work on a 28-month extension of war-time export controls that expire February 28. This is expected to move through congress without major opposition.

Despite Lucas's optimism about teamwork, there is one issue coming up which is certain to split Democratic ranks wide open. That is the attempt to amend senate rules to outlaw the filibuster, or unlimited, time consuming debate designed to prevent senate action. Southern Democrats want this weapon to fight anti-lynch, anti-poll tax and other parts of the "civil rights" program pledged by the president.

Chairman Hayden (D-Ariz.) brought pressure on the senate rules committee to wind up hearings Monday on a new rule that would allow two-thirds of the senate to end debate on any issue.

Republicans have been pressing Democratic leaders to bring the anti-filibuster measure onto the senate floor at once so it will not hold up other major legislation.

House leaders may call up Monday an authorization for $3,000,000 more of emergency blizzard funds to be used in clearing snow-blocked highways, roads and trails, and for other emergency operations. It was unanimously approved by the senate last week.

An authorization requires an appropriation to put it into operation.

Former President Hoover will make one of his rare congressional appearances before the house expenditures committee Monday. He will testify on proposed authority for streamlining of government agencies which President Truman asks.

House committees also will continue hearings on a proposed increase in minimum hourly wages from 40 to 75 cents, a 70-group (or 48-group) plan for the air forces, and an administration request to extend and broaden the reciprocal trade program.

Chairman Wood (D-Ga.) also called an organization session for the revised house un-American activities committee.

JERRY BOZEMAN IS CRITICALLY BURNED

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Jerry Bozeman, 39, is in critical condition at a Roswell, N. M., hospital of burns suffered last Sunday when the gas stove in the bathroom of his Roswell home exploded and set fire to his clothing.

Bozeman is a former radio station KWKH sports announcer and once was secretary of the Red River Valley Association. At present he is advertising manager of the Roswell Daily Record, daily newspaper. He went to Lake Charles from here in 1945 and returned in 1947 and worked for a local radio station until January, when he went to Roswell as advertising manager of the newspaper.

Mrs. Bozeman and their son, Tandy, 9, escaped without injury.

Bozeman was reported to be under an oxygen tent today. He has been receiving blood transfusions several times each day since the accident.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28—(AP)—For the first time in years, Roy Rogers won't be touring with his rodeo in 1949.

"It's too hard work," the Cincinnati wrangler told me on the "Susanna Pass" set. "It's fun for the first two weeks, then it gets to be a grind. Last year I caught cold and I never could shake it."

Roy has four pictures to do this year for Republic, plus a weekly air show. "I'm going to do some fishing the rest of the time," he said.

Farley Granger will do "Earth and High Heaven" after "Roseanna McCoy." That's the inter-racial romance story originally set for Gregory Peck. The script has had three top writers—Howard Koch, Elmer Rice and John Patrick. It's reported that the message will be minimized and the love story played up.

Humphrey Bogart thrives on feuds. Remember when he picked a fight with San Francisco by saying its women weren't such smart dressers nor its restaurants so special? "It never hurt the business of my pictures there a bit," he says.

Florence Marly, Bogie's leading lady in "Tokyo Joe," is getting known as the lady in grey. She wears nothing else. "Grey suits every occasion and it suits me psychologically," she says. "Women should find the color that suits them best and stick to it." She added that French women are noted for their monotones in dress colors.

Dane Clark is off suspension at Warner's for the first time in more than six months. He's doing "twilight" for the Hakims. Dane's long suspension is something of a record at the suspension-happy lot. He did it by turning down four W. B. scripts and one loan-out.

"Pride of the Yankees" gets a big re-issue splash in April, timed for the baseball season. Goldwyn historians report the date will mark the 10th anniversary of Lou Gehrig's last game.

Billy DeWolfe, back from convulsing the royal family at the command performance, says: "British television is 10 years ahead of video over here."

Robert Taylor, in England for "Conspirator," may return to Europe this summer for pleasure. Barbara Stanwyck and Bob are making plans with the Jack Bennys for a motor tour of England and the continent in July and August.

Loretta Young was asked for her advice to her successor, as academy award winner. "My advice is to do nothing different," she answered on the "Come to the Stable" set. "Continue handling your career the way you were. That's what won you the Oscar, so why change?"

Greer Garson's mother is doing a role with her talented daughter in "Forsyte Saga" . . . It's reported there is 92 per cent unemployment among film actors in Hollywood . . . The legion of decency found "Shock-proof" morally objectionable in part because of "insufficient moral compensation." The film stars Cornel Wilde and Pat Knight.

Oscar Levant may return to M. G. M. for another role after his "Barklevs of Broadway" stint . . . Esther Williams is arranging to have three nurseries built in her home. Triplets?

ORDERS CURTAILMENT OF PRODUCTION IN JETER ZONE

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29—(AP)—Issuance of an order extending productive limits of the Jeter zone in the Logansport field, DeSoto parish, was one of several announced by S. L. Digby, commissioner of conservation.

The Logansport order said geological and engineering data indicated that productive limits of the Jeter zone could be extended, and adopted drilling units mapped by the Skelly Oil Company.

Other orders, by fields, were:

South Delhi—Special rules governing production form the Kny sand, Merritt sand zone and Holt A15 sand.

NEGRO BOY HELD FOR TIRE THEFT

A 17-year-old Negro boy was being held in the city jail last night and charged with the theft of a bicycle tire from the Montgomery Ward department store.

The youth, Albert Berry Smith, of Booker T. Washington addition, was caught by store employees when he left the store with the tire. The boy was held at the store until police officers arrived and took him to headquarters.

Police said last night that Smith's bond had been set at $100.

AN OPEN LETTER TO A DRIVER WHO SPEEDS THROUGH OUR STREETS - - -

We saw you barely miss a little boy on a tricycle this afternoon, and heard you yell, "Get the h--- out of the way. Don't you know any better than to ride in the street?" He didn't answer because he hasn't learned to talk very well yet, so we'll answer for him.

No, the little boy doesn't know any better than to ride his tricycle in the street. He has been warned not to, but little boys don't always heed warnings. Some adults don't either, especially traffic warnings, and those limiting the speed of automobiles.

We are going to tell you something about that little boy. He has a mother who endured considerable inconvenience, anxiety and suffering to bring him into the world. He has a father who has worked hard and made many sacrifices to make him healthy and happy. The supreme purpose of their lives is to have their little boy grow up to be a useful man. NOW, STOP A MINUTE AND THINK! IF YOU SHOULD KILL A CHILD, HOW WOULD YOU FEEL FACING HIS PARENTS?

What excuse could you give them for having robbed them of their dearest possession? More important, what excuse could you possibly offer Him, whose kingdom is made of little children?

Children, our hasty friend, were here long before you or your automobile were thought of. All the automobiles on earth are not worth the life of one little boy. We don't know what that little boy may be some day, and we could get along without you, BUT WE CAN'T SPARE A SINGLE LITTLE BOY IN MONROE.

AN OPEN LETTER TO A DRIVER WHO SPEEDS THROUGH OUR STREETS - - -

We saw you barely miss a little boy on a tricycle this afternoon, and heard you yell, "Get the h--- out of the way. Don't you know any better than to ride in the street?" He didn't answer because he hasn't learned to talk very well yet, so we'll answer for him.

No, the little boy doesn't know any better than to ride his tricycle in the street. He has been warned not to, but little boys don't always heed warnings. Some adults don't either, especially traffic warnings, and those limiting the speed of automobiles.

We are going to tell you something about that little boy. He has a mother who endured considerable inconvenience, anxiety and suffering to bring him into the world. He has a father who has worked hard and made many sacrifices to make him healthy and happy. The supreme purpose of their lives is to have their little boy grow up to be a useful man. NOW, STOP A MINUTE AND THINK! IF YOU SHOULD KILL A CHILD, HOW WOULD YOU FEEL FACING HIS PARENTS?

What excuse could you give them for having robbed them of their dearest possession? More important, what excuse could you possibly offer Him, whose kingdom is made of little children?

Children, our hasty friend, were here long before you or your automobile were thought of. All the automobiles on earth are not worth the life of one little boy. We don't know what that little boy may be some day, and we could get along without you, BUT WE CAN'T SPARE A SINGLE LITTLE BOY IN MONROE.

MONROE PUPILS WIN TECH HONORS

West Monroe Students Also Place High At Mid-Term Graduation

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—Monroe and West Monroe students led the honor graduates distinguished at Louisiana Tech's mid-year commencement exercises Saturday night.

The list included 11 seniors graduating with general honors and 10 finishing with departmental distinction.

Harry M. Bell of Monroe took top honors in the class of 147 graduates. He was the only member of the class to be rated summa cum laude, a distinction bestowed upon those who maintain an average of 2.9 out of a possible 3.00 during their junior and senior years and who have not made less than a 2.00 average in their freshman and sophomore years.

Besides winning general honors with the highest rating, Bell won departmental honors in business administration.

Those receiving general honors magna cum laude, only slightly below the summa cum laude classification, were as follows:

Roy S. Hurley, Minden; James Douglas Milam, Jr., Cullen, and Joe Michael, Homer.

General honors cum laude went to Jane Archibald, West Monroe; Bettie Joe Camp, West Monroe; Robert DeClark Elledge, Monroe; Allen C. Goodling, Simsboro; Leo N. Lewis, DuBach; Howard H. Smith, Ruston, and Judith Clinton Yarberry, Ruston.

In addition to Bell, those receiving departmental honors were Jane Archibald, West Monroe, mathematics; Archie W. Craig, Norphlet, Ark., physical education; Robert D. Elledge, Monroe, business administration; A. C. Goodling, Simsboro, agriculture; Roy S. Hurley, Minden, business administration; Alton Mangum, Castor, agriculture; Joe Michael, Homer, physical education; James D. Milam, Jr., Cullen, social science, and Grady DeMoss Taylor, Truxno, botany.

ERROR IS MADE IN BURGLARY STORY

The burglary story from Lake Providence which appeared in the Monroe Morning World and News-Star Wednesday incorrectly gave the name of the owner of the saloon and Negro restaurant, from which the slot machine was taken.

The owner of the establishment was Sam Ditammaso and not Ben Carter, as this paper reported. Mr. Carter is the day marshall in Lake Providence and was the authority for the story. The Morning World was in error and is glad to make this correction.

'LOAN SHELF' ESTABLISHED HERE

A "loan shelf," sponsored by the Monroe section of the National Council of Jewish Women, was formally opened here Tuesday. The project has offices in the rear of the parish health center and its purpose is to secure adjuncts of the sickroom for those who otherwise would be unable to obtain them. Members of the Council propose to secure these and loan them out where there is an unsupplied need to families. In the top photo, attending the opening are, left to right: Dr. Boaz, Mrs. David Aron, Mrs. Joe Marx, Jr., and Mayor George Breece; left lower photo, Mrs. Will Abramson, Mrs. Phillip Fishman and Mrs. Bernard Levi; lower right photo, Mrs. Ben Stern, Mrs. S. D. Shlosman and Mrs. S. Doernberg.

MRS. NULL, FORMER BOAT CAPTAIN, DIES

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Jan. 29—(Special)—Mrs. Annie E. Null, 75, former captain of a boat on the Mississippi river, died at her residence near Lake Providence early Saturday morning.

Mrs. Null was a native of Spain and had resided in East Carroll parish for the past several years.

Services for Mrs. Null will be at 2 p. m. Sunday at the First Methodist Church in Lake Providence. Burial will follow in the Lake Providence cemetery under the direction of Catron-Gay funeral home of Oak Grove.

The former boat captain resided by herself and is survived only by her friends.

policies. The American governor would report direct to the secretary of state. This would cut out the army's present middle-man position; General Clay currently carries out policies which the state department transits through the army.

The army's occupation force in Germany would remain undisturbed so far as its garrison and police duties go. It would still stand as a shield, however thin, between Soviet forces and the western non-Communist countries but the army commander could stick to military affairs where Clay presently runs the American zone and commands all U. S. forces in Europe.

The army high command here has always taken the position that the military should be relieved of this dual responsibility as soon as possible after the end of the war.

The argument has been that officers and men should be free to tend to military matters. The army's requests to congress each year for money, for example, are complicated by the fact that appropriations have had to include funds for Germany and Japan.

The state department, on the other hand, has been reluctant to take over the job—officials consider it a "thankless task" — for which it is only partly prepared.

UTILITIES

at once for improvements and expansion. It is estimated that this sum will meet capital requirements up to and including 1952. The eight-year program ending in 1956 will require an additional $1,696,000 or a total of $5,036,000."

Concerning the water system, the report stated:

"Present source of water supply for the city is adequate for the present and prospective needs for some years in the future, but the raw water main from Bayou DeSiard to the city, as well as the filtration plant are inadequate. Also, many parts of the distribution system need reinforcement. We recommend that the supply and filtration works be renovated and enlarged immediately at an estimated cost of $237,000. Reinforcement of the distribution system required immediately will cost $532,000, and additions that should be made within the succeeding five years will cost another $394,000. The total cost of all proposed works is $1,163,000, and this program should be completed by 1956 or sooner. To pay for these major works and to provide for minor extentions to the distribution system and for the proper operation and maintenance of the water works, a substantial increase should be made in water rates."

It was pointed out at the meeting that present facilities have not provided sufficient power for the city for the past five years, that equipment has deteriorated materially in the last few years and that the growth of he community has put an additional strain upon the utilities. The population of Monroe is now estimated at 40,000 (the Chamber of Commerce estimate is 45,000), Mr. Peterman said, and it is expected that there will be at least 55,000 persons to be served in 1955.

"There is no intention to cast any reflection upon any one person or group of persons in submitting this report," Mayor Breece said. "The condition of the plant is merely an accumulation of heavier loads and mechanical deficiencies. The entire community is aware of the difficulties which they and we have experienced in the past and we wanted to know the true facts as could be ascertained only by competent engineers."

As one businessman put it at the meeting Friday: "It seems to me that it's a proposition of either making the improvements as recommended or losing our power plant. I'm willing to take the recommendations of a firm which has the reputation of that which made the survey."

Expenditures for the improvements were budgeted over a period of eight years as follows:

1949, electric $189,000; water, $3,500; 1950, electric, $1,995,000, water, $400,000; 1951, electric, $752,000, water $365,500; 1952, electric, $405,000, water, $90,000; 1953, electric, $380,000, water, $80,000; 1954, electric, $743,000; water, $75,000; 1955, electric, $325,000; water, $75,000; 1956, electric, $247,000; water, $74,000.

To place the power system in condition to supply the required load, the report recommends increasing the generating capacity by installational of additional steam-electric or diesel-electric units, installation of additional lines, sub-stations and regulators as rapidly as possible, coupled with rearrangement of existing facilities, with an underground system started in the downtown area to replace overhead lines and transformers; improvement of street lighting by installing larger lamps in suitable fixtures and scientifically located for more adequate and uniform lighting, centrally controlled to avoid waste now caused by all-day burning; new line headquarters, study of rate schedules, annual reports showing overall results of operations, allowance for depreciation, and other improvements in accounting practices.

In regard to the water plant, the engineers recommended that the 20-inch raw water main from Bayou DeSiard to the filter plant be cleaned immediately and that suitable water level indicating equipment be installed for the elevated tank so that water plant operation can regulate the pumping to keep the tank more nearly full; that the filtration plant be renovated and enlarged 50 per cent, including the installation of new chemical and chlorine feed equipment and a new river pumping station to serve the water and power plants; that the distribution system be reinforced by laying of new mains and installing a one-million gallon tank and booster pumping station at the south end of the city; that meters be checked for accuracy, that an investigation be made for possible leaks and that the laboratory be adequately equipped.

The report stated that the present water supply with improvements, will be adequate to 1955 or 1960, thereafter the supply can be increased by one of four methods: Constructing a new raw water line from the bayou; developing a whole new raw water supply from wells abovt five or six miles of west of Monroe; drilling supplementary wells near the filtration plant, or using water from the Selman field wells, after providing filtration facilities.

In the brief discussion of financing the improvements, those who expressed themselves seemed to think that a revenue bond issue would be the logical method of providing the necessary funds.

Mr. Peterman pointed out that under a revenue bond issue no additional taxes would be levied, that additional revenue from the utilities would be sufficient to retire the bonds. Interest and bond retirement will only temporarily decrease net income from the utilities, and this decrease will in no one year be more than $35,000 below the $550,000 net income expected in the current year.

The bonds would be sold only as the money is needed and the money can only be used for the purpose voted, city officials stated. The sale would be spread out over a longer period of years and this would reduce the cost of financing the projects materially, it was said.

TOT LOST 20 HOURS GOES TO HOSPITAL

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan 29.—(AP)—A two-year-old girl lay safe in the warmth of a hospital bed here tonight. In a somewhat limited conversation she told of her overnight exploit alone in the mountains of Albermarle county.

Except for a few scratches and a mild bit of frostbite that nipped at her bare toes, Gerleane Hensley seemed little the worse for her escapade that brought scores of searchers out for a 20-hour hunt.

Her own comment on the night in the open, made between long pulls at a bottle of milk, was:

"Very hungry," and:

"I saw a lot of moons."

University of Virginia Hospital said Gerleane would be all right and the frostbite didn't seem to amount to a great deal.

She was found by two searchers about 1 p. m., walking barefoot in a heavy brush area on the side of Sugar Loaf Mountain opposite her home in the Red Bud Hollow section.

She stepped in a creek during the night and took off her wet shoes. She wore a blue-checked gingham dress and a light coat.

State Trooper E. C. Riner, bundled her into his car after she had been carried several miles out to a highway, turned on the heater and whisked her to the hospital.

Summary of Engineers' Survey Of Local Utilities

New York, January 26, 1949

Honorable Mayor and Commissioners
City of Monroe
Monroe, Louisiana

Dear Sirs:

You have instructed us to report on the present condition of the City's Water Works and Electric Utility System and recommend a program for improvements which, in our opinion, are necessary.

Associated with us in this undertaking is the firm of Malcolm Pirnie Engineers, New York who have prepared the data contained in Sections I and II, Section II applying particularly to the Water Works.

Present source of water supply for the city is adequate for present and prospective needs for some years in the future, but the raw water main from Bayou DeSiard to the city, as well as the filtration plant are inadequate. Also, many parts of the distribution system need reinforcement. We recommend that the supply and filtration works be renovated and enlarged immediately at an estimated cost of $237,000. Reinforcement of the distribution system required immediately will cost $532,000, and additions that should be made within the succeeding five years will cost another $394,000. The total construction cost of all proposed works is $1,163,000, and this program should be completed by 1956 or sooner. To pay for these major works and to provide for minor extensions to the distribution system and for the proper operation and maintenance of the water works a substantial increase should be made in water rates.

The electric utility system is lacking in capacity at the generating station to insure safe and adequate operation and the distribution system is overloaded, resulting in low voltage and poor service in many areas of the city. Approximately $3,340,000 should be budgeted at once for improvements and expansion. It is estimated that this sum will meet capital requirements up to and including 1952. The eight-year program ending 1956 will require an additional $1,696,000, or a total of $5,036,000.

The requirements of the two utilities, water and electric, total an estimated $6,199,000 up to and including the fiscal year ending April 30, 1956.

TOTAL BUDGET EXPENDITURES BY YEARS

	Electric	Water	Total	Cumulation
1949	$ 189,000	$ 3,500	$ 192,500	$
1950	1,995,000	400,000	2,395,000	2,587,500
1951	752,000	365,500	1,117,500	3,705,000
1952	405,000	90,000	495,000	4,200,000
1953	380,000	80,000	460,000	4,660,000
1954	743,000	75,000	818,000	5,478,000
1955	325,000	75,000	400,000	5,878,000
1956	247,000	74,000	321,000	6,199,000

We desire to emphasize that estimates for both the water and electric utilities are based on present-day costs; that any budget prepared for a long-range program should be re-examined annually and adjusted to the needs of the system as they develop and change. Beyond 1952 the budget presented herewith should be used at this time only in a general way as a guide to fiscal policy.

Conclusions and recommendations for the Water Works and the Electric Utility are stated in somewhat greater detail at the end of Sections II and III.

The report comprises three parts, as follows:

Section I — Population and population trends as affecting future use of water and electricity.

Section II — Water Works—Description of present system and program of recommended improvements.

Section III — Electric Utility System — Description of existing facilities and program of recommended improvements.

Very truly yours,
FORD, BACON & DAVIS, INC.

SECTION II — WATER WORKS

Conclusions

As a result of their investigations and studies of the Water Works system, the Engineers have reached the following principal conclusions:

(1) The population of Monroe is approximately 40,000 and may be expected to increase to 55,000 by 1960.

(2) The average water consumption is now 6.0 m. g. d., and if the steps recommended in this report to eliminate waste are carried out, it will reach perhaps 7.5 m. g. d. by 1960. Peak daily demands in the summer months will be 40 to 50 percent higher.

(3) The present Bayou DeSiard water supply system and filtration plant has a capacity of approximately 7.0 m. g. d. which is insufficient for peak summer demands.

(4) The distribution system has not been extended and reinforced sufficiently in past years to meet adequately the growing demands, and as a result, water service and fire protection is deficient in many areas.

(5) The existing total storage capacity of 2.0 m. g. d. for filtered water is insufficient.

(6) The quality of water from the Bayou DeSiard is satistactory after filtration except for some difficulty from the corrosion of hot water tanks which probably can be alleviated by proper chemical control.

(7) Nearly one-half of the water delivered by the filter plant is unaccounted for and unpaid for. A substantial part of this goes to the power plant, but much of the unaccounted for water is attributed to unmetered services and the failure of many meters to register properly.

(8) Deferred maintenance of the filter plant and the distribution system has been accumulating for years and extensive work is now needed to restore them to proper operating condition.

(9) The present water rates are too low to provide sufficient income to operate and maintain properly the water works system.

(10) The capacity of the water supply system for Monroe can be increased readily to 9 or 10 m. g. d. by cleaning the 20-inch raw water main from Bayou DeSiard and by enlarging the filter plant.

(11) Increases in water supply capacity above 9 or 10 m. g. d. can be obtained by one of the following: (a) constructing a new raw water line from the Bayou, (b) developing a whole new ground water supply from wells about five or six miles west of Monroe, (c) drilling supplementary wells near the filtration plant, or (d) using water from the Selman Field wells, after providing filtration facilities.

(12) Test drilling and water analyses would be required to determine the feasibility of a new ground water developments from the west and the project would cost in the order of $800,00 in any event. If such a supply replaced the present system and the water could be used without filtration, there would be a substantial saving in operating costs. If the well water requires filtration the project is not attractive.

(13) All of the several possible projects, except the development of a new unfiltrated ground water supply from the west, would include immediate enlargement of the present works and renovation of the filter plant.

Recommendations

The Engineers recommend that:

(1) Arrangements be made for the immediate cleaning of the 20-inch raw water main from the Bayou to the filter plant and installation of suitable water level indicating equipment for the elevated tank so that the water plant operation can regulate the pumping to keep the tank more nearly full. The estimated cost if $3,500.

(2) The filtration plant be renovated and enlarged by 50 per cent including the installation of new chemical and chlorine feed equipment and a new river pumping station to serve the water and power plants be constructed as soon as financing can be arranged and the plans prepared. The estimated cost is $233,600.

(3) The distribution system be reinforced by laying new mains and installing a one million gallon tank and booster pumping station at the south end of the City as shown on Exh. W-9. The work that should be done immediately will cost approximately $532,000, the balance of the work, including a new high lift pump, estimated to cost $394,000 can be carried out gradually over the succeeding five years.

(4) The allocation out of earnings for distribution system maintenance be increased by at least $20,000 per year to carry out the deferred maintenance, to provide minor distribution system extensions not shown on the system map and to provide accurate maps and records of water main, valves, hydrants and services.

(5) The water rates be substantially increased to provide the revenue needed for the proper operation and maintenance of interest, amortization and depreciation charges.

(6) All water services, including those to the power plant and other public buildings, be metered.

(7) "Free water" be eliminated entirely except perhaps to some public agencies, and that these users be held accountable for the quantities of water consumed.

(8) A survey of consumers' meters be made to determine their operating condition and accuracy and that such repairs as are indicated be made to the many meters that record "no flow."

(9) The distribution system be investigated for possible leaks.

(10) The laboratory at the water plant be adequately equipped, that routine control tests be made regularly and properly recorded, and that a detailed laboratory study be made of the corrosive tendencies of the water and possible cures.

(11) The decision as to which of several methods for increasing the water supply capacity beyond 9 or 10 m. g. d. to be adopted should be postponed until the water is needed, but that meanwhile the City of Monroe encourage and support the compilation of additional ground water data in the area by the Louisiana and federal geological surveys.

SECTION III — ELECTRIC UTILITY

Conclusions

(1) The generating station is loaded to capacity with no reserve for emergencies or for future growth of load.

(2) The distribution system is overloaded, resulting in low voltage in some areas and rather frequent interruptions to service. Correction of poor service conditions is proceeding, but the work has been hampered by inadequate funds and slow deliveries of equipment. Many departments of the City having little or no revenue of their own, "live" off the receipts of the electric utility. The electric utility is therefore forced to compete with all other city departments for funds which it itself has earned, to provide required line extensions, new meters, new services, new transformers and substations, all of which have been necessary for load growth occasioned by addition of many new residential and commercial customers. In so competing for necessary funds it has fared badly in the past, with only the barest minimum of funds being allotted to it, resulting in lines and substations constructed only to meet minimum immediate requirements, with frequent makeshifts and constant moving of equipment to meet even small increases in load.

(3) Street lighting generally is inadequate because of too small lamps and improper location. It is wasteful of electric energy because of lack of control devices, resulting in 24-hour burning of about 2,700 lights.

(4) Line headquarters at the City Hall are inadequate and unsatisfactory. Inadequate storage facilities cause deterioration and waste of materials.

(5) Electric rates yield a reasonable revenue, but the rate structure is over-simplified and lacks proper administrative regulations to insure billing to all customers on an equitable basis.

(6) Annual reports do not segregate essential data to give the Commission and the public a clear picture of the investment and yearly operating results; the annual allowance for depreciation is entirely at variance with needs of the system; annual revenues as reported include substantial "Sales" to other departments of the city ($89,600 in 1948 fiscal year) which "Sales" are not reimbursed to the electric utility, hence revenues are over-stated; electric current for operating generating station auxiliary motors is charged against operating costs and credited to revenues, thus inflating both accounts.

(7) A large investment in electric utility plant will be necessary to make up accrued deficiencies and provide for growth of load with a safe margin for emergencies. The sum of $3,400,000 will be needed in the next few years.

Recommendations

(1) Generating capacity should be increased at the earliest possible date. Either steam-electric or Diesel-electric units can be installed, but it appears that cost will be less and delivery better for Diesel than for steam units, while overall efficiency is about the same for both. Estimated cost $1,733,000.

(2) Additional lines, substations and regulators should be installed as rapidly as possible, coupled with some rearrangement of existing facilities to render better service. An underground system should be started in the downtown district which will eventually replace overhead lines and transformers.

(3) Street lighting should be improved by installing larger lamps in suitable fixtures and scientifically located to give more adequate and uniform lighting. Street lights should be centrally controlled to avoid waste now caused by all-day burning.

(4) A new line headquarters, warehouse and garage should be constructed on City-owned land so that present inadequate quarters at the City Hall can be vacated.

(5) Rate schedules should be studied and probably changed to avoid inequalities in billing. Rules should be established which will definite the various classes of customers and determine the rate to be charged each class. Regulations governing installation of meters and services should be drawn up so electrical contractors will follow uniform practices when wiring residences and commerical buildings, so that the City's service and meter costs will be minimized.

(6) Annual reports should be so compiled that balance sheet and operating statements will clearly set forth the overall results secured from operations. Significant basic statistics should be published in the reports, such as output, number of customers, etc.

(7) Allowance for depreciation should be increased and renamed "Allowance for Retirements and Replacements" or similar. Such action may assist in securing favorable terms when new financing is considered.

(8) Value of electric energy used in the operation of the electric utility should not be taken into "Revenue" nor entered in "Operating Expenses." Electric energy delivered to other City departments for which no money is received, should be separated from cash revenues and listed as "Value of Electric Energy delivered to Other City Departments".

(9) The electric utility should be set up as a separate operating entity. It should be treated as a business enterprise and it should be recognized that a business enterprise such as this requires allowances for replacements and for new capital additions, and to deny these allowances merely brings on recurring emergencies.

Sheriff Long early Saturday, but the West Carroll sheriff refused to reveal the contents. Milstead made no statement at the inquest.

The bullets were allegedly fired from a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol, the sheriff said.

Milstead is owner and operator of the Milstead Auto Repair Shop here.

Milstead's wife is employed as a clerk in McKoin's grocery store.

An affidavit charging Milstead with manslaughter was filed by the sheriff's department and the case will go before the grand jury on April 4.

The garage operator is the father of two daughters, 17 and 21 years old.

McKoin was a native of Forest and his wife, Mrs. Florence McKoin, was made assistant superintendent of the Louisiana training school for girls near Alexandria last week.

Mr. McKoin is survived by his wife, one son, John Robert, of Borger, Tex., two daughters, Mrs. Mary Ida Rinehart, of Ruston, Mrs. Billy Mills, of Bonita, three sisters, Mrs. Bertha Crutcher, of Gurdeon, Ark., Mrs. J. Services for Mr. McKoin were scheduled for 2 p. m. Sunday in the Catron-Gay funeral chapel with the Rev. Jack Midyett, pastor of the Bastrop Methodist Church officiating.

Internment will follow in the Bastrop Cemetery under the direction of Catron-Gay Funeral Home.

ACCIDENTS FATAL TO FIVE LONDONERS

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—At least five Londoners died today in accidents blamed on a weird, patchy fog which hung over much of the city.

Two men walked into ponds and drowned, two others perished in traffic accidents and a woman who was unable to find her way out of a railway station walked on a track and was killed.

Traffic on the Thames was halted after three ships ran aground. Buses and trains were running up to an hour and a half behind schedule. Air traffic was disrupted. Firemen ran ahead of their fire engines to show drivers the way to fires. Police stations threw open empty cells to bed down hundreds of suburbanites stranded in town.

MONROE PUPILS WIN TECH HONORS

West Monroe Students Also Place High At Mid-Term Graduation

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—Monroe and West Monroe students led the honor graduates distinguished at Louisiana Tech's mid-year commencement exercises Saturday night.

The list included 11 seniors graduating with general honors and 10 finishing with departmental distinction.

Harry M. Bell of Monroe took top honors in the class of 147 graduates. He was the only member of the class to be rated summa cum laude, a distinction bestowed upon those who maintain an average of 2.9 out of a possible 3.00 during their junior and senior years and who have not made less than a 2.00 average in their freshman and sophomore years.

Besides winning general honors with the highest rating, Bell won departmental honors in business administration.

Those receiving general honors magna cum laude, only slightly below the summa cum laude classification, were as follows:

Roy S. Hurley, Minden; James Douglas Milam, Jr., Cullen, and Joe Michael, Homer.

General honors cum laude went to Jane Archibald, West Monroe; Bettie Joe Camp, West Monroe; Robert DeClark Elledge, Monroe; Allen C. Goodling, Simsboro; Leo N. Lewis, DuBach; Howard H. Smith, Ruston, and Judith Clinton Yarberry, Ruston.

In addition to Bell, those receiving departmental honors were Jane Archibald, West Monroe, mathematics; Archie W. Craig, Norphlet, Ark., physical education; Robert D. Elledge, Monroe, business administration; A. C. Goodling, Simsboro, agriculture; Roy S. Hurley, Minden, business administration; Alton Mangum, Castor, agriculture; Joe Michael, Homer, physical education; James D. Milam, Jr., Cullen, social science, and Grady DeMoss Taylor, Truxno, botany.

ERROR IS MADE IN BURGLARY STORY

The burglary story from Lake Providence which appeared in the Monroe Morning World and News-Star Wednesday incorrectly gave the name of the owner of the saloon and Negro restaurant, from which the slot machine was taken.

The owner of the establishment was Sam Ditammaso and not Ben Carter, as this paper reported. Mr. Carter is the day marshall in Lake Providence and was the authority for the story. The Morning World was in error and is glad to make this correction.

'LOAN SHELF' ESTABLISHED HERE

A "loan shelf," sponsored by the Monroe section of the National Council of Jewish Women, was formally opened here Tuesday. The project has offices in the rear of the parish health center and its purpose is to secure adjuncts of the sickroom for those who otherwise would be unable to obtain them. Members of the Council propose to secure these and loan them out where there is an unsupplied need to families. In the top photo, attending the opening are, left to right: Dr. Boaz, Mrs. David Aron, Mrs. Joe Marx, Jr., and Mayor George Breece; left lower photo, Mrs. Will Abramson, Mrs. Phillip Fishman and Mrs. Bernard Levi; lower right photo, Mrs. Ben Stern, Mrs. S. MRS. NULL, FORMER BOAT CAPTAIN, DIES

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Jan. 29—(Special)—Mrs. Annie E. Null, 75, former captain of a boat on the Mississippi river, died at her residence near Lake Providence early Saturday morning.

Mrs. Null was a native of Spain and had resided in East Carroll parish for the past several years.

Services for Mrs. Null will be at 2 p. m. Sunday at the First Methodist Church in Lake Providence. Burial will follow in the Lake Providence cemetery under the direction of Catron-Gay funeral home of Oak Grove.

The former boat captain resided by herself and is survived only by her friends.

policies. The American governor would report direct to the secretary of state. This would cut out the army's present middle-man position; General Clay currently carries out policies which the state department transits through the army.

The army's occupation force in Germany would remain undisturbed so far as its garrison and police duties go. It would still stand as a shield, however thin, between Soviet forces and the western non-Communist countries but the army commander could stick to military affairs where Clay presently runs the American zone and commands all U. S. forces in Europe.

The army high command here has always taken the position that the military should be relieved of this dual responsibility as soon as possible after the end of the war.

The argument has been that officers and men should be free to tend to military matters. The army's requests to congress each year for money, for example, are complicated by the fact that appropriations have had to include funds for Germany and Japan.

The state department, on the other hand, has been reluctant to take over the job—officials consider it a "thankless task" — for which it is only partly prepared.

UTILITIES

at once for improvements and expansion. It is estimated that this sum will meet capital requirements up to and including 1952. The eight-year program ending in 1956 will require an additional $1,696,000 or a total of $5,036,000."

Concerning the water system, the report stated:

"Present source of water supply for the city is adequate for the present and prospective needs for some years in the future, but the raw water main from Bayou DeSiard to the city, as well as the filtration plant are inadequate. Also, many parts of the distribution system need reinforcement. We recommend that the supply and filtration works be renovated and enlarged immediately at an estimated cost of $237,000. Reinforcement of the distribution system required immediately will cost $532,000, and additions that should be made within the succeeding five years will cost another $394,000. The total cost of all proposed works is $1,163,000, and this program should be completed by 1956 or sooner. To pay for these major works and to provide for minor extentions to the distribution system and for the proper operation and maintenance of the water works, a substantial increase should be made in water rates."

It was pointed out at the meeting that present facilities have not provided sufficient power for the city for the past five years, that equipment has deteriorated materially in the last few years and that the growth of the community has put an additional strain upon the utilities. The population of Monroe is now estimated at 40,000 (the Chamber of Commerce estimate is 45,000), Mr. Peterman said, and it is expected that there will be at least 55,000 persons to be served in 1955.

"There is no intention to cast any reflection upon any one person or group of persons in submitting this report," Mayor Breece said. "The condition of the plant is merely an accumulation of heavier loads and mechanical deficiencies. The entire community is aware of the difficulties which they and we have experienced in the past and we wanted to know the true facts as could be ascertained only by competent engineers."

As one businessman put it at the meeting Friday: "It seems to me that it's a proposition of either making the improvements as recommended or losing our power plant. I'm willing to take the recommendations of a firm which has the reputation of that which made the survey."

Expenditures for the improvements were budgeted over a period of eight years as follows:

1949, electric $189,000; water, $3,500; 1950, electric, $1,995,000, water, $400,000; 1951, electric, $752,000, water $365,500; 1952, electric, $405,000, water, $90,000; 1953, electric, $380,000, water, $80,000; 1954, electric, $743,000; water, $75,000; 1955, electric, $325,000; water, $75,000; 1956, electric, $247,000; water, $74,000.

To place the power system in condition to supply the required load, the report recommends increasing the generating capacity by installational of additional steam-electric or diesel-electric units, installation of additional lines, sub-stations and regulators as rapidly as possible, coupled with rearrangement of existing facilities, with an underground system started in the downtown area to replace overhead lines and transformers; improvement of street lighting by installing larger lamps in suitable fixtures and scientifically located for more adequate and uniform lighting, centrally controlled to avoid waste now caused by all-day burning; new line headquarters, study of rate schedules, annual reports showing overall results of operations, allowance for depreciation, and other improvements in accounting practices.

In regard to the water plant, the engineers recommended that the 20-inch raw water main from Bayou DeSiard to the filter plant be cleaned immediately and that suitable water level indicating equipment be installed for the elevated tank so that water plant operation can regulate the pumping to keep the tank more nearly full; that the filtration plant be renovated and enlarged 50 per cent, including the installation of new chemical and chlorine feed equipment and a new river pumping station to serve the water and power plants; that the distribution system be reinforced by laying of new mains and installing a one-million gallon tank and booster pumping station at the south end of the city; that meters be checked for accuracy, that an investigation be made for possible leaks and that the laboratory be adequately equipped.

The report stated that the present water supply with improvements, will be adequate to 1955 or 1960, thereafter the supply can be increased by one of four methods: Constructing a new raw water line from the bayou; developing a whole new raw water supply from wells about five or six miles of west of Monroe; drilling supplementary wells near the filtration plant, or using water from the Selman field wells, after providing filtration facilities.

In the brief discussion of financing the improvements, those who expressed themselves seemed to think that a revenue bond issue would be the logical method of providing the necessary funds.

Mr. Peterman pointed out that under a revenue bond issue no additional taxes would be levied, that additional revenue from the utilities would be sufficient to retire the bonds. Interest and bond retirement will only temporarily decrease net income from the utilities, and this decrease will in no one year be more than $35,000 below the $550,000 net income expected in the current year.

The bonds would be sold only as the money is needed and the money can only be used for the purpose voted, city officials stated. The sale would be spread out over a longer period of years and this would reduce the cost of financing the projects materially, it was said.

TOT LOST 20 HOURS GOES TO HOSPITAL

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan 29.—(AP)—A two-year-old girl lay safe in the warmth of a hospital bed here tonight. In a somewhat limited conversation she told of her overnight exploit alone in the mountains of Albermarle county.

Except for a few scratches and a mild bit of frostbite that nipped at her bare toes, Gerleane Hensley seemed little the worse for her escapade that brought scores of searchers out for a 20-hour hunt.

Her own comment on the night in the open, made between long pulls at a bottle of milk, was:

"Very hungry," and:

"I saw a lot of moons."

University of Virginia Hospital said Gerleane would be all right and the frostbite didn't seem to amount to a great deal.

She was found by two searchers about 1 p. m., walking barefoot in a heavy brush area on the side of Sugar Loaf Mountain opposite her home in the Red Bud Hollow section.

She stepped in a creek during the night and took off her wet shoes. She wore a blue-checked gingham dress and a light coat.

State Trooper E. C. Riner, bundled her into his car after she had been carried several miles out to a highway, turned on the heater and whisked her to the hospital.

Summary of Engineers' Survey Of Local Utilities

New York, January 26, 1949

Honorable Mayor and Commissioners
City of Monroe
Monroe, Louisiana

Dear Sirs:

You have instructed us to report on the present condition of the City's Water Works and Electric Utility System and recommend a program for improvements which, in our opinion, are necessary.

Associated with us in this undertaking is the firm of Malcolm Pirnie Engineers, New York who have prepared the data contained in Sections I and II, Section II applying particularly to the Water Works.

Present source of water supply for the city is adequate for present and prospective needs for some years in the future, but the raw water main from Bayou DeSiard to the city, as well as the filtration plant are inadequate. Also, many parts of the distribution system need reinforcement. We recommend that the supply and filtration works be renovated and enlarged immediately at an estimated cost of $237,000. Reinforcement of the distribution system required immediately will cost $532,000, and additions that should be made within the succeeding five years will cost another $394,000. The total construction cost of all proposed works is $1,163,000, and this program should be completed by 1956 or sooner. To pay for these major works and to provide for minor extensions to the distribution system and for the proper operation and maintenance of the water works a substantial increase should be made in water rates.

The electric utility system is lacking in capacity at the generating station to insure safe and adequate operation and the distribution system is overloaded, resulting in low voltage and poor service in many areas of the city. Approximately $3,340,000 should be budgeted at once for improvements and expansion. It is estimated that this sum will meet capital requirements up to and including 1952. The eight-year program ending 1956 will require an additional $1,696,000, or a total of $5,036,000.

The requirements of the two utilities, water and electric, total an estimated $6,199,000 up to and including the fiscal year ending April 30, 1956.

TOTAL BUDGET EXPENDITURES BY YEARS

	Electric	Water	Total	Cumulation
1949	$ 189,000	$ 3,500	$ 192,500	$
1950	1,995,000	400,000	2,395,000	2,587,500
1951	752,000	365,500	1,117,500	3,705,000
1952	405,000	90,000	495,000	4,200,000
1953	380,000	80,000	460,000	4,660,000
1954	743,000	75,000	818,000	5,478,000
1955	325,000	75,000	400,000	5,878,000
1956	247,000	74,000	321,000	6,199,000

We desire to emphasize that estimates for both the water and electric utilities are based on present-day costs; that any budget prepared for a long-range program should be re-examined annually and adjusted to the needs of the system as they develop and change. Beyond 1952 the budget presented herewith should be used at this time only in a general way as a guide to fiscal policy.

Conclusions and recommendations for the Water Works and the Electric Utility are stated in somewhat greater detail at the end of Sections II and III.

The report comprises three parts, as follows:

Section I — Population and population trends as affecting future use of water and electricity.

Section II — Water Works—Description of present system and program of recommended improvements.

Section III — Electric Utility System — Description of existing facilities and program of recommended improvements.

Very truly yours,
FORD, BACON & DAVIS, INC.

SECTION II — WATER WORKS

Conclusions

As a result of their investigations and studies of the Water Works system, the Engineers have reached the following principal conclusions:

(1) The population of Monroe is approximately 40,000 and may be expected to increase to 55,000 by 1960.

(2) The average water consumption is now 6.0 m. g. d., and if the steps recommended in this report to eliminate waste are carried out, it will reach perhaps 7.5 m. g. d. by 1960. Peak daily demands in the summer months will be 40 to 50 percent higher.

(3) The present Bayou DeSiard water supply system and filtration plant has a capacity of approximately 7.0 m. g. d. which is insufficient for peak summer demands.

(4) The distribution system has not been extended and reinforced sufficiently in past years to meet adequately the growing demands, and as a result, water service and fire protection is deficient in many areas.

(5) The existing total storage capacity of 2.0 m. g. d. for filtered water is insufficient.

(6) The quality of water from the Bayou DeSiard is satistactory after filtration except for some difficulty from the corrosion of hot water tanks which probably can be alleviated by proper chemical control.

(7) Nearly one-half of the water delivered by the filter plant is unaccounted for and unpaid for. A substantial part of this goes to the power plant, but much of the unaccounted for water is attributed to unmetered services and the failure of many meters to register properly.

(8) Deferred maintenance of the filter plant and the distribution system has been accumulating for years and extensive work is now needed to restore them to proper operating condition.

(9) The present water rates are too low to provide sufficient income to operate and maintain properly the water works system.

(10) The capacity of the water supply system for Monroe can be increased readily to 9 or 10 m. g. d. by cleaning the 20-inch raw water main from Bayou DeSiard and by enlarging the filter plant.

(11) Increases in water supply capacity above 9 or 10 m. g. d. can be obtained by one of the following: (a) constructing a new raw water line from the Bayou, (b) developing a whole new ground water supply from wells about five or six miles west of Monroe, (c) drilling supplementary wells near the filtration plant, or (d) using water from the Selman Field wells, after providing filtration facilities.

(12) Test drilling and water analyses would be required to determine the feasibility of a new ground water developments from the west and the project would cost in the order of $800,000 in any event. If such a supply replaced the present system and the water could be used without filtration, there would be a substantial saving in operating costs. If the well water requires filtration the project is not attractive.

(13) All of the several possible projects, except the development of a new unfiltrated ground water supply from the west, would include immediate enlargement of the present works and renovation of the filter plant.

Recommendations

The Engineers recommend that:

(1) Arrangements be made for the immediate cleaning of the 20-inch raw water main from the Bayou to the filter plant and installation of suitable water level indicating equipment for the elevated tank so that the water plant operation can regulate the pumping to keep the tank more nearly full. The estimated cost if $3,500.

(2) The filtration plant be renovated and enlarged by 50 per cent including the installation of new chemical and chlorine feed equipment and a new river pumping station to serve the water and power plants be constructed as soon as financing can be arranged and the plans prepared. The estimated cost is $233,600.

(3) The distribution system be reinforced by laying new mains and installing a one million gallon tank and booster pumping station at the south end of the City as shown on Exh. W-9. The work that should be done immediately will cost approximately $532,000, the balance of the work, including a new high lift pump, estimated to cost $394,000 can be carried out gradually over the succeeding five years.

(4) The allocation out of earnings for distribution system maintenance be increased by at least $20,000 per year to carry out the deferred maintenance, to provide minor distribution system extensions not shown on the system map and to provide accurate maps and records of water main, valves, hydrants and services.

(5) The water rates be substantially increased to provide the revenue needed for the proper operation and maintenance of interest, amortization and depreciation charges.

(6) All water services, including those to the power plant and other public buildings, be metered.

(7) "Free water" be eliminated entirely except perhaps to some public agencies, and that these users be held accountable for the quantities of water consumed.

(8) A survey of consumers' meters be made to determine their operating condition and accuracy and that such repairs as are indicated be made to the many meters that record "no flow."

(9) The distribution system be investigated for possible leaks.

(10) The laboratory at the water plant be adequately equipped, that routine control tests be made regularly and properly recorded, and that a detailed laboratory study be made of the corrosive tendencies of the water and possible cures.

(11) The decision as to which of several methods for increasing the water supply capacity beyond 9 or 10 m. g. d. to be adopted should be postponed until the water is needed, but that meanwhile the City of Monroe encourage and support the compilation of additional ground water data in the area by the Louisiana and federal geological surveys.

SECTION III — ELECTRIC UTILITY

Conclusions

(1) The generating station is loaded to capacity with no reserve for emergencies or for future growth of load.

(2) The distribution system is overloaded, resulting in low voltage in some areas and rather frequent interruptions to service. Correction of poor service conditions is proceeding, but the work has been hampered by inadequate funds and slow deliveries of equipment. Many departments of the City having little or no revenue of their own, "live" off the receipts of the electric utility. The electric utility is therefore forced to compete with all other city departments for funds which it itself has earned, to provide required line extensions, new meters, new services, new transformers and substations, all of which have been necessary for load growth occasioned by addition of many new residential and commercial customers. In so competing for necessary funds it has fared badly in the past, with only the barest minimum of funds being allotted to it, resulting in lines and substations constructed only to meet minimum immediate requirements, with frequent makeshifts and constant moving of equipment to meet even small increases in load.

(3) Street lighting generally is inadequate because of too small lamps and improper location. It is wasteful of electric energy because of lack of control devices, resulting in 24-hour burning of about 2,700 lights.

(4) Line headquarters at the City Hall are inadequate and unsatisfactory. Inadequate storage facilities cause deterioration and waste of materials.

(5) Electric rates yield a reasonable revenue, but the rate structure is over-simplified and lacks proper administrative regulations to insure billing to all customers on an equitable basis.

(6) Annual reports do not segregate essential data to give the Commission and the public a clear picture of the investment and yearly operating results; the annual allowance for depreciation is entirely at variance with needs of the system; annual revenues as reported include substantial "Sales" to other departments of the city ($89,600 in 1948 fiscal year) which "Sales" are not reimbursed to the electric utility, hence revenues are over-stated; electric current for operating generating station auxiliary motors is charged against operating costs and credited to revenues, thus inflating both accounts.

(7) A large investment in electric utility plant will be necessary to make up accrued deficiencies and provide for growth of load with a safe margin for emergencies. The sum of $3,400,000 will be needed in the next few years.

Recommendations

(1) Generating capacity should be increased at the earliest possible date. Either steam-electric or Diesel-electric units can be installed, but it appears that cost will be less and delivery better for Diesel than for steam units, while overall efficiency is about the same for both. Estimated cost $1,733,000.

(2) Additional lines, substations and regulators should be installed as rapidly as possible, coupled with some rearrangement of existing facilities to render better service. An underground system should be started in the downtown district which will eventually replace overhead lines and transformers.

(3) Street lighting should be improved by installing larger lamps in suitable fixtures and scientifically located to give more adequate and uniform lighting. Street lights should be centrally controlled to avoid waste now caused by all-day burning.

(4) A new line headquarters, warehouse and garage should be constructed on City-owned land so that present inadequate quarters at the City Hall can be vacated.

(5) Rate schedules should be studied and probably changed to avoid inequalities in billing. Rules should be established which will definite the various classes of customers and determine the rate to be charged each class. Regulations governing installation of meters and services should be drawn up so electrical contractors will follow uniform practices when wiring residences and commerical buildings, so that the City's service and meter costs will be minimized.

(6) Annual reports should be so compiled that balance sheet and operating statements will clearly set forth the overall results secured from operations. Significant basic statistics should be published in the reports, such as output, number of customers, etc.

(7) Allowance for depreciation should be increased and renamed "Allowance for Retirements and Replacements" or similar. Such action may assist in securing favorable terms when new financing is considered.

(8) Value of electric energy used in the operation of the electric utility should not be taken into "Revenue" nor entered in "Operating Expenses." Electric energy delivered to other City departments for which no money is received, should be separated from cash revenues and listed as "Value of Electric Energy delivered to Other City Departments".

(9) The electric utility should be set up as a separate operating entity. It should be treated as a business enterprise and it should be recognized that a business enterprise such as this requires allowances for replacements and for new capital additions, and to deny these allowances merely brings on recurring emergencies.

Sheriff Long early Saturday, but the West Carroll sheriff refused to reveal the contents. Milstead made no statement at the inquest.

The bullets were allegedly fired from a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson pistol, the sheriff said.

Milstead is owner and operator of the Milstead Auto Repair Shop here.

Milstead's wife is employed as a clerk in McKoin's grocery store.

An affidavit charging Milstead with manslaughter was filed by the sheriff's department and the case will go before the grand jury on April 4.

The garage operator is the father of two daughters, 17 and 21 years old.

McKoin was a native of Forest and his wife, Mrs. Florence McKoin, was made assistant superintendent of the Louisiana training school for girls near Alexandria last week.

Mr. McKoin is survived by his wife, one son, John Robert, of Borger, Tex., two daughters, Mrs. Mary Ida Rinehart, of Ruston, Mrs. Billy Mills, of Bonita, three sisters, Mrs. Bertha Crutcher, of Gurdeon, Ark., Mrs. J. Services for Mr. McKoin were scheduled for 2 p. m. Sunday in the Catron-Gay funeral chapel with the Rev. Jack Midyett, pastor of the Bastrop Methodist Church officiating.

Interment will follow in the Bastrop Cemetery under the direction of Catron-Gay Funeral Home.

ACCIDENTS FATAL TO FIVE LONDONERS

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—At least five Londoners died today in accidents blamed on a weird, patchy fog which hung over much of the city.

Two men walked into ponds and drowned, two others perished in traffic accidents and a woman who was unable to find her way out of a railway station walked on a track and was killed.

Traffic on the Thames was halted after three ships ran aground. Buses and trains were running up to an hour and a half behind schedule. Air traffic was disrupted. Firemen ran ahead of their fire engines to show drivers the way to fires. Police stations threw open empty cells to bed down hundreds of suburbanites stranded in town.

NEW BOOKS ARE AVAILABLE AT OUACHITA LIBRARY NOW

Not in a long time has a book as different, but still as interesting as "Elephant and Castle" by R. C. Hutchinson appeared. Mr. Hutchinson is considered one of the major living English novelists and any one who reads this book will immediately compare him with Dickens, according to Miss Frances Flanders, Ouachita Parish librarian.

He has the same love for London streets, the same understanding of character and the same ability to use detail. This is a book which takes careful reading to avoid losing some of the flavor of the story. The plot is unusual. It is concerned with a girl from a wealthy family, who married a boy from the worst slums of Lambeth to reform him, but only succeeded in ruining his life. The author paints a picture by inference, rather than by telling us directly what happened. There are many sordid scenes in this book and many scenes of great beauty. Mr. Hutchinson is a great believer in the power of love. This book will be released soon and it is well worth reading.

Everyone enjoys reading a book of a humorous nature. "Cheaper by the Dozen" by Frank B. Gilbreth, Jr. and Ernestine Gilbreth Carey is delightful reading. This is the story of Frank and Lillian Gilbreth who raised a family of 12 children. Father was a motion study expert and he tried out all of his new theories on his family. This book makes you laugh one minute and cry the next. We venture to predict that it will be as popular as "The Egg and I" of a few seasons back.

Herbert Ernest Bates is the author of a new novel called "The Jacaranda Tree." This is the story of the flight of the English colony from a small town in Rangoon ahead of the Japanese invaders. Mr. Bates shows us very clearly how the misfortunes of each person were brought about by weaknesses in his own character. There are passages of exceptional beauty in this book and there is no doubt that Mr. Bates understands his people.

John Dos Passos has a following who will want to read his latest title "The Grand Design." Other new novels are "Eve and Christopher" by Elizabeth Corbett." "High Holiday" by Kathleen Norris. "Evergreen" by Edward Holstius and 'The Three Fears", a new mystery by Jonathan Stagge.

People interested in interior decoration will want to see Ruth Webb Lee's new book "Fashions in Furnishings." Ruth Webb Lee is nationally known as an expert on old glass. This is her first book in the field of decoration and is one that should be widely used. Another book of non-fiction, which has been eagerly awaited is Robert Sherwood's "Roosevelt and Hopkins". This book gives a very clear picture of the Roosevelt period.

All of these books are available from the Library in Monroe, West Monroe or the bookmobile. Ask for the ones you want.

Doris Lee Weds Woodrow Cain In Bastrop Ceremony

Miss Doris Lee, daughter of Porter S. Lee and the late Mrs. Lee of Sondheimer, became the bride of Woodrow Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Cain of Bastrop, in a double-ring ceremony performed at the Sondheimer Baptist Church January 9 at 9 a. m. Officiating minister was Rev. Edgar Bryant.

Artistic arrangements of camellias decorated the church for the wedding. Approximately 20 guests were present.

A musical program was presented prior to the ceremony by Mrs. James Ferrell of Lake Providence. Songs rendered were "Wonderful One" and "Because." Following the traditional wedding march by Lohengrin, she played "Always" and "I Love You Truly" softly in the background during the ceremony.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Corbitt Murray, bridesmaid, and Linda Lee Murray and Lana Joyce Murray, flower girls. Mrs. Murray wore a smart black-check suit with harmonizing black accessories and corsage of camellias. The flower girls were dressed in dainty blue velveteen dresses designed with white collars. Miniature camellias in their hair completed the costumes.

Buford Lee of Sondheimer, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attractive in a modish suit of gray wool with navy accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the couple left on a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark. They are now making their home at 201 Anthony street in Bastrop.

The bride, a graduate of S. L. I. at Lafayette, came to Bastrop in 1946 as home management supervisor for the Farmer's Home administration. Prior to her marriage she was employed as home economist by the Ark.-La., Tex. Wholesale Co., Philco distributors of Shreveport.

The groom, a graduate of Bastrop High School has been employed by the post office department since 1938. During that time he spent four and one-half years in military service.

Mrs. Woodrow Cain is the former Miss Doris Lee of Bastrop.

NEW BOOKS ARE AVAILABLE AT OUACHITA LIBRARY NOW

Not in a long time has a book as different, but still as interesting as "Elephant and Castle" by R. C. Hutchinson appeared. Mr. Hutchinson is considered one of the major living English novelists and any one who reads this book will immediately compare him with Dickens, according to Miss Frances Flanders, Ouachita Parish librarian.

He has the same love for London streets, the same understanding of character and the same ability to use detail. This is a book which takes careful reading to avoid losing some of the flavor of the story. The plot is unusual. It is concerned with a girl from a wealthy family, who married a boy from the worst slums of Lambeth to reform him, but only succeeded in ruining his life. The author paints a picture by inference, rather than by telling us directly what happened. There are many sordid scenes in this book and many scenes of great beauty. Mr. Hutchinson is a great believer in the power of love. This book will be released soon and it is well worth reading.

Everyone enjoys reading a book of a humorous nature. "Cheaper by the Doxen" by Frank B. Gilbreth, Jr. and Ernestine Gilbreth Carey is delightful reading. This is the story of Frank and Lillian Gilbreth who raised a family of 12 children. Father was a motion study expert and he tried out all of his new theories on his family. This book makes you laugh one minute and cry the next. We venture to predict that it will be as popular as "The Egg and I" of a few seasons back.

Herbert Ernest Bates is the author of a new novel called "The Jacaranda Tree." This is the story of the flight of the English colony from a small town in Rangoon ahead of the Japanese invaders. Mr. Bates shows us very clearly how the misfortunes of each person were brought about by weaknesses in his own character. There are passages of exceptional beauty in this book and there is no doubt that Mr. Bates understands his people.

John Dos Passos has a following who will want to read his latest title "The Grand Design." Other new novels are "Eve and Christopher" by Elizabeth Corbett." "High Holiday" by Kathleen Norris. "Evergreen" by Edward Holstius and 'The Three Fears", a new mystery by Jonathan Stagge.

People interested in interior decoration will want to see Ruth Webb Lee's new book "Fashions in Furnishings." Ruth Webb Lee is nationally known as an expert on old glass. This is her first book in the field of decoration and is one that should be widely used. Another book of non-fiction, which has been eagerly awaited is Robert Sherwood's "Roosevelt and Hopkins". This book gives a very clear picture of the Roosevelt period.

All of these books are available from the Library in Monroe, West Monroe or the bookmobile. Ask for the ones you want.

Doris Lee Weds Woodrow Cain In Bastrop Ceremony

Miss Doris Lee, daughter of Porter S. Lee and the late Mrs. Lee of Sondheimer, became the bride of Woodrow Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Cain of Bastrop, in a double-ring ceremony performed at the Sondheimer Baptist Church January 9 at 9 a. m. Officiating minister was Rev. Edgar Bryant.

Artistic arrangements of camellias decorated the church for the wedding. Approximately 20 guests were present.

A musical program was presented prior to the ceremony by Mrs. James Ferrell of Lake Providence. Songs rendered were "Wonderful One" and "Because." Following the traditional wedding march by Lohengrin, she played "Always" and "I Love You Truly" softly in the background during the ceremony.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Corbitt Murray, bridesmaid, and Linda Lee Murray and Lana Joyce Murray, flower girls. Mrs. Murray wore a smart black-check suit with harmonizing black accessories and corsage of camellias. The flower girls were dressed in dainty blue velveteen dresses designed with white collars. Miniature camellias in their hair completed the costumes.

Buford Lee of Sondheimer, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attractive in a modish suit of gray wool with navy accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the couple left on a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark. They are now making their home at 201 Anthony street in Bastrop.

The bride, a graduate of S. L. I. at Lafayette, came to Bastrop in 1946 as home management supervisor for the Farmer's Home administration. Prior to her marriage she was employed as home economist by the Ark.-La., Tex. Wholesale Co., Philco distributors of Shreveport.

The groom, a graduate of Bastrop High School has been employed by the post office department since 1938. During that time he spent four and one-half years in military service.

Life Begins At Five For Junior

By David Taylor Marke
(Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer)

As children make the transition from infancy to childhood, says Louise Hornbrook, helping teacher in a Kansas City, Mo., kindergarten, their most difficult learnings are those involved in finding out their relations to others, and in coming to terms with themselves. Writing in the Missouri Parent-Teacher, she says:

"In infancy the world revolves around junior and his wants, but as he grows older he is faced with problems in human relationships which frequently are in conflict with his own desires. This is especially true when a child becomes five."

It is then, Miss Hornbrook says, that junior enters kindergarten and, for the first time perhaps, comes face to face with large groups of children of his own age who are total strangers to him; an adult whom he probably has never seen before in his life; a room that is very different from any that he has been in before. Only through experience and guidance by someone who knows how to help children make friends will he learn the techniques which will become more or less his pattern of social behavior.

This important age of five is a key year in his development. It is the time in his career when he will benefit greatly from wise guidance and trained leadership and a life full of first-hand experiences. What really is needed at this time is more space in which to work and play, more materials with which to work, longer building time for blocks, more advanced rhythms and songs, plenty of time in which to paint, work with clay, wood, and other materials.

It is a year, she says, when curiosity should be encouraged; horizons broadened, not restricted to the printed page; independence and initiative guided and cultivated; creative ability fostered and developed.

"The painted picture the child brings to you may not look like 'beans on a mountain' or a 'man out walking' or a 'girl picking flowers' but that is what it is to the child who has created it and, therefore, it is accepted and praised for its beautiful colors and the story it tells," she says.

Dad's part of the family, too!

IF seeing is believing, then the photographer must necessarily surmise that families consist only of mothers and children.

Mothers know the importance of fine photography and teach the children of their knowledge. But, it is only through a bit of polite eavesdropping that we learn about Dad... through a wish wistfully expressed that he, too, would have a picture made.

And it has come to us that when the years have passed and memories grown dim, the family album of photographs will be strangely amiss without pictures of Dad... for when it's time for family memories, Dad's part of the family, too!

Life Begins At Five For Junior

By David Taylor Marke

(Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer)

As children make the transition from infancy to childhood, says Louise Hornbrook, helping teacher in a Kansas City, Mo., kindergarten, their most difficult learnings are those involved in finding out their relations to others, and in coming to terms with themselves. Writing in the Missouri Parent-Teacher, she says:

"In infancy the world revolves around junior and his wants, but as he grows older he is faced with problems in human relationships which frequently are in conflict with his own desires. This is especially true when a child becomes five."

It is then, Miss Hornbrook says, that junior enters kindergarten and, for the first time perhaps, comes face to face with large groups of children of his own age who are total strangers to him; an adult whom he probably has never seen before in his life; a room that is very different from any that he has been in before. Only through experience and guidance by someone who knows how to help children make friends will he learn the techniques which will become more or less his pattern of social behavior.

This important age of five is a key year in his development. It is the time in his career when he will benefit greatly from wise guidance and trained leadership and a life full of first-hand experiences. What really is needed at this time is more space in which to work and play, more materials with which to work, longer building time for blocks, more advanced rhythms and songs, plenty of time in which to paint, work with clay, wood, and other materials.

It is a year, she says, when curiosity should be encouraged; horizons broadened, not restricted to the printed page; independence and initiative guided and cultivated; creative ability fostered and developed.

"The painted picture the child brings to you may not look like 'beans on a mountain' or a 'man out walking' or a 'girl picking flowers' but that is what it is to the child who has created it and, therefore, it is accepted and praised for its beautiful colors and the story it tells," she says.

Dad's part of the family, too!

IF seeing is believing, then the photographer must necessarily surmise that families consist only of mothers and children.

Mothers know the importance of fine photography and teach the children of their knowledge. But, it is only through a bit of polite eavesdropping that we learn about Dad... through a wish wistfully expressed that he, too, would have a picture made.

And it has come to us that when the years have passed and memories grown dim, the family album of photographs will be strangely amiss without pictures of Dad... for when it's time for family memories, Dad's part of the family, too!

Don't Be A Drip, Get A Washer

By Cynthia Lowry
(Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer)

There are more perils to country living than you dream of. We have a hazard called authors of humorous books, to wit:

It had been raining hard for three days. We had finished sweeping up the fallen plaster and were consulting on the water in the cellar. A neighbor dropped in, a neighbor named H. Allen Smith. Mr. Smith had just written a book, dealing with the joys of country-living, called "Larks in the Popcorn." He is, of course, an authority.

As is the country habit, Mr. Smith was invited to diagnose the water in the cellar. He descended, looked around and pointed sternly to a pile of magazines in a corner.

"Condensation," said Mr. Smith, and returned upstairs.

He lit a cigarette and explained:

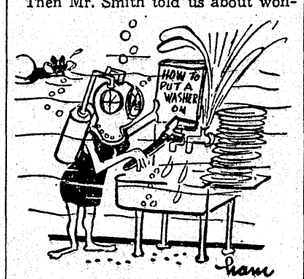
'You people collect back numbers of the Reader's Digest," he said.

"No," we said, "we were just saving them for the next Boy Scout Paper Collection Day."

"No matter." Mr. Smith continued inexorably, "Reader's Digests contain more condensations than anything except Omnibook. There's been a phenomenon or something in your cellar which has resulted in all the condensations in the magazines running out all over your floor."

Mr. Smith said he didn't have that trouble because he didn't store magazines in his cellar, and besides he lived at the top of a hill and HIS problem was keeping rainwater from washing all his ground away.

Then Mr. Smith told us about wonderful things he'd found in a little hardware store that keeps faucets from dripping—not the store, the things.



They are little round things called washers, and they come in a box and you can put them in yourself," he said.

We said no, we hadn't heard about washers yet, but we were a little worried about a thing called a septic tank. Mr. Smith looked crestfallen.

"It is perfectly obvious to me," he said, "that you haven't read 'Larks in the Popcorn' (Double-day) very carefully. Are you feeding your tank bacteria yeast?"

We said no, just old coffee grounds, used dishwater and such.

"You have undernourished bacteria," he said. "When your bacteria are victims of malnutrition, all kinds of things happen. I feed mine yeast regularly, and there's a neighbor of mine who supplements that with vitamin pills."

We asked Mr. Smith if he was going to have a garden this year.

"Cucumbers," he said. "Cucumbers. I can grow them better than anyone else. Just throw a few seeds into the ground and you have to treat them like wild honeysuckle, they grow so."

But Mr. Smith will not let anyone else in the neigborhood grow cucumbers. If he did, there wouldn't be any place he can give his surplus to.

"My whole cellar," he added, "is full of bread - and - butter pickles. Made them myself. I really have a cucumber-thumb."

Finally, Mr. Smith left, forgetting his coup of "First Aid to the Ailing House." Then we went back to mopping up the cellar. But first we made a note to buy yeast and washers. It's great to live in the country and have humorous authors for neighbors.

But Mr. Smith will not let anyone else in the neigborhood grow cucumbers. If he did, there wouldn't be any place he can give his surplus to.

"My whole cellar," he added, "is full of bread - and - butter pickles. Made them myself. I really have a cucumber-thumb."

Finally, Mr. Smith left, forgetting his coup of "First Aid to the Ailing House." Then we went back to mopping up the cellar. But first we made a note to buy yeast and washers. It's great to live in the country and have humorous authors for neighbors.

A HOT SCREEN THAT GIVES OFF HEAT

By Edward S. Kitch
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

CHICAGO—A new product of science—electric radiant heat—now is available to the consumer.

Its development may be an indication of things to come in low-cost radiant heating for the home. Carl F. Boester, a heating and electrical engineer, of LaFayette, Indiana, devised an electrically heated shield. He said his product of the laboratory utilizes for the first time a flat foil heating element.

Boester fitted his two story home with ceiling panels on which the foil heating element was placed. The elements were connected to a 115 volt A. C. circuit. After two years of successful tests, he decided his experiment was practical.

Forming a business partnership with Oliver F. Johnson, of Chicago, Boester set up manufacturing facilities in this industrial center. His product was introduced this month to homefurnishings buyers.

It is a four-paneled hinged screen. The decorative shield contains foil heating elements. It is designed for home, hospital and industrial use. A person can be protected from cold surfaces by placing the electric heat shield near him.

Metallurgical qualities of the foil—special alloy aluminum—enable safe operation, Boester said. Temperatures rise no higher than 104 degrees F. No thermostat or moving parts are necessary to control steady temperature. Using about one-half Kilowatt an hour, or about half as much as a hand iron, the heat screen discharges heat waves similar to those radiating from the sun.

The heat shield can be set near the infant's crib or behind the chair of a person whose body does not generate enough warmth for his needs.

Radiant heat shields have been used in factories. Tests were made in buildings with low temperatures where workers were forced to wear heavy clothing. The operators enjoyed shirtsleeve freedom after the heat shields were set up near their machines.

Art schools have found the electric heat screen useful. The unclothed artist's model basks in sun-warm temperatures while the artist in smock and beret works in a cooler climate.

Almighty God

FATHER OF ALL MEN

to Thee we raise thankful hearts for deliverance from forces of evil and we pray for peace for all time. Deliver us also, we beseech Thee, from the greater danger of ourselves. Have mercy upon us and forgive us for our part in the present desolation of the world. Awaken us each one to a sense of our responsibility in saving the world from ruin. Open our eyes and minds and hearts to the desperate plight of millions. Arouse us from indifference Into action. Let none of us fail to give his utmost in sympathy, understanding, thought and effort that our children unto all generations may live in a world free from jealousy, selfishness and fear. Fulfill in us and through us Thy glorious intention that Thy peace, Thy love and Thy justice may enter into the regeneration of the world.

Almighty God

FATHER OF ALL MEN

to Thee we raise thankful hearts for deliverance from forces of evil and we pray for peace for all time. Deliver us also, we beseech Thee, from the greater danger of ourselves. Have mercy upon us and forgive us for our part in the present desolation of the world. Awaken us each one to a sense of our responsibility in saving the world from ruin. Open our eyes and minds and hearts to the desperate plight of millions. Arouse us from indifference Into action. Let none of us fail to give his utmost in sympathy, understanding, thought and effort that our children unto all generations may live in a world free from jealousy, selfishness and fear. Fulfill in us and through us Thy glorious intention that Thy peace, Thy love and Thy justice may enter into the regeneration of the world.

CHILD PROBLEMS BEING STUDIED

P.-T. A. Group At Sherrouse School Pays Attention To Special Needs

As the National Congress of Parents and Teachers recognizes the tremendous influence exerted by the home on the growing personality of the child, a group of articles has been prepared, each written by an authority in his own field to aid parents and teachers in an intelligent study and discussion of the problems of children of pre-school age, elementary age and adolescent ages.

The study group of the Sherrouse P.-T. A. is conducting a series of discussions concerning the pre-school child. This group is composed of mothers of kindergarten and primary grade children and is directed by Mrs. J. D. Kelly.

Two articles discussed are: "Brothers and Sisters," by Dr. G. McHugh, and "Playtime Is Growing Time," by Dr. H. C. Dawe. The next discussion will be conducted by Mrs. Raymond John at her home, 407 College avenue, February 2 at 9:30 a. m. The subject will be "Freedom From Fear," by Dr. Helen Ross of Chicago University.

Some of the objectives of this group are to improve parental methods of dealing with children through an increased knowledge and understanding so that they may encourage desirable behavior and modify undesirable behavior.

DeWitt Mackenzie:

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Secretary of the Army Royall has told the armed services committee of the U. S. house of representatives "here appears little likelihood that for a number of years to come we will be free of an international situation fraught with danger and subject to marked fluctuations."

We are entitled, I take it, to assume that the secretary was talking about the "cold war" which Bolshevist Russia is waging against the democracies. He cautioned that while war (not war) isn't imminent, it is "at least a possibility." Therefore America must maintain adequate defenses.

The question immediately arises as to how long the world is going to be tortured by this Red agression. The answer naturally must be speculative, but there are certain things which are clear enough.

One of the absolute certainties is that Russia won't abandon her world revolution for the spread of communism so long as she can move a muscle. That means she will keep it up until some as yet unforeseen element stops her in her tracks.

Should some unexpected contingency produce a hot war, that would provide the element which would stop the Bolshevists in their tracks. Russia couldn't win a war against the western powers.

However, Moscow is far too smart to start a hot war deliberately. She may be expected to stick in the main to her present tactics. This means continuance of espionae and fifth column tactics in all non-Communist countries, and the breeding of revolutions or the encouragement of upheavals already started.

Thus, barring an accident, what we are up against is a cold war of attrition. As things now stand that won't be difficult to keep going.

We have a clear cut illustration of possibilities in the present two-front warfare involving Europe and Asia. Having absorbed as much of Europe as she could by taking advantage of her position as a major "ally" in the world war, Russia now is holding along the European front while intensifying her drive in Asiatic countries like China and Burma.

That's the Bolshevist strategy—to keep everlastingly boring and to take advantage of the course of least resistance. Barring an accident this sort of thing might continue indefinitely without producing a hot war. But of course, as Secretary Royall points out, we must keep prepared because war is "at least a possibility."

So there is no doubt that this conflict of the isms may continue for a great many years. The only thing which can alter this is some upheaval which will cripple the striking power of the Moscow directed Bolshevist machine.

We know—as this column has been pointing out—that there is revolt in the hearts of many of the Russian slave states of eastern Europe. There is much evidence that some, if not all, of the satellites would rise up against their oppressors if they could.

Some day the revolt will come. Of that I am convinced. But when? There can be no estimate of that now. We've just got to keep on sawing wood, and maybe some of us old timers never will see the end of the cold war.

The only sure thing is that the length of our sentence is shortened by every blow struck at bolshevism.

PYTHIAN OFFICERS TO BE INSTALLED

A joint installation of incoming officers for 1949 of Monroe Temple No. 1, Pythian Sisters and Friendship Temple No. 3, Pythian Sisters, will be held in Castle hall, 127 1/2 St. John street, Monday at 7:30 p. m.

All Pythian groups in Monroe and the public are extended cordial invitation to attend. Montez Baur, past chief of Monroe Temple No. 1, will be the installing officer and a good program is arranged. Refreshments will be served.

MITCHELL P.-T. A. STUDIES BOOK

'Psychology Of Elementary Child' Basis Of Meeting On Thursday

The W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A. study group met in the home of Mrs. E. H. Scott, Thursday, January 27. This meeting was the second in a series on "The Psychology of the Elementary School Child." The course of study was entitled "Lesson Trouble," by Wilda Rosebrook, which was brought before the group in a capable manner by Mrs. J. T. Alsbrooks. Mrs. Alsbrooks brought out the following points from Miss Rosebrook's article:

"Lesson trouble may appear in varied and devious forms. Children are prone to make various excuses for not getting homework—so usual are these situations that many parents, teachers and children have come to accept them as a normal part of the business of being educated.

"What we call lesson trouble is a symptom that the child's needs are not being met. The school staff should take the lead in educating the whole community to the idea that homework is not a cure for lesson trouble, and that lesson trouble is a warning that something is wrong. Are there any physical defect about the child? Is the child happy at home? At school?

"The most important basis is this fourfold truth: The growing child wants to feel (1) that he belongs to a family in which he is an essential member, (2) that he is achieving something worth while, (3) that he is loved and valued as a person, (4) that he is making steady progress from dependence toward independence.

"Parents should attempt to embody the required homework in the whole scheme of family routine. The plan for doing homework should provide a maximum of independent study and a minimum of assistance and supervision from the rest of the family.

"The school staff should also be encouraged to look upon lesson trouble as a symptom indicating that perhaps something is not meshing in the school program.

"Lesson trouble will be with us for a long time, but as parents and teachers learn more and more about child growth and about how to apply this knowledge in meeting children's daily needs, the trouble will become less common and less severe."

After the discussion period, the hostess, Mrs. E. H. Scott, served delicious refreshments to the following W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A. members: Mrs. T. Gallien, Mrs. J. T. Alsbrooks, Mrs. Fred Stone, Mrs. L. E. Hampton, Mrs. Dale Cobb, Mrs. W. W. Brewer, Mrs. Walter Dean, Jr., and Mrs. Jim Steele, Jr.

In reading, the eye sweeps across a line of type in a series of jumps, focusing on the type at successive points.

BASTROP CLEANING PLANT IS DAMAGED

BASTROP, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—An East Cypress street cleaning plant was practically demolished by a fire of an undetermined origin which broke out in the northwest corner of the building shortly before 10 a. m. today, according to Fire Chief Walter Mayne.

Fire Chief Mayne said firemen and volunteer fire fighters battled the blaze for more than an hour before it was brought under control.

W. C. Hornsby, owner of Hornsby Cleaners, which was severely damaged by the fire carried insurance on the plant, authorities said.

All equipment in the plant was ruined with the exception of two pressers which were slightly damaged, the fire chief said.

The cleaning plant was located at 115 East Cypress street in a frame building which was converted into a cleaning plant more than a year ago.

Neville, long time city school superintendent; to Sherrouse boys and girls who are now in high schools, colleges or universities, perhaps in business life; and last but not least, to those men and women who gave either their lives or their strength and energy to preserve freedom in the world through World War II. CHILD PROBLEMS BEING STUDIED

P.-T. A. Group At Sherrouse School Pays Attention To Special Needs

As the National Congress of Parents and Teachers recognizes the tremendous influence exerted by the home on the growing personality of the child, a group of articles has been prepared, each written by an authority in his own field to aid parents and teachers in an intelligent study and discussion of the problems of children of pre-school age, elementary age and adolescent ages.

The study group of the Sherrouse P.-T. A. is conducting a series of discussions concerning the pre-school child. This group is composed of mothers of kindergarten and primary grade children and is directed by Mrs. J. D. Kelly.

Two articles discussed are: "Brothers and Sisters," by Dr. G. McHugh, and "Playtime Is Growing Time," by Dr. H. C. Dawe. The next discussion will be conducted by Mrs. Raymond John at her home, 407 College avenue, February 2 at 9:30 a. m. The subject will be "Freedom From Fear," by Dr. Helen Ross of Chicago University.

Some of the objectives of this group are to improve parental methods of dealing with children through an increased knowledge and understanding so that they may encourage desirable behavior and modify undesirable behavior.

DeWitt Mackenzie:

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Secretary of the Army Royall has told the armed services committee of the U. S. house of representatives "here appears little likelihood that for a number of years to come we will be free of an international situation fraught with danger and subject to marked fluctuations."

We are entitled, I take it, to assume that the secretary was talking about the "cold war" which Bolshevist Russia is waging against the democracies. He cautioned that while war (not war) isn't imminent, it is "at least a possibility." Therefore America must maintain adequate defenses.

The question immediately arises as to how long the world is going to be tortured by this Red agression. The answer naturally must be speculative, but there are certain things which are clear enough.

One of the absolute certainties is that Russia won't abandon her world revolution for the spread of communism so long as she can move a muscle. That means she will keep it up until some as yet unforeseen element stops her in her tracks.

Should some unexpected contingency produce a hot war, that would provide the element which would stop the Bolshevists in their tracks. Russia couldn't win a war against the western powers.

However, Moscow is far too smart to start a hot war deliberately. She may be expected to stick in the main to her present tactics. This means continuance of espionae and fifth column tactics in all non-Communist countries, and the breeding of revolutions or the encouragement of upheavals already started.

Thus, barring an accident, what we are up against is a cold war of attrition. As things now stand that won't be difficult to keep going.

We have a clear cut illustration of possibilities in the present two-front warfare involving Europe and Asia. Having absorbed as much of Europe as she could by taking advantage of her position as a major "ally" in the world war, Russia now is holding along the European front while intensifying her drive in Asiatic countries like China and Burma.

That's the Bolshevist strategy—to keep everlastingly boring and to take advantage of the course of least resistance. Barring an accident this sort of thing might continue indefinitely without producing a hot war. But of course, as Secretary Royall points out, we must keep prepared because war is "at least a possibility."

So there is no doubt that this conflict of the isms may continue for a great many years. The only thing which can alter this is some upheaval which will cripple the striking power of the Moscow directed Bolshevist machine.

We know—as this column has been pointing out—that there is revolt in the hearts of many of the Russian slave states of eastern Europe. There is much evidence that some, if not all, of the satellites would rise up against their oppressors if they could.

Some day the revolt will come. Of that I am convinced. But when? There can be no estimate of that now. We've just got to keep on sawing wood, and maybe some of us old timers never will see the end of the cold war.

The only sure thing is that the length of our sentence is shortened by every blow struck at bolshevism.

MITCHELL P.-T. A. STUDIES BOOK

'Psychology Of Elementary Child' Basis Of Meeting On Thursday

The W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A. study group met in the home of Mrs. E. H. Scott, Thursday, January 27. This meeting was the second in a series on "The Psychology of the Elementary School Child." The course of study was entitled "Lesson Trouble," by Wilda Rosebrook, which was brought before the group in a capable manner by Mrs. J. T. Alsbrooks. Mrs. Alsbrooks brought out the following points from Miss Rosebrook's article:

"Lesson trouble may appear in varied and devious forms. Children are prone to make various excuses for not getting homework—so usual are these situations that many parents, teachers and children have come to accept them as a normal part of the business of being educated.

"What we call lesson trouble is a symptom that the child's needs are not being met. The school staff should take the lead in educating the whole community to the idea that homework is not a cure for lesson trouble, and that lesson trouble is a warning that something is wrong. Are there any physical defect about the child? Is the child happy at home? At school?

"The most important basis is this fourfold truth: The growing child wants to feel (1) that he belongs to a family in which he is an essential member, (2) that he is achieving something worth while, (3) that he is loved and valued as a person, (4) that he is making steady progress from dependence toward independence.

"Parents should attempt to embody the required homework in the whole scheme of family routine. The plan for doing homework should provide a maximum of independent study and a minimum of assistance and supervision from the rest of the family.

"The school staff should also be encouraged to look upon lesson trouble as a symptom indicating that perhaps something is not meshing in the school program.

"Lesson trouble will be with us for a long time, but as parents and teachers learn more and more about child growth and about how to apply this knowledge in meeting children's daily needs, the trouble will become less common and less severe."

After the discussion period, the hostess, Mrs. E. H. Scott, served delicious refreshments to the following W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A. members: Mrs. T. Gallien, Mrs. J. T. Alsbrooks, Mrs. Fred Stone, Mrs. L. E. Hampton, Mrs. Dale Cobb, Mrs. W. W. Brewer, Mrs. Walter Dean, Jr., and Mrs. Jim Steele, Jr.

BASTROP CLEANING PLANT IS DAMAGED

BASTROP, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—An East Cypress street cleaning plant was practically demolished by a fire of an undetermined origin which broke out in the northwest corner of the building shortly before 10 a. m. today, according to Fire Chief Walter Mayne.

Fire Chief Mayne said firemen and volunteer fire fighters battled the blaze for more than an hour before it was brought under control.

W. C. Hornsby, owner of Hornsby Cleaners, which was severely damaged by the fire carried insurance on the plant, authorities said.

All equipment in the plant was ruined with the exception of two pressers which were slightly damaged, the fire chief said.

The cleaning plant was located at 115 East Cypress street in a frame building which was converted into a cleaning plant more than a year ago.

MARCH OF DIMES NEARING CLOSE

Thus Far Monroe Has Contributed $4,137.97; Much More Needed

With the end of the current month, the 1949 March of Dimes will pass into history, Miss Freda Mickel, chairman of the local committee in charge, states that to date there has been collected $4,137.97. Today and tomorrow the public is urged to donate so that a far larger sum yet may be realized for this worthy cause.

"When January 31 has passed," Miss Mickel said, "we will know just how well equipped we will be for the hot polio months of summer time. Let us not forget that this 18-day drive must produce results sufficient to provide care for all those who may be stricken during the next twelve months period."

The local March of Dimes chairman appealed to all holders of coin cards to return them with their voluntary contributions at the earliest possible moment. Coin collectors, he added, will remain in stores and public buildings until the end of the final day of the March of Dimes drive.

"A heavy responsibility rests on the shoulders of everyone in our community," Miss Mickel said. "That responsibility is to see to it now, that every possible aid can be given to all our boys and girls next summer, should infantile paralysis strike at our homes. We hope we may escape this year. But hope alone is a fool's weapon. We know greater contributions to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are needed in its fight to help where polio has stricken, to help those who were stricken in prior years and to carry on the important research which eventually will erase infantile paralysis from the list of dangers facing our children."

Only two more days are left to live up to those responsibilities, the March of Dimes chairman pointed out. Her appeal to our readers is: Give to the March of Dimes—this year give 50 per cent MORE to this great cause."

Mass production of watches and clocks was developed in the United States, largely through the efforts of New Englanders Eli Terry, Seth Thomas and Chauncey Jerome in the 18th and 19th centuries.

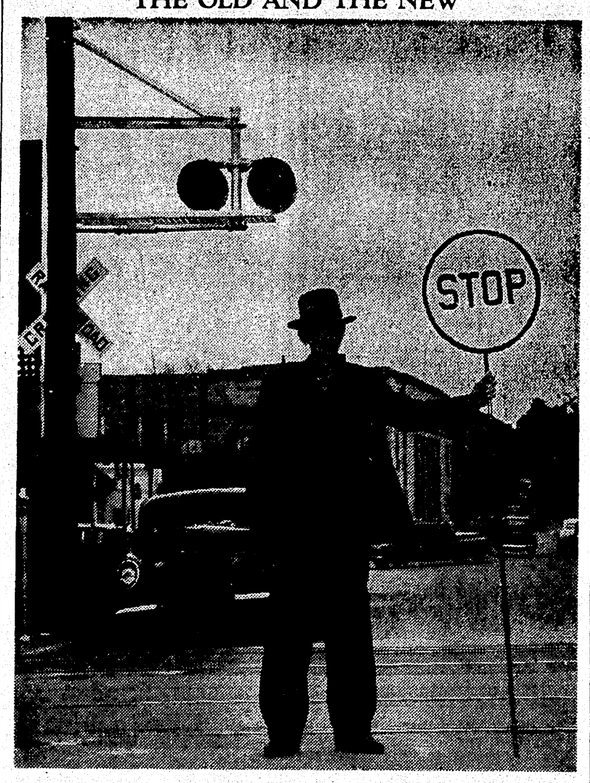
A Deserving Cause

THE OLD AND THE NEW



The new flashing signal lights installed by the Illinois Central Railroad on each side of six downtown crossings will be officially placed into operation next Tuesday, thus marking the passing of crossing watchmen who have been familiar figures here for many years. Shown in the top photo is O. F. Gill, with the railroad since 1926, standing before one of the new signal light standards with the familiar "stop" sign in his hand. Below is a view of the automatic control panel in the tower at 5th and Jefferson. This regulates the operation of the protective lights at the various crossings. Charles Halley is in charge.

I. C. Crossing Signals Ready For Use Tuesday

Flashing Red Lights To Warn Motorists On Downtown Streets

Next Tuesday another landmark will pass from Monroe's daily scene, another victim of progress. This time it's a he. . .The crossing watchman who has flagged motorists out of the paths of oncoming trains at downtown railroad crossings for many years.

The occupants of the little shanties from the Illinois Central bridge to Five Points will give 'way to a modern system of electric crossing signals which will be officially put into operation at 2 p. m. Tuesday. A test of the flashing protective signals was made Friday under the direction of F. K. Stanford, Illinois Central trainmaster with headquarters in Vicksurg.

The signals. . .One on each side of the crossings at Walnut and Grand, 2nd and Jefferson, 3rd and Jefferson, 4th and Jefferson, 5th and Jefferson and at Five Points. . .Were installed at a cost of $55,000, Mr. Stanford said yesterday, and are the most modern available.

The signals are operated from a tower at 5th and Jefferson, the first three sets at crossings east of the bridge being automatic and the last three manually operated by the control tower watchman. Precautions have been taken against an accident or any other contingency which would incapacitate the tower operator by the installation of track devices which would automatically set off the signals at crossings in the last three blocks of Jefferson in case of emergency.

A panel some three feet long and a foot high with a diagram of the tracks from the bridge to Five Points controls the signals. Each crossing is marked with a small red light which indicates that the signals are working. The tower is notified of an approaching train by a buzzer and signal light on the panel when the train or switch engine is approaching from the west by an automatic device located in the middle of the Ouachita river bridge, and from the east by a similar device some 620 feet east of the tower.

In addition to the flasher signal lights, the city has installed a traffic light at DeSiard street. This light is synchronized with the signals at that point, thus affording further protection.

Installation of the new lights will afford 24-hour protection at the downtown crossings where previously watchmen with metal "stop" signs were employed 16 hours a day.

Railroad and city traffic officials yesterday urged motorists to familiarize themselves with the new signals so that accidents may be prevented. Mr. Stanford pointed out that the system is so regulated that motorists who observe the flashing lights may be sure that a train or a locomotive will be along in a few seconds. When a switch engine is operating within a block controlled by the signal lights yet will not traverse the crossing, there will be no continual flashing of lights or, in other words, "false alarms" to delay motorists, Mr. Stanford added.

MORGAN-LINDSEY TO MEET HERE

Annual Conference Will Be Terminated By Big Banquet

The annual Morgan & Lindsey company's store managers' and salesmen's two-day meeting will be held on Monday and Tuesday in Hotel Virginia ballroom. Two days will be devoted to reports and plans for the conduct and expansion of business for 1949 and will terminate in the annual banquet Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the hotel, when 200 are expected to participate.

There will be a principal address delivered at the banquet by D. D. Monroe, of Clayton, N. M., a deep student of international affairs, a world traveler; a member of the speakers' bureau of the American Association for United Nations and of other groups. It is expected that his address will prove of unusual interest and inspiration.

An amusement feature will be a magic exhibition by Metcalf, of Beaumont, Tex. He is connected with the Equitable Life Insurance Company of his home city.

Representation from all the 69 stores will be present from the four states where the company operates which are Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Mississippi. The 69th store was recently opened in Houston, Tex.

This company was started in a modest manner in Jasper, Tex., in 1919 and has grown rapidly through the years. Plans contemplate the opening of a number of additional stores during the current year.

H. B. Cannon is district manager, stationed in Monroe and E. H. Scott is store manager here.

Mr. Monroe, speaker at the banquet, is connected with the Clayton Abstract Company in his home city in New Mexico and has been so associated since 1919. Although active in business he devotes a large part of his time during the past several years to the public service. He is active in several trade associations, is a member of the speakers bureau of the American Association for United Nations, and is a member of the Foreign Policy Association, and the American Academy of Political Science.

Mr. Monroe is a student of international affairs. He was formerly the international leader of one of our largest international fraternal societies. He is an immediate past international director of Rotary International. These services have given him a keen insight into many phases of world affairs. He has traveled widely throughout America and is familiar with conditions and trends here at home. Rated in the top bracket among American public speakers, he has attained unusual recognition as author, speaker and entertainer.

EDUCATION MUST BE IMPROVED

This Made Possible By Better Supervision, Tech Conference Suggests

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—With "Better Education Through Better Supervision" as the theme for their conference, Louisiana's parish supervisors ended a two-day meeting Friday at Louisiana Tech.

Speakers at the conference included Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of education, and Miss Jane Franseth, specialist for rural schools of the U. S. office of education. Miss Franseth attended the meeting as a consultant.

The conference was sponsored by Louisiana Tech, the state department of education and the Louisiana School Supervisors' Association. The conference program included four separate sessions.

Presiding at the first session was J. B. Robertson, state director of elementary and secondary education. J. S. Slocum, vice-president of the Supervisors' Association, presided at the second session. Presiding at the third session was Dr. G. W. Bond, dean of the Tech school of education, and Miss Ruby Craton, Webster parish supervisor and president of the Supervisors' Association, was in charge of the fourth session.

Before weight and length standards were developed, men weighed gold and silver against grains of wheat "taken from the middle of the ear", and measured by the length of the first joint of the finger or the length of the human foot.

MARCH OF DIMES NEARING CLOSE

Thus Far Monroe Has Contributed $4,137.97; Much More Needed

With the end of the current month, the 1949 March of Dimes will pass into history. Miss Freda Mickel, chairman of the local committee in charge, states that to date there has been collected $4,137.97. Today and tomorrow the public is urged to donate so that a far larger sum yet may be realized for this worthy cause.

"When January 31 has passed," Miss Mickel said, "we will know just how well equipped we will be for the hot polio months of summer time. Let us not forget that this 18-day drive must produce results sufficient to provide care for all those who may be stricken during the next twelve months period."

The local March of Dimes chairman appealed to all holders of coin cards to return them with their voluntary contributions at the earliest possible moment. Coin collectors, he added, will remain in stores and public buildings until the end of the final day of the March of Dimes drive.

"A heavy responsibility rests on the shoulders of everyone in our community," Miss Mickel said. "That responsibility is to see to it now, that every possible aid can be given to all our boys and girls next summer, should infantile paralysis strike at our homes. We hope we may escape this year. But hope alone is a fool's weapon. We know greater contributions to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are needed in its fight to help where polio has stricken, to help those who were stricken in prior years and to carry on the important research which eventually will erase infantile paralysis from the list of dangers facing our children."

Only two more days are left to live up to those responsibilities, the March of Dimes chairman pointed out. Her appeal to our readers is: Give to the March of Dimes—this year give 50 per cent MORE to this great cause."

Mass production of watches and clocks was developed in the United States, largely through the efforts of New Englanders Eli Terry, Seth Thomas and Chauncey Jerome in the 18th and 19th centuries.

A Good Show . . . A Deserving Cause

THE OLD AND THE NEW

The new flashing signal lights installed by the Illinois Central Railroad on each side of six downtown crossings will be officially placed into operation next Tuesday, thus marking the passing of crossing watchmen who have been familiar figures here for many years. Shown in the top photo is O. F. Gill, with the railroad since 1926, standing before one of the new signal light standards with the familiar "stop" sign in his hand. Below is a view of the automatic control panel in the tower at 5th and Jefferson. This regulates the operation of the protective lights at the various crossings. Charles Halley is in charge.

I. C. Crossing Signals Ready For Use Tuesday

Flashing Red Lights To Warn Motorists On Downtown Streets

Next Tuesday another landmark will pass from Monroe's daily scene, another victim of progress. This time it's a he. . .The crossing watchman who has flagged motorists out of the paths of oncoming trains at downtown railroad crossings for many years.

The occupants of the little shanties from the Illinois Central bridge to Five Points will give 'way to a modern system of electric crossing signals which will be officially put into operation at 2 p. m. Tuesday. A test of the flashing protective signals was made Friday under the direction of F. K. Stanford, Illinois Central trainmaster with headquarters in Vicksurg.

The signals. . .One on each side of the crossings at Walnut and Grand, 2nd and Jefferson, 3rd and Jefferson, 4th and Jefferson, 5th and Jefferson and at Five Points. . .Were installed at a cost of $55,000, Mr. Stanford said yesterday, and are the most modern available.

The signals are operated from a tower at 5th and Jefferson, the first three sets at crossings east of the bridge being automatic and the last three manually operated by the control tower watchman. Precautions have been taken against an accident or any other contingency which would incapacitate the tower operator by the installation of track devices which would automatically set off the signals at crossings in the last three blocks of Jefferson in case of emergency.

A panel some three feet long and a foot high with a diagram of the tracks from the bridge to Five Points controls the signals. Each crossing is marked with a small red light which indicates that the signals are working. The tower is notified of an approaching train by a buzzer and signal light on the panel when the train or switch engine is approaching from the west by an automatic device located in the middle of the Ouachita river bridge, and from the east by a similar device some 620 feet east of the tower.

In addition to the flasher signal lights, the city has installed a traffic light at DeSiard street. This light is synchronized with the signals at that point, thus affording further protection.

Installation of the new lights will afford 24-hour protection at the downtown crossings where previously watchmen with metal "stop" signs were employed 16 hours a day.

Railroad and city traffic officials yesterday urged motorists to familiarize themselves with the new signals so that accidents may be prevented. Mr. Stanford pointed out that the system is so regulated that motorists who observe the flashing lights may be sure that a train or a locomotive will be along in a few seconds. When a switch engine is operating within a block controlled by the signal lights yet will not traverse the crossing, there will be no continual flashing of lights or, in other words, "false alarms" to delay motorists, Mr. Stanford added.

Almost all weevils are destructive. They include the boll-, acorn-, hickory nut-, chestnut-, plum-, cherry-, grain-, rice-, corn-, grape-, sugar cane-, palm-, strawberry-, potato-, closer-, pea- and bean-weevil.

MORGAN-LINDSEY TO MEET HERE

Annual Conference Will Be Terminated By Big Banquet

The annual Morgan & Lindsey company's store managers' and salesmen's two-day meeting will be held on Monday and Tuesday in Hotel Virginia ballroom. Two days will be devoted to reports and plans for the conduct and expansion of business for 1949 and will terminate in the annual banquet Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the hotel, when 200 are expected to participate.

There will be a principal address delivered at the banquet by D. D. Monroe, of Clayton, N. M., a deep student of international affairs, a world traveler; a member of the speakers' bureau of the American Association for United Nations and of other groups. It is expected that his address will prove of unusual interest and inspiration.

An amusement feature will be a magic exhibition by Metcalf, of Beaumont, Tex. He is connected with the Equitable Life Insurance Company of his home city.

Representation from all the 69 stores will be present from the four states where the company operates which are Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Mississippi. The 69th store was recently opened in Houston, Tex.

This company was started in a modest manner in Jasper, Tex., in 1919 and has grown rapidly through the years. Plans contemplate the opening of a number of additional stores during the current year.

H. B. Cannon is district manager, stationed in Monroe and E. H. Scott is store manager here.

Mr. Monroe, speaker at the banquet, is connected with the Clayton Abstract Company in his home city in New Mexico and has been so associated since 1919. Although active in business he devotes a large part of his time during the past several years to the public service. He is active in several trade associations, is a member of the speakers bureau of the American Association for United Nations, and is a member of the Foreign Policy Association, and the American Academy of Political Science.

Mr. Monroe is a student of international affairs. He was formerly the international leader of one of our largest international fraternal societies. He is an immediate past international director of Rotary International. These services have given him a keen insight into many phases of world affairs. He has traveled widely throughout America and is familiar with conditions and trends here at home. Rated in the top bracket among American public speakers, he has attained unusual recognition as author, speaker and entertainer.

EDUCATION MUST BE IMPROVED

This Made Possible By Better Supervision, Tech Conference Suggests

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—With "Better Education Through Better Supervision" as the theme for their conference, Louisiana's parish supervisors ended a two-day meeting Friday at Louisiana Tech.

Speakers at the conference included Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of education, and Miss Jane Franseth, specialist for rural schools of the U. S. office of education. Miss Franseth attended the meeting as a consultant.

The conference was sponsored by Louisiana Tech, the state department of education and the Louisiana School Supervisors' Association. The conference program included four separate sessions.

Presiding at the first session was J. B. Robertson, state director of elementary and secondary education. J. S. Slocum, vice-president of the Supervisors' Association, presided at the second session. Presiding at the third session was Dr. G. W. Bond, dean of the Tech school of education, and Miss Ruby Craton, Webster parish supervisor and president of the Supervisors' Association, was in charge of the fourth session.

Before weight and length standards were developed, men weighed gold and silver against grains of wheat "taken from the middle of the ear", and measured by the length of the first joint of the finger or the length of the human foot.

TWO-YEAR SCOUT PROGRAM SET UP

Ouachita Valley Council Approves Plans; Elects Officers

A new two-year program of emphasis of the national Boy Scout council was presented to the two hundred and sixty scouters and their ladies who attended the annual recognition banquet of the Ouachita valley council, held at the Hotel Virginia, in Monroe, Thursday night, January 27. Harvey E. Erb, regional scout executive, told of the great need for a crusade in America to revitalize the Boy Scout movement and announced the fortieth anniversary crusade program which will use the theme "strengthen the Arm of Liberty."

The three targets about which the crusade program is to be centered were described as leadership, program, and membership. The importance of these three targets, with the objectives in each, was dramatically portrayed by Mr. Erb and Mr. Phil Hannan, of Hodge. Hannan closed the banquet program with a very unusual description of the crusade, supported by pantomimes in each phase of the program.

A. B. Clarkson, council president, was announced as having been selected again for president of the council by W. H. Farmer. This will make Mr. Clarkson's eleventh year of service in this capacity. Other officers for 1949 announced include L. L. Price, A. W. Ford, L. E. Mathis, vice-presidents; J. W. Webster, commissioner; T. H. Woods, treasurer; P. E. Massey and W. H. Farmer, national council representatives.

Lloyd Love, scoutmaster of a newly organized troop in Ferriday, presented a plaque of appreciation from the council to Mr. Clarkson. This plaque expressed appreciation to him for his outstanding contribution to the youth of this area through his ten years of service as council president.

Another highlight of the banquet was the awarding of the Silver Beaver for distinguished service to boyhood to four scouters of the Ouachita valley council. These were A. C. Lea, who has served for many years in the cub scout program in Ruston and Monroe; Phil Hannan, former scoutmaster at Hodge, and presently a member of the council executive board; A. J. Ensminger, veteran scoutmaster of Wisner; L. E. Mathis, council treasurer and executive board member. Cub Scout Robert Smith, of Pack 34, Sea Scout Bill Reno, of Ship 1, Eagle Scouts Robert Curry and Sammy Warren, of Troop 67, Sterlington, presented these scouters with their awards and certificates in a very impressive ceremony.

Judge W. M. Harper, member of the executive board and former council president, expressed appreciation to scoutmasters, cubmasters, and den mothers of the council for their many hours of service each week in directing the activities of our boys. Judge Harper had this outstanding group stand as Eagle Scouts presented each with a carnation as a token of appreciation for their efforts.

Included among other outstanding awards at the banquet was the presentation of the scouter's key to W. W. Stevens, scoutmaster of troop 32, Monroe, and J. D. Bice, scoutmaster of troop 45, Ruston. These were presented by E. J. Foster, chairman of the leadership training committee, who commended them for their fine progress in training.

Veterans awards were presented to a very large group of scouters who have completed many years of registered service in the Boy Scout program. J. D. Bice received the highest award of service, having completed 25 years of active service as a scout and scouter. Judge E. L. Gladney presented this award along with many other five, ten, fifteen, and twenty-year veteran awards. Receiving the fifteen-year service award were Rev. E. D. Holloway, Tom D. Wafer, Judge W. M. Harper, A. B. Clarkson, Judge E. L. Walker, P. S. Mulhearn, J. Floyd Stone, Jr., C. L. Preston, G. L. Smith, J. J. Cuthbert, Jr., R. L. Phillips. The following received ten-year service awards: O. J. Hamm, L. B. Pettit, Dr. W. L. Bendel, Kenneth Perkins, L. U. Fourmy, Chet Steadman, A. J. Ensminger, W. E. Persons.

The following Eagle Scouts of 1948 were recognized by S. L. Maxwell, of Canebrake, who commended them for their outstanding accomplishment in attaining this highest rank in scouting: Billy Whitten, Homer E. Lowry, Ira John Hall, Ben Sellers, Samuel D. Warren, Raymond Collier, Jack Ensminger, Alton A. Allen, Jerry Garner, Raymond Bostic, Ralph King, Robert Currey, John Love, Sammy Hanna, Julian Nichols, Lytle Matkins.

L. L. Price, vice-president of the council, presided over the banquet. Rev. E. D. Holloway, veteran scouter, gave the invocation, and the meeting was closed with the scoutmaster's benediction led by J. W. Webster, council commissioner. E. J. Foster was chairman of the banquet committee.

ARMY NURSE WK. NOW STRESSED

48th Anniversary Will Be Celebrated Nation Wide

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 29.—(Special)—With the 48th anniversary celebration of the army nurse corps falling on February 2, the week of January 30 to February 6 will be observed as "Army Nurse Week."

In honor of the occasion, special campaign has been initiated not only because it is the corps' 48th anniversary, but because of the urgent program of nurse recruitment which is now in progress.

Thirty-eight hundred (3,800) nurses must be found for extended active duty in army and air force hospitals by June 30, 1949.

Besides the nurses needed for the present expansion, the army is attempting to build its army nurse corps reserve to 29,000. It is about 20,000 short of this goal. Nurses for the army nurse corps are selected only from those nurses holding reserve commissions.

The civilian nursing profession through its national professional organization, the American Nurses' Association, is cooperating in the procurement effort. The association has recommended a recruitment quota to each state, and each state, in turn, is recommending quotas to each local area.

The ANA is cooperating not only to meet the military need for nurses, but also for the specific purpose of preventing a dislocation in the available supply of nurses in all parts of the country. In that connection Miss Pearl McIver, president of the American Nurses' Association, recently said: "Both the American Nurses' Association and the surgeon general of the army want to assure the professional nurses of America and the civilian communities that, under the terms of the new procurement program, there will be no upset in the proper balance between civilian and military patient nurse care."

In connection with the five-week pre-anniversary campaign, now in progress an added attraction has been arranged. The first 175 reserve nurses who respond to the campaign will be assigned to Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for the Kate Smith basic training class starting March 3, 1949. A national swearing-in ceremony has been planned on the Kate Smith radio program, with the oath of office being administered to each of 48 nurses, one from each state.

INITIATE INTO ALTRUSA CLUB

Frances Hotel Scene Of Impressive Ceremony; Rev. Joyner Speaks

Ten new members were initiated into the Altrusa Club of Monroe at the regular dinner meeting held Thursday night, January 20, at the Frances Hotel. After dinner the pledges were made during an impressive candle ceremony.

The new members were presented for initiation by Mrs. Helen Luckett, and Mrs. Eunice Forman was selected to represent the group of new members and light the candles of "Efficiency, Patriotism and Service" during the ceremony.

President Adrienne Carr welcomed the new members into the club, and gave a short informal talk on "Being A Good Altrusan." Altrusa believes it is not enough to be good: "Altrusans must be good for something," and Mrs. Carr stated, "Each member must be doing the piece of work that is hers in a way that puts her in the front ranks of accomplishment. This is our twelfth principle in Altrusa."

Members brought into the club at this time are Marie Frazier, Eunice Forman, Erlene Adams, Earle Coats, Frances Blumenthal, Ella Johnson, Abbie Leckie, Fay Heard, Cecil Burkett and Ada Gruber.

The program was then turned over to Agatha Burkett, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Lea Joyner. Miss Joyner centered her remarks around the ninth principle of Altrusa: "Altrusa expresses good will for all mankind." "We are all sharing a common sorrow caused by disregard of love and lack of consideration for and of others. Our task is to get along with people by loving deed and word. In this way a world brotherhood is created and we can live together in happy relationships. We can improve our relationships with others and reduce the tensions which limit our personal strength and effectiveness by being a good Altrusan, one that expresses good will for all mankind.

"This is true because the individual is seen as the key. We are all different, but it is possible to develop good human relations in our business, social and religious life. The world must catch the right spirit from us. We would do well as a service club to pray. May every soul that touches mine, be it the slighest contact get therefrom some good, some little grace, one kindly thought, one inspiration yet unfelt. Yes, one bit of courage for the darkening sky, one gleam of faith to brave the thickening ills of life. One glimpse of brightest skies beyond the gathering mist, and in fellowship and good will make life worth while."

Guests and members present were Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Miss Agatha Burkett, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Miss Bernice McCoy, Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick, Miss Emma Lee Short, Mrs. Addie Lou Juneman, Miss Clydie Cox, Mrs. Jewel Durham, Mrs. Audrey Davis, Mrs. Gordie Phillips, Mrs. Thelma Bond, Mrs. Eunice Forman, Mrs. Erlene Adams, Mrs. Abbie Leckie, Mrs. Cecil Burkett, Mrs. Marie Frazier, Mrs. Fay Heard, Mrs. Ada Gruber, Miss Helen Sype, Miss Dutch Martin, Mrs. Jimmie Ussery and Miss Nell Golson.

Local High School One Of Seven In U. S. To Be In Int'l Project

Ouachita music department has been selected as one of the seven schools in America to participate in the international school music project sponsored by Junior Red Cross. Lloyd V. Funchess, state supervisor of music advised Dr. Frank Jenkins, director of J. R. C., Atlanta, that Ouachita parish had the outstanding music department in the state of Louisiana and one of the best in the south. Both Miss Velma Nichols and Walter Minnear have chosen selections from their departments to be recorded. This project was endorsed by the national music conference in December.

Dr. Charles M. Dennis, president of Music Educator's National Conference, and Edward A. Richards, national director of Junior Red Cross, with the help of a committee are directing this new project.

Junior Red Cross had conducted international programs since its organization 30 years ago for the purpose of promoting better understanding and to create bonds of interest and appreciation between our young people and those abroad. The national director of music says, "Only the best in America will be sent abroad."

TWO-YEAR SCOUT PROGRAM SET UP

Ouachita Valley Council Approves Plans; Elects Officers

A new two-year program of emphasis of the national Boy Scout council was presented to the two hundred and sixty scouters and their ladies who attended the annual recognition banquet of the Ouachita valley council, held at the Hotel Virginia, in Monroe, Thursday night, January 27. Harley E. Erb, regional scout executive, told of the great need for a crusade in America to revitalize the Boy Scout movement and announced the fortieth anniversary crusade program which will use the theme "strengthen the Arm of Liberty."

The three targets about which the crusade program is to be centered were described as leadership, program, and membership. The importance of these three targets, with the objectives in each, was dramatically portrayed by Mr. Erb and Mr. Phil Hannan, of Hodge. Hannan closed the banquet program with a very unusual description of the crusade, supported by pantomimes in each phase of the program.

A. B. Clarkson, council president, was announced as having been selected again for president of the council by W. H. Farmer. This will make Mr. Clarkson's eleventh year of service in this capacity. Other officers for 1949 announced include L. L. Price, A. W. Ford, L. E. Mathis, vice-presidents; J. W. Webster, commissioner; T. H. Woods, treasurer; P. E. Massey and W. H. Farmer, national council representatives.

Lloyd Love, scoutmaster of a newly organized troop in Ferriday, presented a plaque of appreciation from the council to Mr. Clarkson. This plaque expressed appreciation to him for his outstanding contribution to the youth of this area through his ten years of service as council president.

Another highlight of the banquet was the awarding of the Silver Beaver for distinguished service to boyhood to four scouters of the Ouachita valley council. These were A. C. Lea, who has served for many years in the cub scout program in Ruston and Monroe; Phil Hannan, former scoutmaster at Hodge, and presently a member of the council executive board; A. J. Ensminger, veteran scoutmaster of Wisner; L. E. Mathis, council treasurer and executive board member. Cub Scout Robert Smith, of Pack 34, Sea Scout Bill Reno, of Ship 1, Eagle Scouts Robert Curry and Sammy Warren, of Troop 67, Sterlington, presented these scouters with their awards and certificates in a very impressive ceremony.

Judge W. M. Harper, member of the executive board and former council president, expressed appreciation to scoutmasters, cubmasters, and den mothers of the council for their many hours of service each week in directing the activities of our boys. Judge Harper had this outstanding group stand as Eagle Scouts presented each with a carnation as a token of appreciation for their efforts.

Included among other outstanding awards at the banquet was the presentation of the scouter's key to W. W. Stevens, scoutmaster of troop 32, Monroe, and J. D. Bice, scoutmaster of troop 45, Ruston. These were presented by E. J. Foster, chairman of the leadership training committee, who commended them for their fine progress in training.

Veterans awards were presented to a very large group of scouters who have completed many years of registered service in the Boy Scout program. J. D. Bice received the highest award of service, having completed 25 years of active service as a scout and scouter. Judge E. L. Gladney presented this award along with many other five, ten, fifteen, and twenty-year veteran awards. Receiving the fifteen-year service award were Rev. E. D. Holloway, Tom D. Wafer, Judge W. M. Harper, A. B. Clarkson, Judge E. L. Walker, P. S. Mulhearn, J. Floyd Stone, Jr., C. L. Preston, G. L. Smith, J. J. Cuthbert, Jr., R. L. Phillips. The following received ten-year service awards: O. J. Hamm, L. B. Pettit, Dr. W. L. Bendel, Kenneth Perkins, L. U. Fourmy, Chet Steadman, A. J. Ensminger, W. E. Persons.

The following Eagle Scouts of 1948 were recognized by S. L. Maxwell, of Canebrake, who commended them for their outstanding accomplishment in attaining this highest rank in scouting: Billy Whitten, Homer E. Lowry, Ira John Hall, Ben Sellers, Samuel D. Warren, Raymond Collier, Jack Ensminger, Alton A. Allen, Jerry Garner, Raymond Bostic, Ralph King, Robert Currey, John Love, Sammy Hanna, Julian Nichols, Lytle Matkins.

L. L. Price, vice-president of the council, presided over the banquet. Rev. E. D. Holloway, veteran scouter, gave the invocation, and the meeting was closed with the scoutmaster's benediction led by J. W. Webster, council commissioner. E. J. Foster was chairman of the banquet committee.

ARMY NURSE WK. NOW STRESSED

48th Anniversary Will Be Celebrated Nation Wide

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 29.—(Special)—With the 48th anniversary celebration of the army nurse corps falling on February 2, the week of January 30 to February 6 will be observed as "Army Nurse Week."

In honor of the occasion, special campaign has been initiated not only because it is the corps' 48th anniversary, but because of the urgent program of nurse recruitment which is now in progress.

Thirty-eight hundred (3,800) nurses must be found for extended active duty in army and air force hospitals by June 30, 1949.

Besides the nurses needed for the present expansion, the army is attempting to build its army nurse corps reserve to 29,000. It is about 20,000 short of this goal. Nurses for the army nurse corps are selected only from those nurses holding reserve commissions.

The civilian nursing profession through its national professional organization, the American Nurses' Association, is cooperating in the procurement effort. The association has recommended a recruitment quota to each state, and each state, in turn, is recommending quotas to each local area.

The ANA is cooperating not only to meet the military need for nurses, but also for the specific purpose of preventing a dislocation in the available supply of nurses in all parts of the country. In that connection Miss Pearl McIver, president of the American Nurses' Association, recently said: "Both the American Nurses' Association and the surgeon general of the army want to assure the professional nurses of America and the civilian communities that, under the terms of the new procurement program, there will be no upset in the proper balance between civilian and military patient nurse care."

In connection with the five-week pre-anniversary campaign, now in progress an added attraction has been arranged. The first 175 reserve nurses who respond to the campaign will be assigned to Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for the Kate Smith basic training class starting March 3, 1949. A national swearing-in ceremony has been planned on the Kate Smith radio program, with the oath of office being administered to each of 48 nurses, one from each state.

INITIATE INTO ALTRUSA CLUB

Frances Hotel Scene Of Impressive Ceremony; Rev. Joyner Speaks

Ten new members were initiated into the Altrusa Club of Monroe at the regular dinner meeting held Thursday night, January 20, at the Frances Hotel. After dinner the pledges were made during an impressive candle ceremony.

The new members were presented for initiation by Mrs. Helen Luckett, and Mrs. Eunice Forman was selected to represent the group of new members and light the candles of "Efficiency, Patriotism and Service" during the ceremony.

President Adrienne Carr welcomed the new members into the club, and gave a short informal talk on "Being A Good Altrusan." Altrusa believes it is not enough to be good: "Altrusans must be good for something." and Mrs. Carr stated, "Each member must be doing the piece of work that is hers in a way that puts her in the front ranks of accomplishment. This is our twelfth principle in Altrusa."

Members brought into the club at this time are Marie Frazier, Eunice Forman, Erlene Adams, Earle Coats, Frances Blumenthal, Ella Johnson, Abbie Leckie, Fay Heard, Cecil Burkett and Ada Gruber.

The program was then turned over to Agatha Burkett, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Lea Joyner. Miss Joyner centered her remarks around the ninth principle of Altrusa: "Altrusa expresses good will for all mankind." "We are all sharing a common sorrow caused by disregard of love and lack of consideration for and of others. Our task is to get along with people by loving deed and word. In this way a world brotherhood is created and we can live together in happy relationships. We can improve our relationships with others and reduce the tensions which limit our personal strength and effectiveness by being a good Altrusan, one that expresses good will for all mankind.

"This is true because the individual is seen as the key. We are all different, but it is possible to develop good human relations in our business, social and religious life. The world must catch the right spirit from us. We would do well as a service club to pray. May every soul that touches mine, be it the slighest contact get therefrom some good, some little grace, one kindly thought, one inspiration yet unfelt. Yes, one bit of courage for the darkening sky, one gleam of faith to brave the thickening ills of life. One glimpse of brightest skies beyond the gathering mist, and in fellowship and good will make life worth while."

Guests and members present were Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Miss Agatha Burkett, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Miss Bernice McCoy, Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick, Miss Emma Lee Short, Mrs. Addie Lou Juneman, Miss Clydie Cox, Mrs. Jewel Durham, Mrs. Audrey Davis, Mrs. Gordie Phillips, Mrs. Thelma Bond, Mrs. Eunice Forman, Mrs. Erlene Adams, Mrs. Abbie Leckie, Mrs. Cecil Burkett, Mrs. Marie Frazier, Mrs. Fay Heard, Mrs. Ada Gruber, Miss Helen Sype. Miss Dutch Martin, Mrs. Jimmie Ussery and Miss Nell Golson.

Local High School One Of Seven In U. S. To Be In Int'l Project

Ouachita music department has been selected as one of the seven schools in America to participate in the international school music project sponsored by Junior Red Cross. Lloyd V. Funchess, state supervisor of music advised Dr. Frank Jenkins, director of J. R. C., Atlanta, that Ouachita parish had the outstanding music department in the state of Louisiana and one of the best in the south. Both Miss Velma Nichols and Walter Minnear have chosen selections from their departments to be recorded. This project was endorsed by the national music conference in December.

Dr. Charles M. Dennis, president of Music Educator's National Conference, and Edward A. Richards, national director of Junior Red Cross, with the help of a committee are directing this new project.

Junior Red Cross had conducted international programs since its organization 30 years ago for the purpose of promoting better understanding and to create bonds of interest and appreciation between our young people and those abroad. The national director of music says, "Only the best in America will be sent abroad."

WESLEY FDT'N TO BE EQUIPPED

College Avenue Building To Be Used By Methodist N. J. C. Students

Announcement was made Saturday that official approval has been given for the purchase of a residence at 105 College avenue for use as a Wesley Foundation for Methodist students at nearby Northeast Junior College. states Rev. W. H. Giles, district superintendent of the Monroe area. He expressed himself well pleased with this important undertaking calculated to contribute much to the spiritual side of life of many college students when equipped and in full operation.

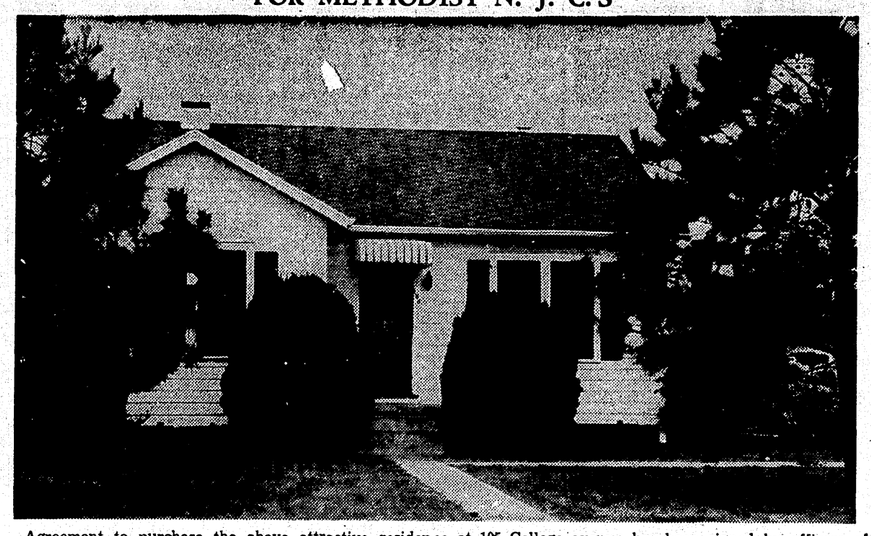
In this connection he stated as follows:

"Those Methodists" was a term used in tones of derision by Oxford University faculty members and students, referring to a student organization of Charles and John Wesley at Oxford. These two sons of the Epworth parsonage came to Oxford, 1720-29, highly disciplined by father and mother to apply themselves strictly to their studies and religious duties.

"The Wesley brothers with George Whitefield organized the Oxford Club, as they called it, which met every Thursday night for mutual help in their studies, that they might measure up to the highest possible scholastic standards and set the best possible example of Christian practice and piety.

"The Wesley Foundation at N. J. C. has as it's historic foundation and it's present purpose to practice these same high standards in daily life on all campuses wherever organized. Such an organization, akin to those fostered by other denominational groups, fosters good inter-religious fellowship and tolerance; and keeps them conscious of their church serving them while in college."

FOR METHODIST N. J. C.'S



Agreement to purchase the above attractive residence at 105 College avenue has been signed by officers of the Methodist Church of the Monroe district. It will be converted to the use of the Wesley Foundation, Methodist group, attendants of Northeast Junior College. It will provide for the religious side of student life among Methodist students. QUIZ PROGRAM IS GIVEN TO LIONS

Club In West Monroe Also Plans For Annual Minstrel Show

Guests were introduced as Dr. William L. Spencer of West Monroe, and Mr. A. L. De Mero of the Gold Coast Lions Club in Chicago, Illinois.

The club welcomed two new members, Francis J. Ortiz and Johnnie Simpson to the club this week. The membership committee, with Lion T. A. Sanders as chairman, reports a total of eight new members since the beginning of this membership drive.

J. B. Landreaux and L. E. Wilson celebrated birthdays this last week and the club honored them by a present of a bright red posey each.

The club also discussed the regular annual black face minstrel to be held April 7 and the space to be sold for advertising purposes in the minstrel programs. Robert Ervin rated a lot of joshing about his "Oh, Boy" campaign in the last issue of 'The Lions Roar,' the official publication of the West Monroe Lions Club.

Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, program chairman, presented the club with an interesting program which consisted of a quiz. Mrs. Landreaux gave the contestants a clue to the identity of an outstanding member of the club, while Chester De Cuir, Tail Twister, after giving the contestants an amount of money, would take a portion of the cash back each time the contestant failed to identify the member, plus a fine at the end of each contestant's question. The clues were very vague in some cases and the contestants, all being new members, did not do so good financially. The tail twister, however, seemed to enjoy the game. Contestants participating were, new members S. Carl Jackson, T. F. Simpson, Jr., W. C. Wilhite, Jr., Ivan D. Owens, J. V. Simpson and Homer B. Roark.

MENTAL TURMOIL UNDER ATTACK

Dr. J D. Williams Urges Tech Graduates To Take Heart, Despairing Not

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—Citing the "intellectual turmoil" in the world today, Dr. J. D. Williams, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, urged the mid-year graduating class at Louisiana Tech Saturday night "not to despair at the moment but take heart and make the most of it."

The chancellor's talk highlighted the commencement exercises at which 147 seniors received diplomas.

"People everywhere are confused," Dr. Williams said. "They are being exposed to more new ideas than in any period of history. Some individuals would rather die than undergo changes in their habits of thinking. Thousands upon thousands have died in conflict, in wars which have settled none of the world's great issues permanently. What we learn from history is that mankind learns nothing from history.

"The world could be much better off if men would understand one another and abandon acquired beliefs. If it is assumed that wars cannot kill a good idea, then why not assume the corollary that the better idea will prevail and that eventually the world will grow better?

"From what history tells of other peoples," the speaker continued, "is it too much to assume that some do not want liberty or freedom but feel greater security in dictatorship? Otherwise, how can one account for the fact that so few people are allowed to dominate the living of so many? It is interesting to contemplate what would happen in Russia if a great majority of the people should become dissatisfied and, through rebellion (even though disorganized) should express themselves in any one of a number of ways.

"Does it shock you to learn that in Germany and Japan this country is having great difficulty in gaining converts to democracy as this country knows and practices it? Some who are familiar with the effort of the United States to inculcate democratic ideas in Germany and Japan believe that much which appears to be progress toward the democratization of those countries is superficial; that as soon as controls are removed they will revert to some form of dominating leadership. If those people reason that they prefer their own way of living, is it essential that democracy be forced upon them? Does democracy insure peace? So far, it has not.

"The two greatest democracies, Great Britain and the United States," Dr. Williams pointed out, "have both been involved in the world's greatest conflicts. In our democratic country it was thought necessary to go to war to settle a question of states' rights—which seems to persist even to this day.

"The answer to getting along peacefully in this world must then lie in some other direction. Perhaps the answer lies, in large measure, in our schools," the chancellor said.

ENCAMPMENT PLANS ITS INSTALLATION

On February 3, following the meeting of the subordinate lodge, William J. Hammonds encampment No. 40, I. O. O. F. of Jonesboro, will install officers for the coming term.

"Pop" Jenkins, grand chaplain, urges all the encampment members to attend. Visiting brothers from Monroe and surrounding lodge members are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

The point is, these mechanics are Buick specialists of long and patient experience—they know your Buick and its needs better than anyone else—and they take pains to keep you happy with it.

WESLEY FDT'N TO BE EQUIPPED

College Avenue Building To Be Used By Methodist N. J. C. Students

Announcement was made Saturday that official approval has been given for the purchase of a residence at 105 College avenue for use as a Wesley Foundation for Methodist students at nearby Northeast Junior College, states Rev. W. H. Giles, district superintendent of the Monroe area. He expressed himself well pleased with this important undertaking calculated to contribute much to the spiritual side of life of many college students when equipped and in full operation.

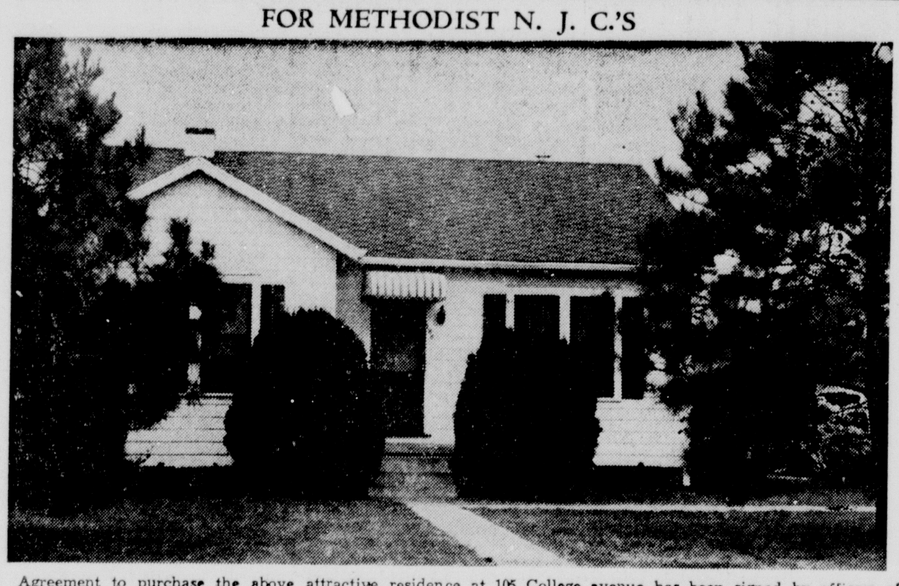
In this connection he stated as follows:

"Those Methodists" was a term used in tones of derision by Oxford University faculty members and students, referring to a student organization of Charles and John Wesley at Oxford. These two sons of the Epworth parsonage came to Oxford, 1720-29, highly disciplined by father and mother to apply themselves strictly to their studies and religious duties.

"The Wesley brothers with George Whitefield organized the Oxford Club, as they called it, which met every Thursday night for mutual help in their studies, that they might measure up to the highest possible scholastic standards and set the best possible example of Christian practice and piety.

"The Wesley Foundation at N. J. C. has as it's historic foundation and it's present purpose to practice these same high standards in daily life on all campuses wherever organized. Such an organization, akin to those fostered by other denominational groups, fosters good inter-religious fellowship and tolerance; and keeps them conscious of their church serving them while in college."

FOR METHODIST N. J. C.'S



Agreement to purchase the above attractive residence at 105 College avenue has been signed by officers of the Methodist Church of the Monroe district. It will be converted to the use of the Wesley Foundation, Methodist group, attendants of Northeast Junior College. It will provide for the religious side of student life among Methodist students. QUIZ PROGRAM IS GIVEN TO LIONS

Club In West Monroe Also Plans For Annual Minstrel Show

Guests were introduced as Dr. William L. Spencer of West Monroe, and Mr. A. L. De Mero of the Gold Coast Lions Club in Chicago, Illinois.

The club welcomed two new members, Francis J. Ortiz and Johnnie Simpson to the club this week. The membership committee, with Lion T. A. Sanders as chairman, reports a total of eight new members since the beginning of this membership drive.

J. B. Landreaux and L. E. Wilson celebrated birthdays this last week and the club honored them by a present of a bright red posey each.

The club also discussed the regular annual black face minstrel to be held April 7 and the space to be sold for advertising purposes in the minstrel programs. Robert Ervin rated a lot of joshing about his "Oh, Boy" campaign in the last issue of 'The Lions Roar,' the official publication of the West Monroe Lions Club.

Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, program chairman, presented the club with an interesting program which consisted of a quiz. Mrs. Landreaux gave the contestants a clue to the identity of an outstanding member of the club, while Chester De Cuir, Tail Twister, after giving the contestants an amount of money, would take a portion of the cash back each time the contestant failed to identify the member, plus a fine at the end of each contestant's question. The clues were very vague in some cases and the contestants, all being new members, did not do so good financially. The tail twister, however, seemed to enjoy the game. Contestants participating were, new members S. Carl Jackson, T. F. Simpson, Jr., W. C. Wilhite, Jr., Ivan D. Owens, J. V. Simpson and Homer B. Roark.

DALE CARNEGIE'S COURSE PLANNED

C. R. Van Nice, Topeka, Kans., instructor in the Washburn Municipal university, and editor of "School Activities," a school publication of nationwide circulation, is in Monroe planning to organize a class in the Dale Carnegie plan of effective speaking, human relations and personality development.

The course to be given in Monroe is being sponsored by the Pilot club and the first or organization meeting is arranged for the Cameo room, Hotel Virginia, Monday, January 31 at 7:30 p.m.

All those who desire instruction along the lines made famous by Dale Carnegie are invited to attend the organization meeting.

MENTAL TURMOIL UNDER ATTACK

Dr. J D. Williams Urges Tech Graduates To Take Heart, Despairing Not

RUSTON, La., Jan. 29.—(Special)—Citing the "intellectual turmoil" in the world today, Dr. J. D. Williams, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, urged the mid-year graduatting class at Louisiana Tech Saturday night "not to despair at the moment but take heart and make the most of it."

The chancellor's talk highlighted the commencement exercises at which 147 seniors received diplomas.

"People everywhere are confused," Dr. Williams said. "They are being exposed to more new ideas than in any period of history. Some individuals would rather die than undergo changes in their habits of thinking. Thousands upon thousands have died in conflict, in wars which have settled none of the world's great issues permanently. What we learn from history is that mankind learns nothing from history.

"The world could be much better off if men would understand one another and abandon acquired beliefs. If it is assumed that wars cannot kill a good idea, then why not assume the corollary that the better idea will prevail and that eventually the world will grow better?

"From what history tells of other peoples," the speaker continued, "is it too much to assume that some do not want liberty or freedom but feel greater security in dictatorship? Otherwise, how can one account for the fact that so few people are allowed to dominate the living of so many? It is interesting to contemplate what would happen in Russia if a great majority of the people should become dissatisfied and, through rebellion (even though disorganized) should express themselves in any one of a number of ways.

"Does it shock you to learn that in Germany and Japan this country is having great difficulty in gaining converts to democracy as this country knows and practices it? Some who are familiar with the effort of the United States to inculcate democratic ideas in Germany and Japan believe that much which appears to be progress toward the democratization of those countries is superficial; that as soon as controls are removed they will revert to some form of dominating leadership. If those people reason that they prefer their own way of living, is it essential that democracy be forced upon them? Does democracy insure peace? So far, it has not.

"The two greatest democracies, Great Britain and the United States," Dr. Williams pointed out, "have both been involved in the world's greatest conflicts. In our democratic country it was thought necessary to go to war to settle a question of states' rights—which seems to persist even to this day.

"The answer to getting along peacefully in this world must then lie in some other direction. Perhaps the answer lies, in large measure, in our schools," the chancellor said.

ENCAMPMENT PLANS ITS INSTALLATION

On February 3, following the meeting of the subordinate lodge, William J. Hammonds encampment No. 40, I. O. O. F. of Jonesboro, will install officers for the coming term.

"Pop" Jenkins, grand chaplain, urges all the encampment members to attend. Visiting brothers from Monroe and surrounding lodge members are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

FLASH GORDON

by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE ®

TOR STEERS HIS GRAVITY-PLANE TOWARD A LOW-FLYING CREATURE. LOKE SNEERS, "DON'T BOTHER TO SHOOT, BROTHER, DEAR. IT'S JUST A VULTURE."

ONLY FLASH WATCHES WITH SECRET INTEREST AS THE "VULTURE" LIGHTS NEAR ALB'S UNDERGROUND CAVES.

TOR LANDS TO PUSH THE COMET-WIDE SEARCH FOR PYGMY POK. FLASH SLIPS AWAY, WHISPERING TO DALE, "THAT VULTURE FLEW MORE LIKE A MAN THAN A BIRD."

THEY ARRIVE IN TIME TO SEE THE "VULTURE" POINTING A PYGMY HAND-- AND A HUGE SLAB OF ROCK SWINGS OPEN IN OBEDIENCE TO TOR'S STOLEN GRAVITOR!

"BETTER GIVE ME OUR GRAVITOR. I'M GOING TO FOLLOW AND SEE WHAT POK AND ALB ARE PLANNING." FLASH WHISPERS. DALE SAYS, "I'M COMING WITH YOU!"

AS THEY CREEP INTO THE WEIRD HALF-LIGHT OF THE CAVERN, THERE IS A GRINDING NOISE -- AND THE TUNNEL CLOSES BEHIND THEM!

ALLEY OOP

BY V. T. HAMLIN

SO THERE REALLY WAS A KING ARTHUR?

YES INDEED... AND HIS ROUT OF THE SAXONS AT BANBURY PRACTICALLY MADE HIM IMMORTAL!

THE GUY TOOK ADVANTAGE OF EVERY BREAK... AN' WITH ME ACTIN' AS AN INVISIBLE FIFTH COLUMN IN TH' SAXON LINES, HE COULDN'T LOSE!

HOW DO YOU FEEL, OOP?

OKAY, I GUESS... WHY?

WELL, BEING INVISIBLE MIGHT HAVE HAD A SERIOUS EFFECT ON YOUR SYSTEM!

WELL, NOW Y'SPEAK OF IT, I DON'T FEEL QUITE UP TO SNUFF!

WE'D BETTER HAVE A DOCTOR LOOK OOP OVER... THERE'S NO TELLING WHAT CHEMICAL CHANGES THAT EXPERIENCE COULD HAVE SET UP!

YES, THAT'S RIGHT, DOCTOR-- I THINK YOU'D BETTER COME RIGHT OUT!

PROBABLY IT WOULD BE A GOOD IDEA IF YOU TOOK IT EASY!

YEH, I THINK I'LL GO T'BED... IF I CAN MAKE IT THERE!

YEZZIR, DOC, I NEVER FELT WORSE... I MUST BE IN AWFUL SHAPE!

UHHH!

HOW IS HE, DOC-- WHAT'S THE VERDICT?

A REMARKABLE PERSON! YES INDEED, MOST REMARKABLE!

IN ALL MY YEARS OF PRACTICE, I'VE NEVER SEEN A HEALTHIER HUMAN!
